The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in offering these amendments to Senate Bill 27, the so-called Pennsylvania Loyalty Act, I would like to make very clear at the outset that I am not speaking as a representative for any particular group. I am not representing the teachers, I am not representing any Legionnaires, or members of any veterans' organizations. I am only speaking as one of the Members of this House who is very much concerned about this bill, its enactment and the form in which it is finally enacted.

I also would like to make clear that I have not the slightest doubt of the loyalty or the integrity of any person in this House who is going to take a position on one side or another of these amendments. Nor do I have the slightest doubt about the loyalty of those who have sponsored this bill up to this present point and who may not see eye to eye with me on what terms should be included herein. I hope you believe that I am a loyal citizen of the United States and of Pennsylvania and that I, too, speak from an honest conviction on what I think is right in this matter. And on that basis I have offered these amendments, together with Mr. Scanlon of Philadelphia and I will, with your permission, discuss them so that we may all clearly understand what they mean and what we are seeking to do.

As has been said before, this Senate Bill 27 has been rewritten probably more than any other piece of legislation which has come before us this session. There is nothing wrong with the fact that it has been rewritten so often, because it is an important bill, and important bills frequently require a lot of revision and a lot of thought. There have been public hearings held on this bill. There have been probably thousands and thousands of pieces of literature sent to us Members of the House and to the Senate by various organizations which are interested in the measure.

As a result of study of these various letters, pamphlets, and so forth and discussion with people who are affected by this bill, or will be, I have had prepared these particular amendments which are now before you.

In effect what they do to the bill is this: they allow to remain in the bill the definition of a subversive organization which now reads that "Subversive Organization" means any organization which advocates the overthrow of the government of the United States or the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or of any political subdivision of either of them by force or violence."

The bill by its amendments also defines subversive person as follows:

"Subversive person means any person who commits, attempts to commit or aids in the commission, or advocates, abets, advises or teaches by any means any person to commit, attempt to commit or aid in the commission of any act intended to overthrow the constitutional form of government of the United States or of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or or any political subdivision of either of them by force or violence or who is knowingly a member of a subversive organization as defined in this act."

The amendments then provide that before any person, including teachers, shall be eligible for employment in this Commonwealth, or by any of its political subdivisions, all such applicants shall take the oath which is as set forth in this bill—the original bill. That oath reads as follows—I think it is important enough to read it right into the record. It reads:

"I (the person then inserts his name) do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support, obey and defend the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this Commonwealth and that I will discharge the duties of (whatever the office is or the job is) with fidelity. And I do further swear (or affirm) that I do not advocate nor am I knowingly a member of any organization that advocated the overthrow of the government of the United States or of this Commonwealth by force or violence or other unconstitutional means, or seeking by force or violence to deny other persons their rights under the Constitution of the United States or of this Commonwealth. And I do further swear (or affirm) that I will not so advocate nor will I knowingly become a member of such organization during the period that I am an employee of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (or political subdivision thereof)."

The bill then goes on, by virtue of these amendments, to provide that all present employees including teachers shall take this same oath. And provides that if a false oath is taken or if someone violates that oath after it is taken, they shall be subject to the penalties provided for perjury. As I recall those penalties in the present statutes of Pennsylvania, they provide for a fine of up to $3,000, a jail sentence of up to 7 years or both.

The bill as amended by these present amendments would keep in the bill, would continue as a provision of it the fact that state-aided institutions of learning should not receive their appropriation from the state unless the head of the institution files a report with the Governor stating what he has done, what procedure he has followed to ascertain whether there is anybody in the employ of the school who is a subversive person. That is as now appearing in the bill.

The amendments further save from repeal the Act of 1941 Pamphlet Law 530, which prohibited the employment of any person by the Commonwealth or any political subdivision thereof, including school districts, who is an un-American or subversive person. That has been on the books since 1941. In the present bill as it is before you the repeal of that Act is sought on the theory that the bill supplies that in some other way. But since I am removing certain sections of the bill, I am proposing by these amendments to keep the Act of 1941 in effect.

I am also proposing by these amendments to keep in effect the Teachers' Tenure Act insofar as it relates to dismissal for un-American activities or being a subversive person. The latter law was passed in 1941 and the present bill before you, without the amendments, would repeal both of those.

In effect, what you have before you with these amendments is a real loyalty oath bill, without the parts of the bill which would lend themselves to witch hunting.

I would like to point out to you that in Section 3 of the bill, which I am removing in part, it is provided concerning eligibility for employment that no subversive person as defined in this act nor any person as to whom on all the evidence there is reasonable doubt concerning his loyalty to the government of the United States or the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, shall be eligible for employment and so forth.

The thing I found most objectionable in this bill as it appears before you without the amendments is this clause concerning reasonable doubt. Reasonable doubt is not defined in the act and I do not see how it could be, because reasonable doubt on the part of an appointive authority is a personal matter. What might be a reasonable doubt to me might not be a doubt in any respect to you. I say it is incapable of definition in an act of this kind.

However, if the bill passes without these amendments it is going to be possible to take a present employee, whether he be a civil service employee or a school teacher under the tenure act and it is going to be possible at almost any time this is in effect to harass such a person until he throws up his hands and quits his job.

There has been a lot of discussion around the House today about other amendments which may be offered later on concerning the right of appeal to the courts, an appeal de novo, which means a new hearing before the Court of Common Pleas of your county where you live or work, after the administrative hearing.

I would like to point out to you before you vote on these amendments that under the present law all state and municipal employees who are not under civil service or who are not under the teachers' tenure act may be fired at will by the appointing authority. Then you give your reason. They need have no reasonable doubt as to loyalty, they may simply decide without any further ado or hearing or anything else that John Smith or whoever they happen to have in mind is not a fit person and they can fire him summarily.

I have not been able to get the figures, but it is my guess that about 90 per cent of all state employees exclusive of school teachers,—and of course they are not state employees, they are simply aided by state contributions. But about 90 per cent of all state employees, and I believe municipal employees also, are not under civil service protection of any kind. You do not need this bill as far as they are concerned. You do not need any part of this bill or the amendments as far as they are concerned; you simply get rid of them if you have any reason to do so.

Now we move on to civil service employees and teachers. We may have forgotten that many people enter the service of the government because they can become a civil service employee or they can become a teacher protected by the tenure act. Many people have and many people will in the future join the state and the local services and contribute their talents to the services mainly because they have some form of security, and they know that if they devote their attention to their work and give it the time it should have they are going to be fairly safe in that job. In other words they have a star to follow, they have something to hope for. Under the teachers' tenure act and under the teachers' legislation they have a salary increment to look forward to. They have something in which to better themselves. They can get more money now if they go to college and get a master's degree.

Under this bill as it is now set up without the amendments, if any appointing authority of a teacher or a civil service employee decides to get rid of him, he can prefer charges and with a hearing on the administrative level he can, as I said before, harass the person so much that the person is very liable to just quit and remove himself from the appointing authority's presence.

Of course under the present law there is an appeal to the Dauphin County Court as I recall it from the decision of an administrative agency such as the Department of Public Instruction, or the Superintendent of Public Instruction, or the Civil Service Commission, but let me tell you that those appeals are very, very narrow, and if a person has not had a really fair hearing before the administrative agency his appeal may come to naught when he goes to court.

What the Act of 1945 and the Act of 1941 which these amendments of mine would preserve and provide for is a real hearing in court de novo so that a person has a right to be there with counsel to cross examine the witnesses who appear against him, and he really and honestly has his day in court. That is what we want. We do not want anybody, whether he be a teacher or whether he be a civil service appointee in a position where he must fear constantly what he is thinking or what he is saying.

I am not going to take enough time to state a lot of examples but it is very easy for me to conceive of a teacher in some high school in the state of Pennsylvania who is firmly convinced that if we would for example give more aid to France in a certain instance, that it might help to combat the influence of Communism in that area. That thought expressed by the high school teacher might be directly contrary to what the Federal administration's policy is at the moment. Or it might be very much contrary to what his appointing authority thinks is right or wrong. That could be the basis for a reasonable doubt in the mind of the appointing authority as to that teacher's loyalty. He might take the position that this man is a subversive person because he has the audacity to teach what he thinks is right in that particular instance.

Maybe that is not a good example. You could probably think of many others yourself which would be better. But I am trying to make a point of the fact that you cannot hamper people's minds and I am speaking at the moment particularly about teachers; you cannot hem them in by the fear that they are going to be dismissed on somebody's reasonable doubt as defined in this bill and hope that when he gets to court some day he will be vindicated and justified, and so forth.

If you are going to do that, as you will with this bill, then you are going to destroy the academic freedom, the ability and the right to teach things as the teachers in our Commonwealth see them,—and I am speaking now of teachers who are completely loyal and honest and decent. People who do not even know a Communist, and I personally do not know one myself, but I can imagine if I were teaching some subject I could very easily run afoul of this reasonable doubt clause.

I say to you,—and I am going to conclude very soon, that we do not need any witch hunting provisions such as are now contained in this bill to ferret out Communists and other subversive persons. There is every provision now in the law, plus this loyalty oath which I am proposing to be enacted, to get rid of people whether they be in the schools or in the civil service of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We do not need this thing; it is creating a dangerous situation. It may not appear to you today to be dangerous, it may appear to you that I am boxing with shadows here but that just is not so. People who have taught for years in this Commonwealth, who have probably never been out of the United States, and as I said, do not even know a Communist and have the greatest contempt for anything that has to do with Communist, are bitterly opposed to this bill as it is now being presented to you without these amendments.

I have not really spoken to the teachers to find out whether or not they like the oath which I am proposing be left in the bill. It is my opinion that nobody in this Commonwealth should hesitate to take such an oath or to affirm that to be the truth. If they do say they will not take it, then I say they should be dismissed from whatever job they are holding under the Commonwealth or any political subdivision. We want loyal people working for the State and the municipalities and the school boards, and we are going to see that we do have such people. In my opinion practically everybody in the Commonwealth who now has a job is loyal. There are probably some disloyal ones who will be brought to light in the future, and I too want to see them brought to light, but I do not want to do it in the way that this bill proposes.

Somebody said in relation to some other matter not so long ago that it is bad when a wasp sits on a baby's head, but it is a lot worse to kill the wasp with a hammer while it is sitting there.

In my opinion that is about what you are doing with this Pechan Loyalty Bill unless it can be amended. I ask the support of these amendments because I think that in the days to come we are going to be ashamed of ourselves if we pass this Pechan Bill the way it is today.

These amendments do not take away the purpose of it, they do not destroy the purpose which the sponsor is seeking to accomplish and in my opinion they are not going to put the fear of God into all of our good employes in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and let them shiver until such time as the axe falls on their heads for no reason whatsoever.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to reiterate what the gentleman from Berks started his remarks with, that this bill is before this House today not as a Republican measure or a Democratic measure, not a measure of any particular pressure group or organization in the state of Pennsylvania.

I am going to ask that you view this bill from the standpoint of being an American. I, too, agree with him that this bill has been before this session of the General Assembly since its early adys—if I can remember back that far—that it had many opportunities for amendment, changes, alterations and what have you. There never seems to appear any finality to it. That is what we are seeking today—some final determination one way or the other on this bill. Either it will rise on its merits as it is written and amended or it will fall.

The amendments offered by the gentleman from Berks in plain language "guts" the bill. It leaves nothing upon which you can determine who is a subversive—or to define what is subversive, or to provide any procedure to bring that man to task in case those things are found out. It leaves nothing but an oath.

I will agree with the gentleman from Berks that were we not in a national emergency, I doubt—I know this bill would not be before this General Assembly this session. But the President of these United States declared sometime ago that we are in a national emergency. This bill is designed to protect America during that period of emergency.

The same employe about whom we are talking in this bill can be lifted out of his place of employment by your Draft Board and sent into the army. Yet we do not say anything about that. We find no one making any argument about taking that man right out of his job, whether he is subversive, non-subversive or what have you. They can take him right out of that job and put him in the army and they can send him across the pond and he can be killed. Yet we say nothing about that.

That same employe about whom we are talking in this bill can engage in a private business on the side and they can fix his prices and they can tell him what he can charge for his products and if he does not, they will yank him into court. You see it in the paper day in and day out. Yet we say nothing about that.

But when we try to bring under the provisions of this bill an employe who is knowingly advocating the overthrow of the government which we are trying to preserve, we can create the greatest hubbub and furor that I have ever seen in my days in the General Assembly. And if they can do it in one case while we are in a national emergency, I say they can do it in all cases while we are in a national emergency.

As to the reasonable doubt provision in the bill, let us remember that the subject of reasonable doubt applies only in cases of criminal procedure. When an employe has a charge filed against him under this bill it is not a criminal charge. Therefore, the rule of evidence regarding reasonable doubt does not apply in those cases. And our own Supreme Court of the United States has established as a rule of law in cases of this kind that reasonable doubt is a rule which may be applied.

Now the fundamental thing in this bill is that we have some right to say something about the people who receive their compensation from public funds. That is fundamental. If it takes in a state employe, well and good. If it takes in a county, a municipal employe, well and good. If it takes in a teacher, well and good. If it takes in a candidate for public office, well and good. They are all thus subject to the fundamental fact that we are trying to regulate that class of people who receive their compensation from public funds. And public funds, of course, as you all know or should know are derived from taxes. It is becoming a fundamental thing that before long I think the taxpayer should have something to say about how his money is spent.

I also think that when a person goes before any Department of this Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, he has a right to know that he is dealing with an American in his business with that government.

That is the principle in this bill. That is the backbone of this bill. If you adopt the amendments which have been offered by the gentleman from Berks, you will destroy the very fundamental purpose of the bill.

Now he has mentioned something regarding appeals to the courts. We have amendments which we propose to offer which will grant that right of appeal to the courts de novo, which means that that person will have the right to go into the courts and have his entire case heard by the court as if it had been heard by no prior body.

And with the procedure that is in the bill, there are a great number of cases that will be cleared up without the necessity of clogging up court calendars by going that far, as has happened in many cases.

Therefore, I ask the Members of this House to vote against the amendments which have been offered by the gentleman from Berks. I might state this, however, that there are some dates contained in his amendments which will likewise be contained in the amendments which we are proposing to offer, but his amendments have been offered as a whole. Therefore, we are asking that you either vote for the amendments as a whole or vote them down as a whole. And we are asking that you vote down the amendments.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in the remarks of the gentleman from Cameron, he spoke about the draft laws taking employes away from the Commonwealth and the municipalities, school boards; he has spoken about the price laws which affect the persons making a living in the manner in which they have been doing, and other things which affect a person. We have no quarrel with that and we do not think that there is anything that should be said in this bill about those things. Who denies the right of any government to call us into the service if they need us to fight, to defend ourselves? That is fundamental. I do not think it has any place even in this discussion. I do not object to the gentleman mentioning it, but I think it is out of place.

We have no quarrel either with the idea that public employes should be loyal to the government for which they work, and that the public is entitled to know when it pays people that they have loyal employes. That is one reason why we are saying let them take this oath. Make them take it. And if they do not take it, as my amendments provide, they are to be discharged.

Mr. Tompkins has said that these amendments destroy the purpose of the bill. I have said they do not. Now, I certainly leave it to your good discretion to determine whether he is right or whether I am right. I have tried carefully to point out to you that the present law, the Act of 1945 and the Act of 1941, already provide for an appeal de novo to the courts of this Commonwealth. In a few minutes after these amendments have been acted upon you will perhaps be asked to vote to place into this bill the very same thing that is now part of the law of Pennsylvania. I do not think Mr. Tompkins will dispute that fact. The Teachers' Tenure Act clearly provides for an appeal de novo to the courts of this Commonwealth, the Common Pleas Courts, after the Superintendent of Public Instruction has turned them down.

As a matter of fact, I looked at the amendments which he speaks about and which he will propose shortly, and the very words of the amendment which he will propose to allow an appeal de novo to the courts have been taken from the Teachers' Tenure Act of 1941.

I simply see no purpose in taking a statute which is now part of the law of Pennsylvania and adding it to this loyalty oath bill and saying now we have a fair bill. If you take my amendments you are going to have exactly the same thing, as far as court appeals are concerned, as you will get if you accept Mr. Tompkins' amendments.

One more thing I would like to mention and then I will not debate this bill any further. Mr. Tompkins has said there has been a lot of furor and hubbub about this bill. I do not know exactly what the two words "hubbub" and "furor" mean. If he means by that that a lot of people are interested in the bill then I will agree with him. But to me that is not hubbub or furor. When we are asked to pass on a measure as important as this, something which history has indicated could be the first step towards the very kind of government we do not want, the kind we are fighting against, the so-called police state, where people are accused of things and harassed and annoyed and probably forced out of work on an administrative level without getting a fair hearing anywhere along the line, as I said before, because of somebody's reasonable doubt, if we are going to start down that road, then I want to be here protesting against it. I think if we accept this bill as it is now drawn, without the amendments, we are starting down the wrong road and we are going to regret it in the future.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I merely wish to clear up a point that the gentleman from Berks has raised. That is, that the principle is the same, is denying a person the right to a job as it is to take him out of that job and put him in the service or regulate his prices. The fundamental principle is there, no matter how you look at it or under what circumstances it comes. I am trying to discuss the principle when I do that.

So far as the appeal to the court is concerned, it is true that we use the language of the Teachers' Tenure Act, but if we adopt Mr. Readinger's amendments we also cut out the definitions of which constitutes a subversive person, subversive organization, and all the preliminary procedures which you have prior to that time.

This amendments go far, far beyond the amendments we propose to offer.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, before I say anything else I would like to refute the statement made by the gentleman who last spoke, to the effect that the bill as it would be left by the amendments of Mr. Readinger would not contain a definition of a subversive person or a subversive organization. Mr. Readinger stated specifically and the amendments which Mr. Tompkins has had time to look over state specifically that those definitions would be retained in the bill.

I have heard over the last week end, and perhaps many of you have been privileged to hear the same speeches, a series of speeches given by organizations in favor of this bill, and I noted that all of the speeches were the same although they were given by different individuals and no acknowledgement was made of authorship of them. They were given in the name of organizations and I assume they were the official stand of those organizations.

In all of the discussions in those speeches I heard no reference to anything in this bill beyond a loyalty oath. It was referred to as a loyalty oath bill. No mention was made of firing on suspicion, of suspending rules of evidence, of not giving appeal to the court, and so on. I look upon the amendments offered by the gentleman from Berks as a test of good faith of the organizations that have been appealing to the people to support this bill. Because in truth the bill as it will stand after Mr. Readinger's amendments are passed will be a bill which contains a loyalty oath.

The gentleman who spoke in opposition to the amendments stated that the bill would be eviscerated. I used the word "eviscerated," it means the same thing as the word the gentleman across the aisle used but I consider the word "eviscerated" a slightly more parliamentary word than the one he used. He said that the bill would be eviscerated if this action was taken. That is not true if the purpose of the sponsors of this bill is the purpose which they claim, namely, to have a loyalty oath bill; because the loyalty oath will be retained in the bill and some of the more obnoxious features will be stricken out.

I would call your attention to the fact that although the gentleman from Berks assured you that he spoke for no organization, and I am sure that is true, he does meet the specifications, the requests of one of the most important organizations which is opposing this bill, namely the Pennsylvania State Education Association. All of you have received letters in which the PSEA asked for certain changes to be made in the bill. There were four of them listed. As the bill would stand after the amendments of the gentleman from Berks were adopted, the bill would meet that request. Anything less than meeting that request, it seems to me, is leaving a bill that those people who are opposed to the bill at present have no choice but to vote against the bill.

I would assume that the sponsors of this bill and its proponents are not anxious to have a bill passed by a small majority. I think they would like to have a bill that a large number of us in this House would agree on. If they are sincere, the amendments just offered by the gentleman from Berks, it seems to me, would meet that test.

The gentleman from Berks has mentioned that the present laws are adequate with the addition of this loyalty oath to carry out the purposes of the proponents of the bill. That is true.

I do not know whether all of you are familiar with the tenure act and with the act of 1941 which provides for the dismissal of public employees. I would like to read to you briefly from the tenure act.

"The only valid causes for termination of a contract heretofore or hereafter entered into as a professional employee shall be immorality, incompetency, intemperance, cruelty, persistent negligence, mental derangement, advocacy of or participating in un-American or subversive doctrines."

Now, that seems to me is clear enough as far as the teacher tenure law is concerned and makes it possible for any person who advocates or participates in subversive or unAmerican activities to be dismissed. The same thing is true of the 1941 law which applies to all employees of the Commonwealth or any of its municipalities.

It reads as follows:

"No person who hereafter advocates or participates by an overt act, acts of unAmerican or subversive doctrines, shall be permitted to be employed in any capacity by any department, board, commission or other agency of this Commonwealth, or any county, city, borough, incorporated town, township, school district, vocational school district, or institution district thereof, or any authority or institution which is supported in whole or in part out of public funds."

This seems to be ample coverage to take care of any subversive or unAmerican persons who might be in the employ of the Commonwealth or any of its subdivisions. All that we need, in other words, is an enforcement of our present law. If there are any such people they can be taken care of. If you think the law does not work, there is on record a case in which an employe was, a school teacher was discharged from employment under the terms of that provision.

The gentleman equivocated the privilege to serve his country in the armed forces with being thrown out of employment under this tenure act. To me it has always seemed one of the greatest privileges that a man had was to serve his country, to be called in time of danger to go to its defense. To make that equivalent of being thrown out in disgrace on a suspicion because somebody has a reasonable doubt and a loss of employment seems to me a terrible distortion of the facts. To me it seems the cases are totally different because in one case a man is doing an honorable thing, perhaps one of the most honorable things that a man can do, namely, to serve his country in time of need. In the other case, perhaps on just spite or at any rate something which provides a reasonable doubt in somebody's mind, he is thrown out of employment and he is in disgrace.

It was said that this is not a criminal action and under this bill there is not a criminal charge involved, but I would point out to the gentleman that this is an academic point to anybody who is thrown out of employment under this bill because certainly there is a penalty provided. The penalty is losing one's employment, the employment which one has spent half of one's life preparing for, and making it practically impossible for a person to ever regain that employment. If a person is guilty of unAmerican acts or subversive acts, well and good, but as long as there is a possibility under this bill that this might happen to an innocent person, I still say it is an academic point to the person who suffers. Whether it is a criminal charge or not under this bill, he still suffers a very dire penalty.

Then the gentleman says that in any case there will be an appeal under his amendments. I would like to ask the gentleman what happens to the man who is fired out of employment on a reasonable doubt during the time that he is waiting to receive his hearing from the courts? What is going to happen to his wife, his family, his children? And finally, what is going to happen to his reputation, because if this bill allows him to be branded upon the reasonable doubt provision his reputation is forever tarnished. Our law is certainly as much interested in protecting the innocent as it is in detection of the guilty.

Then because a man receives his wages from public funds, there was an implication, it seemed to me, in the last gentleman's remarks that because he receives his wages from public funds you can do just about anything to him. If that is the case, it is going to be very hard to attract estimable and worthwhile people to take any public employment. Public employment should be an honored position. A man should not be a lower caste citizen because his interest leads him into public employment. He should have all the rights and all the protection that any citizen enjoys. He should be a first class citizen.

To my mind, the reasonable doubt provision which is stricken out by these amendments is the heart of the obnoxious features of this bill. Upon its retention depends whether this bill will be really a loyalty oath bill or whether it will be a bill which strikes many of us as being in itself unAmerican in that it takes away from American citizens rights which they deserve to have as American citizens.

So I repeat it seems to me the gentleman from Berks has presented you with a set of amendments which are rational, which present a minimum, that anything less than this will give us no alternative but to vote against a bill, with the objectives of which in themselves we have no quarrel. I hope the support of the House will be given to these amendments.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, in answering certain of the statements of the gentleman from York, he has stated that when a man is called up in the draft and put in a uniform that it is a great privilege for him to fight for his country. I agree with him ten million percent, and as many more percent as I can make it. I also say that when we are in a condition where that can be done to a man it is also a great privilege for a person who is back home to stand up and say he is an American. It stands on the same principle throughout. But when our country is going through a time of emergency it behooves those back home to stand up in the time of that emergency and say they are Americans.

So far as the reasonable doubt provision is concerned, you can pick up the papers almost daily and see where certain men are being released after long years of confinement because of the fact that they were sent to jail on circumstantial evidence. Also, a man today can lose his job in some cases where he failed to pay certain dues. Let us round out this picture in our whole economy instead of just trying to confine it to a few instances. We are talking today about being Americans.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I have been very much interested in the presentation made by the gentleman from Cameron. As I have listened, I have been reminded of the clergyman who was brought under fire and was sought to be discharged by his congregation.

He said to those who were camping on his trail.

What is the matter? Haven't I speechified, haven't I argued, haven't I glorified?

His critics replied,

That is right, Parson, you speechified, and you argued, and you glorified, but you haven't stated wherein."

And in connection with these particular amendments, the gentleman from Cameron really has not stated "wherein."

I had not expected to take the floor at this stage of the game. The only reason I am speaking now is because of my sincere desire to have a bill written, the kind of a bill that I could go before the Democratic House caucus and say, "Gentlemen, there has been a wide departure from the beginning, I do not like all the provisions of the bill even as the gentlemen from Berks has proposed it, but it is a much better bill than we had at the beginning that I hope you will support it."

And then we reach a point where we could pass a proper bill on the basis of almost unanimous consent instead of being forced into the ordeal of debating the bill of the gentleman from Cameron at length eighth tonight or tomorrow or some other time.

I submit to the membership of this House, that the Readinger amendments give you a loyalty oath. Point one. They give you a definition of a subversive person. Point two. And they give you exactly the legal remedy that the gentleman from Cameron proposes, only they give it to you in a more direct and effective fashion.

I cannot support a bill formulated along the lines that the gentleman from Berks proposes. I cannot support and I cannot ask my caucus to support a bill formulated along the lines that the gentleman from Cameron proposes.

The objectionable features are in no way concerned with the integrity of a loyalty oath bill, and his objections to the amendments of the gentleman from Berks are in no way concerned with the integrity of the enforcement machinery.

Under the amendments that the gentleman from Berks proposes, we can do every proper thing, every proper thing that can be done under the terms of a proper loyalty oath bill.

So to save myself and to save you the ordeal of listening to a debate at length upon the merits of the bill as it will be amended by the gentleman from Cameron, I suggest to you that we take the more expedient course that will lead to a more general agreement and leave a sweeter taste in the mouths of everyone by supporting the amendments submitted by the gentleman from Berks.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to take a moment to point out something Mr. Tompkins said which I think is very appropriate to this debate. You heard it and you may remember it and again you may not.

Among his remarks he said that this is neither a Republican bill nor a Democratic bill. And I hope you will bear that in mind. I have been sitting in these Halls for the last fifteen years as a Member, and so often I find that simply because somebody in the Minority offers an amendment a lot of the Members in the Majority feel that they should not go along with it even though they might agree that it is reasonable and sensible and right. Perhaps I have been guilty myself in the past of transgressing in that manner.

But this is not a political issue in my opinion. I take no personal pride in having been the one who asked these amendments be drawn or having offered them with Mr. Scanlon. You can consider them your own amendments. If I thought it would have given them a better chance to pass today, I would have begged on my knees that somebody on your side co-sponsor them or be the sponsors alone. We should lay politics aside today. Whether we are Democrats or Republicans should not mean a thing. You either have to decide that they are right or they are wrong according to your best judgment. But for heavens sakes let us not vote along political lines today because this bill should not be voted on in that manner.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. Readinger and Mr. Stank and were as follows:

A verification of the roll was requested by Messrs. Andrews, Readinger and Tompkins.

So the question was determined in the negative and the amendments were not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendments at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend Sec. 5, page 12, line 8, by striking out the word "November" and inserting in lieu thereof "March."

Amend Sec. 5, page 12, line 9, by striking out the words "fifty-one" and inserting in lieu thereof "fifty-two."

Amend Sec. 5, page 12, line 15, by striking out the word "December" and inserting in lieu thereof "April."

Amend Sec. 5, page 12, line 16, by striking out the words "fifty-one" and inserting in lieu thereof "fifty-two."

Amend Sec. 5, page 13, line 8, by striking out the word "December" and inserting in lieu thereof "April."

Amend Sec. 5, page 13, line 8, by striking out the words "fifty-one" and inserting in lieu thereof "fifty-two."

Amend Sec. 7, page 17, lines 11 to 14, by striking out the words "the charges shall be" in line 11, all of lines 12 and 13, and the words "considerations permit" in line 14.

Amend Sec. 8, page 21, lines 3 to 16, inclusive, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 11, page 26, line 4, by inserting after the word "received" the following "reasonable examination and cross-examination shall be permitted."

Amend page 26, by inserting between lines 4 and 5 a new section to read as follows:

Section 12. Appeals to Court. (a) The ruling or decision of the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be final, unless, within thirty (30) days after receipt by registered mail of written notice of the decision or order of the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction, an appeal, which may be taken by either party, is taken therefrom to the court of common pleas of the county in which the proper appointing authority is located. A copy of such appeal shall be filed, in writing, in the office of the prothonotary, and a copy shall be served on the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction, either by filing it in the office of the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction or by delivering the same to the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

(b) When appeal is taken from the decision of the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction to the court of common pleas, the judge of the court of common pleas to whom such petition is presented shall fix a date for hearing by the court, which shall be not sooner than ten (10) days nor more than twenty (20) days after the presentation of such petition. If the employee aggrieved shall so request in his petition, such hearing shall be do novo. Upon the hearing of said petition, the court shall make whatever order it considers just, either affirming or reversing the action of the Civil Service Commission or the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and stating plainly whether the employee is to be discharged.

Amend Section 12, page 26, line 5, by striking out after the word "section" and before the word "State—" the following "12" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "13."

Amend Section 17, page 31, line 14, by striking out after the word "Section" and before the word "the" the following: "17," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "18."

Amend Section 17, page 31, line 16, by striking out at the end of the line after the word "hundred" the following: "fifty-one," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "fifty-two."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to the offering of amendments at this time? Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, while the amendments have been offered by the gentleman from Cameron do not make an acceptable bill, they are nevertheless an improvement upon a very, very bad bill. It is not quite as bad as it was. And, of course, reserving the right to vote against the bill on final passage, I am suggesting to the membership on this side of the House that we support the amendments offered, with the understanding, of course, that I hope all those who voted for the amendments offered by the gentleman from Berks will be in their places voting against the bill when it appears on the calendar for final passage.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, not to debate the amendments but with the statement which the gentleman from Cambria just made I think the Members of the House are entitled to know what the amendments consist of, and I will just briefly review them.

First of all, they change a number of the dates in the bill which were also provided in the Readinger amendments.

They strike out the right to prefer or not to prefer charges at the discretion of the appointing authority for security reasons, and provides that the accused shall be furnished with a statement of the charges.

They give the right of examination and cross examination of witnesses before the appointing authority.

They grant the right of appeal de novo to the courts which you have heard a great deal of discussion about on the Readinger amendments.

And they strike out of subsection 6 that class of things upon which they are to base subversive activities, which is the United States Attorney General's list. That particular feature was ruled out by the Supreme Court of the United States just a short time ago, and that is what the amendments consist of which we have submitted.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cameron.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman whether his amendments remove the discharged employee upon reasonable doubt in the minds of the employing agency?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the reasonable doubt provision is still retained in the bill, yes, sir.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, does it make any provision that the person shall retain his position until such time as he shall have a trial under the provisions of the bill?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, he may not be dismissed under the provisions of the bill by the appointing authority until after some kind of a trial is had. Then on the appeal de novo into the courts, if he so desires, he can ask for a supersedeas, which means that he will retain his job until such time as the case is disposed of in the courts.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, to make it absolutely clear to me, I would like to ask the gentleman whether in the period between the conclusion of the hearing and whatever time is set for the trial in court, the employee would retain his position?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, if he asked for a supersedeas he would regain his job, yes sir.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I would then ask the gentleman if there is any provision in the bill which would provide any penalty for the bringing of false accusations. In other words, if a person is accused, whether there is any provision in the bill which would provide for a penalty for false accusations?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, there are no such provisions in the bill. That would be taken care of entirely by laws which are already on the statute books.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

I have observed before, Mr. Speaker, that in my mind the heart of the obnoxious features of this bill is the provision of reasonable doubt. Because under that provision any employe can be discharged on suspicion and therefore suffers a liability immediately. Upon the completion of a court trial, even if he should be declared innocent, his reputation would be forever tarnished. In any situation of this kind there are always some people, a large number of people, who retain the feeling that the accused was guilty of something.

I have the feeling that this set of amendments is an attempt to put a sugar coating on a bitter pill, or to use another simile, to scatter perfume over a long dead horse. But no amount of perfume is going to disguise the fact that it is a dead horse.

As the Minority Leader has stated, I see no reason to oppose these amendments, but I would certainly insist that we reserve the right to vote against the bill on the grounds that these amendments are totally inadequate to make this a proper American type of legislation.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. WAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, this reasonable doubt clause about which there seems to be so much debate, is there now on our Federal statute books this same reasonable doubt clause?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether it is on the statute books or not, but it is contained in the loyalty program of the Federal government and the reasonable doubt provision of the Federal government regulations has been sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States, which makes it a rule of law.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, it is a fact that the President of the United States has the right under the reasonable doubt clause to dismiss anyone from Federal employ if he has a reasonable doubt that they are un-American. Is that right?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, that is right.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, to this date do you know of any case where there has been a misuse of power a miscarriage of justice due to this reasonable doubt clause?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, to my knowledge, none.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, there may be, but to my knowledge, I know of none.

Mr. MAXWELL. Mr. Speaker, if this has been part of the Federal law for a number of years and it has caused no undue hardship nor any miscarriage of justice, I see no reason for so much debate about it here.

Mr. LOUIS LEONARD. Mr. Speaker, on the question of reasonable doubt, you all read the paper about what happened to an Assistant District Attorney of Allegheny County when the former Attorney General of this state had a reasonable doubt. It caused that party to lose practically eleven months work, and after due investigation was made, she was cleared and now she is back on the job. That is your reasonable doubt case.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I note that you have attempted to amend Section 11, page 26, line 4, by inserting after the word "received" the following "reasonable examination and cross examination shall be permitted." That pertains to the administrative action of the appointing authority, does it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, would you restate that question, please.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I say you have attempted to amend section 11, page 26, line 4, by inserting after the word "received" the following "reasonable examination and cross examination shall be permitted." That affects only the administrative procedure, does it not?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, yes, the hearing before the appointing board, yes.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, so that under your amendment, the ordinary rules of cross examination would not apply, would they?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, oh yes, certainly, that is the reason for this particular amendment.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I do not see why you designate there "reasonable examination and cross examination." Would they be limited insofar as their right to cross examination is concerned?

Mr. TOMPKINS. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, they would not? In reply to one of the other gentlemen who interrogated you, you said they might obtain a writ of supersedeas if they took an appeal. Is there anything in the amendments which you offered which grants them that writ of supersedeas? I see nothing in the amendment.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the amendment does not state that the appeal shall act as a supersedeas, no; but it is within the right of the party taking the appeal to ask for such a supersedeas.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, it is your contention then that a party taking an appeal may just ask the court for a supersedeas without specifically mentioning it in the amendment?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, yes, that is right.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, is it not true that in all other cases where the right of supersedeas is granted, the act specifically grants such right?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, not necessarily.

This is the same provision that is in your Teachers' Tenure Act. If you have the right of supersedeas in your Teacher's Tenure Act, you will have it here because we use the same language.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to refer the gentleman in my interrogation to page 16 of the bill, Section 7, and to ask him whether or not under that section on page 18, line 16, does not allow the person charged to be discharged after a hearing before the appointing authority?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, yes, it does.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to refer the gentlemen then to page 24 of the bill, Section 10 relating to appeals to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and to ask him whether or not that section on page 25 does not provide on line 12 of that page that

On appeal the Superintendent shall affirm or reverse the findings and determination under review, and in the case of reversal shall order the reinstatement of the appellant who shall be entitled to back pay from the date of his discharge." Are those words not still in the bill?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman then to explain what he means by saying that a person who takes an appeal to the court will have a supersedeas as a matter of right? The very words of this bill seem to negative that idea.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, it is within the discretionary power of the court to grant such a supersedeas.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, do you mean to say that that is the procedure which is in your Teacher Tenure Act?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, we followed that in order not to get away from the procedure provided in that bill.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, does the Teacher Tenure Act not provide that the appeal shall be a supersedeas?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, not to my knowledge.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman maintain that even though we specifically say in this Section 2 that I am reading, that the discharged employe shall be reinstated and entitled to his back pay, does he not believe that the Courts would then rule that they have no authority to grant a supersedeas? It specifically says that he must be given his back pay and that would have no meaning if a supersedeas were given, because he would have had his salary the entire time.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, the appointing authority has the power to dismiss, and then he has the right to take an appeal. If they reverse a decision, the party is reinstated to his job with his back pay. He does not lose anything at all by it, just the fact that he does not work during that period of time. He does not lose any pay or anything during that period of time, he just does not work. If they sustain the decision, naturally the party is out of a job. Therefore, he does not get any back pay or does not have any job.

Mr. ROSE. Mr. Speaker, but I ask the gentleman again does not the Teachers' Tenure Act provide that before a person may be discharged by anyone, he is forced to be given charges preferred against him by some appointing authority and heard by the School Board? He may then appeal to the Superintendent of Public Instruction. He may then appeal de novo to the Court of Common Pleas of the county in which he is working, and he may take a further appeal to the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, all before he may be discharged? Is that not the Teachers' Tenure Act of today?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, sorry I cannot answer you.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Unless my recollection of the Teachers' Tenure Act is completely faulty, the law now provides that a teacher who is charged with one of the reasons for dismissal is given his administrative hearing and his court hearing before he may be discharged and removed from the payroll. This protection, in my opinion, is completely removed by this bill.

It is true that Section 10 provides that if the Superintendent of Public Instruction reverses the appointing authority, the School Board, or if the court reverses, he is to be reinstated and given his back pay. But I say to you there is a big difference between a person who is compelled to go through hearings perhaps for months and months without any pay at all and the case of the person who is entitled to work and to receive his pay during all those months.

Maybe it does not make any difference to you and me, sitting up here, but it certainly does to the person who is involved in the particular case.

I would like to point out one other thing about this bill with the proposed amendments before us, and that is Section 11 which provides that in proceedings taken pursuant to this act evidence shall not be restricted by the rules of evidence and procedure prevailing in the courts. All relevant evidence of reasonable probative value may be received. What means in simple language that you can get the worst kind of hearsay, hearsay which is five times removed from the person who first stated it, and that can be introduced in evidence at one of these hearings on the administrative level.

I would like very much to vote for a loyalty oath bill, but even with these amendments before us—well, I intend to vote for them on the ground that they at least make this bill better, but I cannot vote for this bill even as amended.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, is it the intention of the gentleman from Cameron to amend the provisions of the Act of 1941 dealing with persons advocating un-American or subversive doctrines who have filed appeals and under the law as it now exists the Act provides that such appeals shall operate as a supersedeas of any order? Now that is written specially in the Act of 1941 dealing with subversives. Here you have a bill that is attempting to deal with people who might be thinking subversively, and the law that provides that where they do actually become subversive and are charged with subversion if they take an appeal they are permitted to be employed until such time as there is a final decision in the case. Now would you amend that Act by this bill?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, you are speaking of the Act of 1941?

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, the Act of 1941, yes, provides that all appeals as aforesaid shall operate as a supersedeas of any order.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, which Act of 1941 are you speaking about?

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, about the Act of 1941 dealing with persons advocating un-American or subversive doctrines who are public employes—whether they are school employes or employes of other subdivisions of the Commonwealth.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, there is a provision in Senate Bill 27 which would repeal that Act in toto.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, then you would take that away, you would wipe out the Act of 1941 insofar as it deals with subversives. Is that correct?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, yes, it would repeal that Act in toto.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, then in other words, under this act as you now have it, a person who is actually subversive under the Act of 1941 would no longer be guilty of any crime under the Act of 1941 but would be subject to the inquisition as we think of it under the proposed loyalty bill, is that correct?

In other words, under the Act of 1941 you have set up legal safeguards for anyone who is accused of an act of subversion. You say in this bill you are going to wipe out the Act of 1941 and you are going to rely on this loyalty act that we have before us where persons may be held and tried upon mere suspicion and receive a hearing under rules that are absolutely foreign to the American idea of law and procedure.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Schmidt you have a right to appeal to the courts. You have the right to examination and cross examination.

Mr. SCHMIDT. But in your bill as you now propose to amend it you remove the safeguard that is given the person under the Act of 1941, the right of a supersedeas, and as the gentleman from Berks has set forth, that person may be discharged and may not have employment until such time as there is a final disposition of the case.

Mr. TOMPKINS. In that particular job. That is right.

Mr. GUARNIERI. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Cameron Mr. Tompkins.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cameron, Mr. Tompkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TOMPKINS. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. GUARNIERI. Mr. Tompkins, is it the purpose of your amendment to allow the hearing de novo on the facts and on the law?

Mr. TOMPKINS. The hearing de novo is a hearing starting from scratch, you might say. In other words the court is not bound by anything that has happened prior to that time under any circumstances.

Mr. GUARNIERI. That was in my understanding, Mr. Tompkins. I did not have a chance to peruse the amendments thoroughly and I wanted to ask the question.

I want to thank the gentleman for his answers to the last questions. In this hearing de novo, do your amendments make any provision as to the specification of the charge. In other words, it appears to me that under the bill as it presently is written, the charges against the individual shall be stated only as specifically and completely as the appointing authorities having it render consideration may deem proper.

In this hearing de novo, will there be any provision for a clearer specification of a charge or would this specification named here remain? That is the question I wish to ask, Mr. Tompkins.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, I might inform the gentleman from Philadelphia that the provision with reference to discretion so far as security reasons may be concerned is stricken out in my amendments, and the bill will read that the accused shall be entitled to be given a copy of the charges against him and that any appeal will be the appeal upon the charges which have been filed against him. Therefore, that will be what goes into your court as your complaint.

Mr. GUARNIERI. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman for his explanation.

I notice that in the bill as it presently reads, in addition to the testimony taken before the appointing authority or the Civil Service Commission, as the case may be, the hearer, so to speak, before whom the proceedings are held may thereafter apparently make such further inquiry as may be deemed advisable in the judgment of the person before whom the hearing is held. I wish to ask, Mr. Speaker, whether the amendments proposed by Mr. Tompkins affect in any way that feature of the existing bill?

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. Speaker, they do not.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

They were agreed to.

Mr. HOGGARD. Mr. Speaker, I wish to be recorded as voting "no."

Mr. PENGLASE. Mr. Speaker, I wish to be recorded as voting "no."

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to be recorded as voting "no."

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL NO. 789

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate insists on its nonconcurrence in the amendments made and insisted upon by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill No. 789, entitled:

An Act to further amend clause (b) of Section 507 and clause (c) of Section 2403 of the act, approved the ninth day of April, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. #### PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, the other day I began to discuss some of the reasons why I thought Senate Bill No. 837, introduced by me, was reported from committee, and at that time I reviewed my reasons for introducing the bill. I outlined the numerous race tracks that existed in the states surrounding Pennsylvania, the attendance at those race tracks, the amount that was bet and the amount that was paid to the states in the form of taxes. I said that because Pennsylvania was surrounded by states that have legalized horse racing, I thought that Pennsylvania, too, ought to realize some of the revenues from that source, and for that reason I had prepared and had introduced in the House a bill to legalize horse racing in Pennsylvania on a monopoly basis, with three race tracks, the profits to go toward the payment of the bonds to finance the soldiers' bonus.

Mr. President, I said then that if Pennsylvania did not legalize horse racing, then perhaps we ought to be lily-white, as I put it, and get rid of the bookies and the gamblers and the racketeers, and that one of the methods of getting rid of them was by Senate Bill No. 837. I told the Members of the Senate that this bill was reported from committee without my consultation, in spite of the fact that it was my bill and in spite of the fact that I am a Member of the Law and Order Committee, to which the bill was referred, and from which committee the bill was reported to the floor of the Senate.

Mr. President, I said then that because of the general conduct surrounding the reporting of the bill from committee, that there must have been some special motive, some special reason for reporting that bill from committee. I sat in my seat here and I tried to figure out the reason or the motive behind reporting the bill out. I reached the point where I said, "If they reported the bill out to flatter me,"—and I could not understand that because I am a Democrat, and very few bills introduced by Democrats are reported from committees, regardless of their merit, for the consideration of the Senate and the General Assembly as a whole. I said to myself, If the bill was reported out for that reason, to flatter me, to do me a favor, that I had introduced other bills that were in committee that perhaps had more merit than this bill. This bill, as I said, probably is not as effective today at it was the day I introduced it because the Democratic Administration in Washington did something about this racketeering, did something about this gambling. On one of my bills, as I put it, I would like to make an arrangement, and I would be glad to send this back for one of my other bills, the bill that deals with the institutional situation in Pennsylvania in which I have an interest.

Mr. President, I was over in the Health Department and I learned over there that there are about eight hundred empty beds in our tuberculosis institutions, and there are about five hundred people on the waiting list to get into those institutions, five hundred people who the doctors say are doomed to die unless they get hospitalization, but yet they cannot get into one of our institutions despite the fact that there are eight hundred empty beds. When I asked them the reason, I was told, and I admire the courage of those in the Health Department because they have said it publicly, that they cannot take care of these unfortunates because of the lack of doctors and nurses to staff the hospitals. So, I introduced two bills. The one bill would subsidize the education of a certain number of doctors in Pennsylvania, and the method of having them admitted and the method of having them qualified is outlined in that bill. These doctors would agree to spend at least four years in one of the State institutions assigned to them by either the Governor, or the Secretary of Health or the Secretary of Welfare. That bill is still in committee, and I have a letter here from the Pennsylvania Medical Society, and it is addressed to me and it is dated April 3, 1951, which states:

"My dear Senator Yosko:

"Senate Bill No. 349, of which you are the sponsor, provides a limited number of State scholarships for medical education. This bill is very commendable and should receive favorable consideration."

Mr. President, I talked to the Secretary of Welfare about it, and he approved the bill. I talked to Doctor Teague, and he likewise approved the bill and thought it would be a good idea to provide for a steady flow of doctors into our State institutions so that the patients in those institutions could be properly cared for and properly treated. The bill is still in committee, although this Senate Bill No. 837 was reported out.

Mr. President, I also introduced a bill that would authorize the Secretary of Health to declare an emergency in those areas of Pennsylvania where there is a shortage of nurses, and in those areas set up an accelerated program whereby nurses could be graduated in two years instead of three years. This bill would provide subsidies to those nurses' training schools which would inaugurate that program, and it was through this program that I thought, and they agreed with me, that perhaps the shortage of nurses could be replenished. That bill is still in committee, and while I am talking about the shortage of nurses and funds that we appropriate to nurses' training schools, my colleague, Senator Bane, just this afternoon told me of his interest in that subject, of the amount of money that we are appropriating to these State-aided hospitals for that purpose, and of the presumption, at least, that these State-aided hospitals are not applying these funds totally for the purpose for which the funds are granted. At least there is no accounting of how those funds are spent, and we talked about doing something about it. However, the bill that I introduced is still in committee, so that I repeat, if you want to flatter me, if you want to do me a favor by putting through one of my bills, I will gladly agree to have this bill recommitted and have one of those worthy bills reported from committee and enacted into law. So, it could not be for flattery purposes that this bill was reported out.

Mr. President, I said to myself, "Could it be because they want to enforce the law, they want to get after these racketeers, that they reported this bill out?" I could not agree with myself that it was for that purpose, because I said, "If that was the reason, they could do more than report that bill out."

Mr. President, Senator Ruth, my colleague here, put in a resolution to set up a crimes investigating committee in Pennsylvania. The resolution is still in committee. Assemblyman Thompson introduced a resolution to set up a crimes investigating committee in Pennsylvania. It is still in committee. I introduced a resolution calling upon the State Police to set up a racket busting squad. It is still in committee. The Criminal Code, for instance, upon which about four years work was done by experts in the criminal field, that took hours and hours of time and study, that cost thousands of dollars to make the study, the Criminal Code that passed the House and is now in the Senate has not been reported from committee. There are sections in the Criminal Code that take care of the gambler, the racketeer and the slot machine operator, so that it could not be that you wanted to do something about curbing the racketeering crime in Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I discarded that as a reason for reporting the bill out, and I said to myself again, "I wonder if it could not be that a newspaper"—and I may as well say which one (the Philadelphia Inquirer)—"was to be punished for supporting the Democratic ticket in Philadelphia last year, which helped to clean out the thieves and the crooks and the embezzlers and the drones, mind you, which I understand the Kephart Bill would attempt to freeze into office, in spite of the voice of the people of the city of Philadelphia. Could it be because the Philadelphia Inquirer printed that expose of the medical-surgical situation, hospital situation, in Philadelphia, about which I am going to have a great deal more to say? Could it be because of that, and because the Philadelphia Inquirer and other reputable newspapers in Pennsylvania print these race results?" I could not make myself believe that that could be the reason, and I will tell you why.

Mr. President, I do not think that the Republican leadership could be so stupid to try something in a retaliatory manner against a newspaper like the Philadelphia Inquirer or any other reputable newspaper, because I said to myself, "The Philadelphia Inquirer or any other newspaper in Pennsylvania certainly does not need the Republican Party. The Republican Party needs the Philadelphia Inquirer, and it needs every reputable newspaper we have in this State if it is to survive and enjoy victories." So, I could not attribute that as the chief reason or as the primary reason, and there I stopped.

Mr. President, I want to say that I was for the bill when it was introduced, I am for it now, and I say here and now that the Republican Party is in the Majority in the Senate and in the House, we have a Republican Governor here and, frankly, I do not believe you have the courage to pass this bill and the Governor sign it.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I would just like to make a very brief statement. I have some of Senator Yosko's bills, and I would just like to inform him that I am not in a position to deal. I saw what happened yesterday with supposed deals, and I do not want to be a party to it, so I cannot deal with him.

REMARKS ON HOUSE BILL No. 714

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, the passing of House Bill No. 714, in my opinion, demonstrates to the people of Pennsylvania that this Legislature is definitely in support of public education. We have done a good job for the public school teaching profession in Pennsylvania, and House Bill No. 714 sets up a salary scale for the teachers in our various teachers colleges throughout the Commonwealth.

Mr. President, for the information of the Members of the Senate, this legislation will benefit forty-seven instructors at the California State Teachers College, it will benefit one hundred ten instructors at the Indiana State Teachers College, fifty-five at Slippery Rock, forty-seven at Edinboro, forty at Clarion, forty at Lock Haven, forty-seven at Bloomsburg, forty-seven at Tioga County, one hundred ten at West Chester, fifty at Millersville, fifty at Shippensburg, thirty-five at Cheyney, fifty at Stroudsburg and fifty at Kutztown. .

Mr. President, this group of public instructors has not received the benefits that the members of the public school teaching profession have received in the legislative halls of this Commonwealth, and the establishment of this salary scale will, I believe, go a long way in encouraging educators to participate with our teachers colleges in this Commonwealth.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I just want to say a word or two about the increase for the teachers in the normal schools of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I have had a number of telephone calls, as well as letters, from teachers in the State normal schools relative to an increase in salaries for them. It is my opinion at least, and I have so voted, that since we gave the teachers of the public schools an increase and gave almost everybody else in every other category an increase, that the teachers in the normal schools are also entitled to a salary increase. However, I do just want to say this, by way of suggestion that through the normal schools we do help to finance the education of students, prepare them for teaching in our public schools. There are a great many teachers who graduate from normal schools who are qualified to teach, but it seems to me as though there is no program in the normal schools to prepare teachers to fill those vacancies that most likely occur in our public school system.

For instance, Mr. President, I have had a number of normal school graduates come to me and ask me if I could not help to get them placed in the public school system in the city of Bethlehem, and, naturally, since it is a part of my job to help people and particularly those who are educated in our normal schools, I, as a rule, contact the superintendent of schools for those applicants who come to me. I find that in most cases the teachers, although they are qualified to teach, are not qualified to fill the vacancies that exist in the public school system, and for that reason they cannot be hired. As a result, in some cases it is necessary to employ teachers from other states to fill those vacancies.

Mr. President, I do think under the circumstances that the normal schools ought to make a survey each year of the public school system to find out in just what departments teachers are necessary, and try to encourage the students to take courses in those particular categories, so that they can qualify and graduate and be able to fill the gaps. In that way, we could employ more of the schoolteachers from our own State, and in particular from the normal schools that we help to finance.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I was a little bit hurt at Senator Lane's announcement here. He named the State Colleges for Teachers, and when he came to Tioga County he did not name the school.

Mr. President, I want to tell the Senate that I graduated from this college over fifty years ago, 1899, and that is the Mansfield State Teachers College. It is a grand school. I taught one year, I was principal of my school at home, I went back to Mansfield and prepared there for entrance to Cornell University.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I am sure that was an oversight on the part of the gentleman from Washington. I am sure he intended to mention it, Senator McGinnis.

Section 5 Nothing in this act shall be construed to prohibit any newspaper or magazine of general circulation from printing in its regular issues any news information pictures or editorial comment relating to horse races

Section 6 The provisions of this act shall become effective thirty days after final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I am going to vote "no" on this bill. I feel that when a Member of my party starts out to be a reformer to make the rest of us good, I could do a better thing; I could present a bill to re-enact the Ten Commandments and then go home.

Mr. President, I know that there is criticism about getting these racing sheets, and I notice there is an amendment in the bill that allows newspapers of general circulation to publish these reports. I am one of those who feel that every man, high or low, no matter what he does, should have a change and some recreation in this world. In fact, I know men who have two jobs, who work all day long until they are exhausted and nervous, and they take another job and maybe work until twelve o'clock at night, an entirely different job, for relaxation. There are a lot of people in the State of Pennsylvania who have no amusement, they go home from their work, they do not know what to do, and thousands of them pick up the racing sheets. They do not bet anything, but they know the horses and they love those horses.

Now, Mr. President, I want to say to you that it is not right for us to enact legislation in this Senate to deny those people this information. I refer to those people who do not have city newspapers but somehow they do get these racing sheets, and they know every horse on that sheet. Just like children, they watch the winners and the losers, and why deny, why deny working men, miners, mill men, the right to read a racing sheet at night? Maybe they do bet.

You know, Mr. President, I have always voted for race tracks in Pennsylvania. If we had three race tracks in Pennsylvania, a lot of men have told me this, we could have one near Pittsburgh, one near Hershey and one near Philadelphia, say, have racing two seasons of the year or maybe one season of the year, and let the people go there and see the horses. I have often been told that a child who loves a horse will be a good citizen, and do you know that today unless we have race tracks—maybe on television now they can see horses—but if we do not have race tracks in Pennsylvania there are a lot of our children who will never see a horse.

Now, Mr. President, I move that this bill be recommended to the Committee on Law and Order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair regrets to inform the gentleman from Allegheny that there is nothing in order but the roll call.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I, too, am going to vote against this bill. I not only subscribe to the practical features referred to by my colleague from Allegheny, Senator McGinnis, but I would like to bring this to the attention of the Senate, if they are in the mood to listen, that this bill is unconstitutional from beginning to end.

Mr. President, I would like to refer you to the title first, which refers to illegal gambling, and then to the sections in the bill which talk only of horse racing. Now, it would appear to me that there is quite a variance between the title and the balance of the bill, because there is nothing else in the rest of the act that is considered to be illegal except these tip sheets scratch sheets, score sheets, or whatever they may be, that relate to horse racing. There is nothing in here about tip sheets or wall charts, if they have any which relate to basketball, or dog racing or any other form of sport that may be prevalent today. For that reason, I do not think the bill is constitutional.

Mr. President, I do not think this bill is constitutional for another reason. I do not think it is constitutional because there is nothing inherent in a piece of paper, and I assume these are pieces of paper of various sizes or pieces of cardboard, as they tell me, of varying colors with printed matter on them, which in itself is not used in gambling. It merely contains information, and I do not know how we, sitting here in this Senate, can say that such a piece of paper becomes the subject of an unlawful act, or that it in itself is an unlawful act. So, I think from that standpoint it would be unconstitutional.

Finally, Mr. President, and I will revert now to the practicalities of the problem as Senator McGinnis so ably pointed out to you, if you are really anxious to hurt the bookie, who is the gambler that I think we are all after, you are helping him if you eliminate pieces of paper containing this kind of information, because then to the uninitiated he has to depend purely on luck and those of us who have tried to depend purely on our luck in the past know how far we can get. I think we are all being ridiculous, if we honestly, sincerely, and seriously, think we are doing something constructive in passing this kind of a bill.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I understood the gentleman to say that without these tip sheets we would have to depend on luck. May I ask the gentleman what you depend on even after you have the sheets?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, if he has ever been to a race track or bet on a race, he realizes that the whole atmosphere is one of psychology. If he has to depend on making the choice himself and he loses, then his ego is terribly hurt, but if he buys one of these wall charts, or tip sheets or scratch sheets, he has something else on which to vent his feelings and that, Mr. President, makes him feel much better. If Senator Walker wants to take that pleasure away from these individual who cares to participate in this, then I feel sorry for him.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, I have no desire to take any of his drifting pleasures away from him, and I want to assure the gentleman that his ego may suffer or may not suffer, but he would do a lot better if he would depend upon the tips, that Frankie Price gives him every morning.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to say that I think Frankie refers to tip sheets, scratch sheets and wall charts.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Washington, Mr. Lane, will state his point of information.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, what are we voting on, the motion to recommit or the bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill was finally agreed to on Third Reading. There is nothing in order now but the roll call.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I could interrogate the gentleman from Blair County, but I know it would be embarrassing to everyone in the Senate. However, I just want to say this. I do not know what the implications are from this kind of legislation, and I do not know much about horses and that can be proven.

Mr. President, the one thing I want to do is call attention to the fact that in the Senate tonight a gentleman, a member of the Senate, made a talk that seemed to invoke a great deal of laughter and was taken more or less in a vein of hilarity. Probably that is the way it should be treated, I do not know, but I want to tell you what I was impressed with in Senator McGinnis' talk. Senator McGinnis' talk was not entirely directed at this particular bill. Studying the few remarks that he made, I gained a bit of knowledge, of which I am sure that I am right, that what Senator McGinnis was telling the Senate of Pennsylvania was that the liberties which we have fought and bled and cried for from every platform and speaking forum in the past one hundred and sixty odd years in this Country, are being slowly but surely taken from the individual citizen. We are now living in an age that is designed in a reform mode, and maybe that will be good. Perhaps it will be better for all of us, and gentlemen like Senator McGinnis, who has reached past that stage of life when youth is hanging around the fringes, rebels at the thought that perhaps this liberty now, another liberty tomorrow will be removed, and I wonder sometimes what we mean by talking about this way of life.

Mr. President, in my own philosophy I do not believe that anything is wrong which an individual does unless in what he is doing he is taking from society something that does not belong to him. If I have certain personal habits, they are my habits, and I have a right to enjoy them so long as I do not take from my neighbor that which is my neighbor's, and do not impose upon general society some kind of a cross or burden that is not proper. Of course, that is philosophy which probably would not be very popular today, and I know that no matter what I say, it will be misconstrued and misconstrued, and the headlines will probably carry something other than what I intended to say. I only know this, that deep down in the heart of Senator McGinnis is the same feeling that is beating in mine, that we are slowly taking away from the individual the personal rights, the personal prerogatives that are supposed to be endowed in each and every one of us by the rights contained in the Declaration of Independence and as exemplified by the Constitution of the United States. There are many men in this room who will live to see the day that these simple rights, which now could appear to be so wrong, will be constrained within the lines of behavior, and as we go down the future pathroads we will discover that the only vicarious thing that we receive will be in reading what happened in past generations.

Mr. President, some of you must not analyze my remarks to the extent of the depth of what I am trying to reach you with, but just as seriously and sincerely as I have ever been in my life, I want to say to all of you that each and every day in our weak way we are allowing the personal liberties and the personal rights of individuals to be taken from them. Sure, there are a group of people who do not believe that any other person ought to even take a drink of any kind. I say this, that an individual, so long as he takes that drink and does not hurt society, has a right to do it and he has a perfect right not to take it if he so desires. That, to my mind, is personal privilege and personal liberty.

Mr. President, I do not know anything about this bill except that I do think it was introduced in a sincere effort to correct what this particular Senator thought was an evil thing, but I am also just as much convinced that it is now appearing on the Senate Calendar in an insincere effort to create some kind of a punitive piece of legislation, maybe, to embarrass or injure somebody who somebody is aiming some darts at. It does not interest me why the bill was put in, why it is being passed or defeated. That is not the point that Senator McGinnis, to my mind, was trying to make. Although a lot of us laugh like the hollow yell in a rain barrel, none of us realize that this elder statesman was trying to tell us in a very few words that we, the younger generation,—I might say now that I am the middle aged generation—are trying to stop each and every personal liberty that each and every individual ever enjoyed. We are doing it slowly but surely and there will be a day when that kind of slavery of personal privileges, which every honorable man has abhorred since the beginning of time, will be strapped upon the shoulders of individuals by legislative action, because men have not had the courage to stand up and say that the individual's right to pursue his own field of happiness is his own personal privilege.

Mr. President, they tried the "Noble Experiment" in this Country, and for a great many years those of us who lived through the generation of prohibition were a misled, misguided youth, and because it was prohibited we thought it was some sweet morsel that we should taste. I think that during the days of prohibition there was a greater number of drunkards than there ever has been in any other similar period in the history of this Country. So, you drive this particular vice, as somebody calls it, underground and you do not print any more so-called sheets that might give information to somebody who wants to indulge in the pastime of looking at what the results were at a race track. As a result, they go over to New Jersey and get them there. They send them through the mail, and they get the same thing.

Mr. President, I want to say to the newspapers, if they can curtail this one particular privilege, they can tomorrow stop you from printing stories that are not true, and that would be disastrous. Newspapers are exempt if they are of general circulation, I understand that, but that is the point which makes this bill so ridiculous. Is there any information in any one of these sheets—I do not even know the name of them—that you cannot get in a newspaper? I will present to the floor of this Senate, within five minutes, tomorrow morning's papers and give you what they call the morning line, or something, on every race track running within a betting distance of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, let us not be naive in this matter. If you want to stop race information, if you want to stop that, then stop it all the way through. All that you have to do, in my opinion, to circumvent this law is to take the so-called racing information and incorporate it in a paper of general circulation, and then you have the information that people may use if they so desire. Not being an habitual horse race bettor, I am not too well acquainted with what knowledge you can gain, but I can assure you of this, it cannot be very accurate, because more people lose than win at race tracks, and more people, lose than win at the betting game. Anybody that gambles very seriously, in my opinion, needs a medical examination. You do not get anything for nothing in this world, whether it is by gambling or any other process. I do not believe in it, so I do not care what you do, but I just do not like fakery and I do not care what form fakery takes.

Mr. President, I say I may be condemned for this, but I say that I have no right to take away from future generations any of the privileges of personal rights and personal liberties which I myself have enjoyed. If they are there for me to use, then I am going to see to it that the future generations also have them to use. They can let them alone if they want to, but I am not going to take them from any one by my vote.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I am constrained to vote against this bill because I confess I do not understand its meaning. To me it is all Chinese, and I would need a dictionary to understand it. All this language is strange, and to vote for a bill that you do not understand would be silly.

Mr. President, for this reason I have either the alternative of voting "present" or voting "no," and because of that, because I do not understand the meaning of the bill and, in my opinion, it is trivia, I will vote "no."

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I said before, and I say again, that I have been for this bill since it was reported out of committee. I gave my reasons for introducing the bill this afternoon, and I told you how I was ignored when the bill was reported from committee but I just want to say this. It was not too long ago that the whole country was up in arms about racketeering in the United States, and it involved the bookie just as it involved other forms of racketeering. I do not want anybody in this Chamber to think that I am trying to be a reformer, because I am not.

Mr. President, I said I was for legalizing horse racing in Pennsylvania, and there was a bill prepared to make that possible. I said, too, if we did not want legalized horse racing, let us get rid of the racketeer that everybody is up in arms about all over the United States. Public hearings were held by a Congressional committee. They were televised all over the United States, and, according to newspaper reports, those hearings had the greatest audience in the history of this Country on any event that was ever televised. The Kefauver Committee, as I said before, did something about stopping this racketeering, and if anybody read the Kefauver Committee Report they will find that there was a recommendation made to the local legislatures to do something about it locally.

Mr. President, here we are. We have been in Session for almost twelve months. What have we done about racketeering? Have we set up a crime investigating committee, as was set up by many of the legislatures in the other states? Of course, we have not, in spite of the fact that resolutions have been introduced to that extent. The Criminal Code, as I said this afternoon, is lying in committee. That would help take care of the racketeer, but here we are and we pick out what I would say was the weakest, and I say that now because the effectiveness of this bill to some extent was lost with Federal legislation against racketeering, but we pick out the weakest of the legislation that is possible and bring it out here. I say, as Johnny Dent said, it was for purposes of perhaps embarrassment, but it was insincere whether it was to embarrass me with the newspapers or whether it was to try to embarrass the newspapers that probably, not probably, but that did support the Democratic Party last November. I do not know, which but it is here. It is out here on the floor, and I have had any number of Senators come to me and talk to me about it, and after I told them that I was not consulted about this thing, of course, they looked at it in a different light.

Mr. President, there were statements made to the newspapers that this was a good bill by the gentlemen from the other side. They said it would close up the loopholes that might exist in the enforcement of the law which affects this particular type of racketeer. No, I am not against the newspapers of general circulation listing the entries and the races of publicizing the results of a race. When I wrote to Florida for a copy of the bill that was passed there by the Legislature and vetoed by the Governor, every line that had "newspaper" in it, and the words before and after, that were related to newspapers, I had the Legislative Reference Bureau strike out so that the newspapers of general circulation which print news, the news of the day, would not be affected by their usual policy of printing the entries in a horse race or the results after a horse race.

Mr. President, if this bill is going to do what the spokesmen for the other side said it was going to do in the newspapers, close up the loopholes which might exist in connection with Federal legislation that has been passed, then I see nothing wrong with the bill, and I ask every Member of this Senate to vote for it, but in the same breath I say, let us get some of the other legislation which will curb racketeering in Pennsylvania out on the floor and let us vote on it, too. Let us not just enact the weakest bill that was introduced here on that subject, and when I say the weakest bill I say that because it has been weakened by legislation already passed by Congress which compels the racketeer to do certain things before he can operate. One of the most effective things that he must do is identify himself so that the local police, and all police and all enforcement officers will know exactly what business he is engaged in. On top of that he is compelled to pay a tax to the government from the business in which he is engaged and from the profits that he reaps.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, several weeks ago we passed legislation which made it mandatory that the names of relief recipients be published in public places. I said at that particular time that it was a step in the wrong direction. I was overruled, and quite a number of the Members of the Senate took the position that it was a step in the right direction.

Mr. President, I also said at that particular time that something should be done in this Senate about the racketeers and stumble bums who inhabit Pennsylvania. If this legislation will corral them or bring them to justice, I, for one, am going to vote for it.

Mr. President, I have listened to the prior speakers and, so help me, I do not know whether they are for or against it, but I, for one, am going to cast my vote in support of this legislation.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)
Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

REASONS FOR VOTE

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I wish to register the reason why I voted against this bill. I think it is very silly to have a bill that makes unlawful the printing of information on horse racing in tip sheets. I think that is what you call them, I am not a follower of the horses. It states that this is illegal if it is done by a separate tip sheet. Well, at the same time we give the right to the newspapers to carry exactly what the tip sheets, I understand, contain in the gambling rooms or the horse rooms. So, I do not see what good it would do because all the gambler would do, it seems to me, would be to cut the tip sheets or the schedule of races and the tips from the newspapers, and take them over to a gambling room and tack them on the wall in place of the tip sheet.

Mr. President, I do not think this bill does anything, but it is just merely turning into a farce because it says if a newspaper does it, it is legal. If someone else does it, it is illegal, and that to me does not sound like good sense.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 875, as follows:

Whereas, The problem of efficiency in government has not kept pace with the efficiency and speed of modern day life; and

Whereas, Not only bureaucracy in administration but duplication, overlapping, high expense and lethargy on the part of individual members having seeped into and overtaken much of the legislative process of this and other states; and

Whereas, It is of great importance to the citizenry of this Commonwealth to install a small, compact legislative body, readily responsive to the calls of duty, economy and efficiency in its work of general supervision of the government of the Commonwealth through the enactment of laws which effect the daily lives of all Pennsylvanians; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the Joint State Government Commission is hereby directed to study the possibility and problems involved in the changing of the Legislature of Pennsylvania from a bicameral to a unicameral body similar to that which is in operation in the State of Nebraska with particular emphasis upon the desirability thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission shall report to the next session of the General Assembly with the results of its finding and its recommendations, together with drafts of necessary legislation and changes embodying such recommendations as it shall make.

By Mr. EWING. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 85.

In the House of Representatives, December 11, 1951.

The pending dispute between the Prudential Life Insurance Company and its field agents can easily result in a lapsing of industrial policies through the convenience and the inability imposed upon policy holders to remit their premiums as they come due.

The technicality of a lapsed policy might bring irreparable loss and serious disaster to many individuals within this category of industrial policy holders; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur) That the House of Representatives advise and request the Prudential Life Insurance Company to declare a moratorium on the payment of all premiums throughout a period of forty-five days or for such an interval of time when the Prudential Life Insurance Company and its agents shall have adjusted their pending controversy with a resultant resumption of an amicable employer-employee relationship.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. GOODLING and GIBSON.

RESOLUTION No. 86.

In the House of Representatives, December 11, 1951.

Whereas, it would be advantageous to incorporate desirable changes and procedures into the Game Code and the Fish Law in order to modernize both in accordance with acceptable practice;

Whereas, it would be fitting to restore the habitat and the environs of game and fish to the natural characteristics of the primeval forest with its undisturbed streams and ponds;

Whereas, it would be desirable to strengthen the enforcement provisions of the Game Code and the Fish Law with the elimination of contradictory factors and the clarification of obscure details; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Joint State Government Commission be authorized to study the said Game Code and the Fish Law and to submit a report on its findings to the end that the aforesaid objectives can be realized.

Referred to Committee on Rules.

RESOLUTION CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. ROBERTSON. Mr. Speaker, looking back on the short time that I have been in this House, I believe one of the first times I got on the floor was to present a resolution on the death of a former Member. Perhaps the Chinese have the proper idea insofar as death is an event of happiness.

But I have here today, Mr. Speaker, an entirely different resolution. It also has to do with a Member, this time a leading Member from the County of Delaware. We have presented resolutions on this floor for birthdays and particularly for additions to the Clendening family. But this time we have an entirely different one which has to do with the dean of the Delaware County delegation.

As this resolution will set forth, we all know the Member of the first district of Delaware County for his amiable actions, his smiling countenance, his amazing attitude toward the ladies. It is often the wonder of the Members of the County of Delaware, and those who know this particular gentleman, how he has stayed so long out of the clutches of the female sex.

Mr. Speaker, it is with a great deal of pleasure that I present a resolution at the present time, due to the fact that the very bald Member from Delaware County has at last been grasped, and ask for its immediate adoption.

Messrs. ROBERTSON, CLENDENING and WILLIAM C. LEONARD offered a resolution which was read, considered and unanimously adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, December 12, 1951.

Shakespeare wrote of a young lord of Padua, a confirmed bachelor, who finally married after a courtship that was a contest of wit and raillery. A more serious-minded young lord, of a less romantic town, in a sterner clime, is about to reach the same end through other procedures.

The Pennsylvania Manual fails to disclose the date of birth of the Member from the First District of Delaware County. It must, therefore, be assumed that he is a very young man; and that his capacity for love of woman is unconfined save by the well recognized perfection of his Emily Post manners in the presence of feminine charm.

For five years this House has known "Lou" and marveled at his shining pate, beneath which deep thoughts and weighty cogitations constantly revolve like the works of a mighty factory producing the words of wisdom that fall from his lips. We deem it incredible that he should ever succumb to the machinations of any one woman—And yet it now seems that we shall soon have with us Bloom the bald benedick; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House, and particularly the preponderantly married membership thereof, welcome a fellow Member into the great fraternity of those who have relinquished a degree of personal freedom to the estate of blessed matrimony. We congratulate Miss Gertrude A. Landow of Philadelphia, his prospective spouse. And wish them both a long and happy life of wedded joy; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be transmitted by the Chief Clerk to each of the principals of the approaching marriage.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Bloom.

Mr. BLOOM. Mr. Speaker, I deeply appreciate the thought that prompted my colleagues in presenting the resolution, and the unanimous approval of the House.

The question has been asked by my colleague, as well as many others, as to why it is that I waited as long as I did before I saw the light of day. I think I can best give the answer by an incident that very recently occurred.

A pastor who lives a short distance from my home called on the phone the other day and said,

"Bloom there is a jackass lying on the grounds of the church and won't you please have him removed?"

I said to him, "Pastor, isn't it customary for the Reverend Clergy to administer the last rights to the deceased?"

He said, "Yes Bloom, but it is also custom to get in touch with his relations first."

Members of the House, as I came into the Halls of this House day after day and year after year and I looked at the smiling and beaming countenances of my colleagues and saw the joy they seemed to have in their hearts, of course, by inquiring I learned it was due to marital blissfulness. I thought the time came when I too should enjoy the greatest gift that God gave to man, a woman.

I am very grateful to you, and I know I speak for my wife to be, Gertrude A. Landow, that she is also honored by the resolution and the thought that motivated it. I hope that some day in the near future she will have the privilege and pleasure of greeting you and expressing to you her deep thanks, as well as mine.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to suggest to Mr. Bloom to take note that he has made his last speech.

PERMISSION GRANTED COMMITTEE TO MEET DURING SESSION

NAYS—1

NOT VOTING—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order.

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of Senate Bill No. 27, entitled:

An Act relating to the loyalty to the United States and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of public officers and employees including teachers and other employees of the public school system and officers and employees of state-aided institutions of learning requiring statements and oaths or affirmations by applicants for public office or employment and by present appointed officers and employees prohibiting appointment or employment and requiring discharges after hearing in certain cases imposing conditions on the payment of appropriations to state-aided institutions of learning requiring statements under oath or affirmation of candidates for elective public offices and imposing duties on state and local appointing authorities and certain other state officers

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, it had been my intention at this time to present a reconsideration resolution. We contemplated a procedure which we believed would make it possible, through a series of reconsideration resolutions to come to a state of mind representing a greater degree of agreement concerning the provisions that should or should not be included in Senate Bill 27, and to create a parliamentary situation which would make it possible to iron out some of the technical inconsistencies that are now apparent in the two sets of amendments that were offered to this measure.

Before offering an amendment I desire to inquire from the Majority Leader what the present disposition of the majority party caucus, if he is at liberty to so inform the House, is regarding the present status of Senate Bill 27. His answer may determine whether or not we offer the reconsideration amendment at this time.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, in answering the gentleman I first of all will have to say to him that we will have to vote down at this time any motion to reconsider this bill.

Mr. ANDREWS. If you had the votes.

Mr. SMITH. If we had the votes, Mr. Speaker.

This would be done, Mr. Speaker, for one reason. We would prefer if it would meet with the approval of the minority that Senate Bill 27 stay on the calendar today status quo.

The reason is this: We know that there is an agreement between some Members on the other side and some on our side to better the bill if possible by amendments. We could not come to a complete agreement on that.

We now have more amendments. We intend to meet with the Minority Leader, or whoever he will pick as his representative or representatives and see if we cannot come to a complete agreement in our thinking on this bill and amend it. It is not a partisan bill, it is a bill that all of us want and we want it in proper form. We hope we can come to a meeting of minds sometime this afternoon, this evening or tomorrow and for that reason we would ask that Senate Bill 27 not be considered at this time.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, in view of the statement made by the Majority Leader to the effect that Senate Bill 27 will remain in status quo for the time being until there has been an opportunity to have a further meeting of minds concerning the changes that should be made in it, we will not at this time offer a reconsideration resolution.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE POSTPONED

Agreeably to order,

The bill having been called up from postponed calendar by Mr. McMILLEN.

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1624, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act approved the twenty-fourth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 2051) entitled "An act relating to public assistance providing for and regulating assistance to certain classes of persons designated and defined as dependent children aged persons blind persons and other persons requiring relief providing for the administration of this act by the Department of Public Assistance and county boards of assistance hereby created for this purpose authorizing the Department of Public Assistance to cooperate with and to accept and disburse moneys received from the United States Government for assistance to such persons providing for the liquidation of the State Emergency Relief Board Boards of Trustees of the Mothers' Assistance Fund and Boards of Trustees of Pension Fund for the Blind and repealing laws relating to mothers' assistance pensions for the blind old age assistance and the State Emergency Relief Board" by further prescribing the powers and duties of the Department of Public Assistance and the local boards further defining "Assistance" and those persons eligible for assistance further prescribing residence requirements with respect to assistance changing the terms of county board members clarifying the provisions with respect to the payment to the United States of its share of moneys received by way of restitution prescribing additional penalties and repealing a certain act

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I rise simply to suggest that the gentleman from Indiana explain the provisions of this bill. He has several bills dealing with relief on the calendar, and I think there is some confusion in the minds of some of the Members as to just what this bill is intended to accomplish. Personally I am in favor of the bill. There may be, however, some Members on this side who, after hearing his explanation, will want to oppose it. Personally I favor the bill.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, this bill is one in a series which were designed to correct some abuses and some weaknesses that are found in the administration of public assistance in Pennsylvania.

This particular bill has several provisions which I think should be pointed out. In the first place the most important thing in the bill is the provision which provides for summary conviction for anyone who is found chiseling on public assistance.

One of the problems we have found in the administration of this assistance program is the long drawn-out procedure which is necessary to secure a conviction after an individual has been found to be a chiseler. Now we must go through the courts where the trial can be prolonged or the arguments set back by the Judge on the trial calendar; and as a result we have a long drawnout period of time when no decision is made, and the chiseling continues. This bill would provide for summary conviction before a Justice of the Peace and dispatches the matter in a very short time.

It also increases the penalty for chiseling and taking money from the public illegally from $500 to $1,000 and the term of imprisonment from six months to a year.

I think there has been enough evidence developed to prove that this bill is necessary. We have discovered in these investigations, men and women—because there seems to be no division in the willingness of people to try to get something for nothing as between the sexes—will not hesitate to lie about the number of children. They will not hesitate to go into collusion with each other in many areas and pass children from one family to the other for the benefit of the investigator.

The whole picture is one that demands immediate attention, and it is thought that this is the one way to correct one of the very vital points, one of the things which needs the most attention.

Another point that would be made on this bill is that in order to effectuate the rules and regulations of the Board here in Harrisburg, or what is sometimes termed "The State Board" or "The Central Board", we are giving the power to them to enforce some of their rules and regulations. As you know now the County Board have more or less local autonomy, local authority. But we must remember that these local boards are spending money which you and I as legislators must come down here and provide and at the present time have little or no control over after we give the money.

There are those who argue that we do not want centralization. I am in accord with that. But if we are not going to have centralization in the control of these funds entirely and wholly by the state, then let us amend the law and put a part of the responsibility for raising the revenue back with the local communities.

I think our duty in this case is clear: either we throw the responsibility for the administration and the raising of the money back the communities or we centralize a little more definitely, clearly and distinctly the authority for the administration and the distribution of the funds. We have to make our choice between those two.

People wonder why we have to approach it from this angle. I think that if any of us will just take time to read the record of the investigation that is going on in Philadelphia, and in other areas; if you will review the abuses that have taken place both on the part of the recipient and the administrators, then you will come to the conclusion that we must do something about the issue.

Mr. Speaker, if there are any questions other than that I will be glad to answer them, but I think that covers the high points of the bill, and is about all I have to say on it.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, while I am personally in favor of this bill I desire to advise the gentleman from Indiana that on a vote we will request that only those Members who are within the Hall of the House be recorded as voting, because there are some absentees who are not in favor of this measure. If the gentleman believes he has 105 votes, I would advise him to pass the bill at this time. If he does not feel that he has 105 votes in the House, I would advise him not to press the bill at this time.

I agree with the purposes of the bill. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, place $130,000,000 and more—sometimes many million dollars more—in the keeping of the Department of Public Assistance. The Department allocates funds to the various counties. The Department must be mindful of the rules and regulations and the statutes we enact; it is the responsibility of the Department of Public Assistance to see to it that its local agents, which are the boards in the various counties, are mindful of the legislative intent that makes possible the original grant of the funds.

If we had had a Department over the years that enforced reasonable rules and regulations, you would not be putting people down in Philadelphia in jail now for being thieves. And you would not have a report from the Joint State Government Commission that pilfering of relief funds runs at the rate of from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 a year. We do not have that amount of money to give away to chiselers, and it is the business of the State Department of Public Assistance and the local board to see to it that chiseling ceases and appeals made on behalf of the deserving poor have no place in this argument.

I close by saying that while I favor the bill, there is some opposition to it, and the gentleman from Indiana must be the judge of his own parliamentary situation.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Cambria for his support and suggestion.

If it is in line with the Chair's thinking, I should appreciate hearing what the other gentlemen have to say in opposition to the bill; and if there is a reasonable amendment that can be offered to correct this situation, then I am for it. But we have got to face the facts, Mr. Speaker, that both Democrats and Republicans are going to have to quit playing politics with money that is intended to keep people. Now, we have to make that decision, too.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I believe that I carried part of the burden for the defeat of this bill at the time it was before the House, and at the time it went down to defeat.

Politics is not being played with this bill. In fact I am interested in the maintenance of the integrity of a board in Allegheny County—the County from which I come—that is from a political standpoint, preponderantly of a party opposite to that to which I belong which has been appointed by a Governor of a political faith other than that from which I have been elected.

I am perfectly satisfied that the administration of the relief laws in Pennsylvania, as they now stand in the hands of a local board in the community from which I come, is safe. I would much rather have that board maintain its integrity and have the amount of discretion that it is now permitted to have under the act, than to have this bill passed in the form that it is and have that board merely be a mouthpiece for carrying out the instructions coming from a centralized board here in Harrisburg.

We hear so much about centralization. The argument always comes from the other side against centralization. Yet here we are endeavoring to centralize a board and centralize all the authorities here in Harrisburg.

These taxes which maintain and keep up the board of assistance, come from the citizens. They come from the citizens of my county, from your county, and from all the other counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. These boards, as you all know, are composed of representative citizens of the communities from which we come, boards that are serving without pay and who have as interest number one, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania so far as funds are concerned, and also who are more capable of knowing the needs of those in their community.

The argument is still the same as it was when this bill was defeated, I believe, by a vote of 58 to 95 back in September, conditions have not changed. If there were removed from this bill the proviso that would take the direction out of the hand of the local boards and put it in the State; if you would take that out and merely increase the penalties for chiselers, then I could go along with this bill. But so long as this bill has tied up with it this proviso that would limit the local county boards and take away the authority insofar as the actions of these local boards are concerned, I cannot go along with the bill.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Indiana briefly.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McMillen, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McMILLEN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I did not quite understand the extent of the jurisdiction of the Squires insofar as the administration of the provisions that you make for increasing penalties are concerned.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I think this question could be resolved if we were to hold this bill up until Mr. Jones and I get together and talk it over, along with Mr. Schmidt, and those Members who have objections. If the bill can be amended to come into line and still accomplish this summary conviction so that we can get immediate settlement of many of these claims, I am not adverse to that. So if it is agreeable with you, Mr. Jones, suppose we hold it over and talk about it.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. It is perfectly agreeable with me, sir.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inform the House that while I signed this Conference Report as one of the conferees on the part of the House, I am opposed to the bill.

The Conference Report seems to be the best bill that could be agreed upon by the conferees, and as you know it has reduced the rate of inheritance tax on collaterals from 20 percent, as was passed by this House, to 15 percent. I stated when the House first acted and passed this bill that I could not go along with it because the rate on charitable gifts by will was being raised above 10 percent.

I was not able to have the Conference Report adopt my thought on this matter of keeping the charitable gifts at 10 percent, and I say this bill is better than it was when it passed the House it is still not satisfactory to me, and I am going to have vote against it for that reason.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I have no objections to accepting the conference report on House Bill 1697, but I believe there are some Members in the House who desire to be recorded as voting "no."

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

On the question,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, we do not accept the Conference Report on House Bill 1698, although I understand there are some Members of the minority on the floor of the House who want to vote for it.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, this is the Conference Report on the tax bill relating to transfers of real estate. I have signed it as a conferee and I intend to vote for it. But I would like to point out that the bill is far from a desirable one in that it fails to recognize what I consider to be certain equities on the part of people who buy and sell real estate, whether it be a home or business property.

For example, it will impose a tax on the full value of a property which A might sell to B, which is already under the lien of a mortgage. So that if the actual money passing is $2,000 on a $10,000 house and there is an $8,000 mortgage on it, which might take the purchaser 10, 12, 15 years to pay off, he will still pay the one percent tax on the full $10,000.

The matter of working that out in a more equitable manner appeared to the conferees to be quite difficult and cumbersome and for that reason, I believe, the decision was made not to give relief to such a purchaser or such a seller.

I intend to vote for it because of the great need for revenue and the revenue which this will raise, but I do not want the record to indicate in any way that I am fully satisfied with all the details of this bill.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I am interested in asking the gentleman what change, if any, has been made in this bill since it was voted upon on final passage in the House?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, since the bill was passed originally in the House the Senate deleted from the bill a provision which would have taxed options to purchase and lease, particularly leases of oil and gas territory. And the reason for the deletion of options to purchase and those leases, it was found that there was such a multitude of ways in which the market value could be computed on various leases, it was so litigation-provoking that it was thought wise to expunge it from the bill.

The next change was made in the effective date when the stamps will be available. The effective date is now February 1, 1952, whereas it was effective immediately.

The next change that was made in the bill as it is now before us, previously the person who made, issued and delivered the instrument was primarily subject to the tax. That is still true in this bill. However, if that person fails to put the tax stamps on, the person who accepts the instrument will have to put them on. That was to get away from the possibility of taking the transaction over into New Jersey and consummating it over there and bringing it over into Pennsylvania tax free.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from McKean also.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Johnson, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHNSON. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask the gentleman whether or not under Section 3 and Section 4 of this bill on pages 5 and 6, it is the intention of this Legislature to impose the primary responsibility for the payment of this tax on the seller of the property and not upon the buyer?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the question I would say that that is true. The intention of the act is that the duty to fix the stamps shall primarily be on he seller. As I read the manner in which the bill is before us now, if the seller fails to put them on, the stamps will have to be affixed by the purchaser in order to record the deed.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, is it your understanding that it is the intent of this Legislature when we pass this bill to require the seller to furnish these stamps and put them on the document before the buyer accepts the deed?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, technically that is correct.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, in other words, when we follow the words under Section 4 that the payment of the tax imposed by this act shall be evidenced by the affixing of a documentary stamp or stamps to every document by the person making, executing, issuing or delivering such document, does that mean to you that that is the person who shall buy the stamps and affix them to the document before giving the document to the buyer?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, that is right. That would be the vendor, the seller, the grantor, the transferee or whatever you want to call him.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

In my own mind there is no doubt what is intended by this act. But as the Members are probably well aware, when there is any reasonable question as to what was intended by this Legislature by a certain enactment, the courts when faced with that problem frequently try to find what the legislative intent was. I say in my opinion this bill clearly imposes the liability upon the seller to buy these stamps and affix them.

However, if the buyer will accept the deed from a seller without having the stamps put on, he also under the terms of this bill becomes liable for the payment of that tax, so that the Commonwealth will get its tax whether the seller pays or whether the buyer pays it.

I have tried to establish the fact that we at least intended this bill to mean that the seller is the one who shall pay this tax.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

On the question,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Mr. BOMBERGER. Mr. Speaker, in House Bill No. 1694, which was a part of the alternate tax package passed by this House, there were several items in the bill which I shall enumerate briefly.

The tax on certain insurance companies had formerly been eight mills on the gross receipts of the insurance companies. This bill which we passed increased that tax by two and a half times, or from eight mills to two percent. Which is one of the largest tax jumps that I have heard of in any state at one time for many years.

After this bill had been passed by the House and was sent to the Senate, it was amended. Incidentally, the bill which we passed called for an effective date of November 1st, 1951. The Senate amended the bill making the tax retroactive to January 1st, 1951, which would mean that all these companies would have to pay a tax two and a half times the amount they formerly paid. They would be told in the last few days of the year 1951 that they would be obliged to pay the tax on their entire gross income for the year 1951.

There were certain insurance companies which from the founding of our State had been exempt from the payment of this particular insurance tax. Those domestic mutuals or the mutual companies which were chartered by the state of Pennsylvania were exempt from all taxation. The amendments which have been written into this bill by the Senate would impose a two percent tax on their gross income. It would not take into consideration any expenses which the companies would have and whether they made or lost money on the underwriting of their business; it would be necessary that they pay the two percent tax on the full amount of premiums collected.

This also would mean that these same companies would have been notified in the later part of December 1951 that a two percent tax would be imposed upon them for the entire year of 1951.

I feel that this is grossly unfair, particularly to the mutual companies, which are non-profit organizations. In the financing of insurance, one of the main things is the setting up of reserves for contingencies.

The only place that this tax money can come from for the year 1951 is from the reserves of the various insurance companies that are affected, and it will substantially reduce the reserve account in their financial statements.

I therefore request the Members of this House to vote "no" on this conference report.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, what printer's number are you looking at at the desk?

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, the Chair has Printer's No. 1118.

Mr. MORAN. I understood the Speaker to say he was using Printer's number 1080.

The SPEAKER. The Chair thanks the gentleman. The Chair recalls having mentioned Printer's Number 1080 and acknowledges the error.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I am not first of all an insurance expert. And I want to emphasize one of the things that the gentleman just said, that this was a substitute or an alternate tax program that was passed to the Senate.

We in the House do not take too much pride in it; we do not take too much pride in this bill. But I cannot emphasize enough—and I certainly have been trying to do it to individual Members and to my own caucus—that we are not voting on tax bills. Please remember that! The tax bills have passed this House. We are voting on Conference Reports on amendments to the tax bills we passed.

Now the mutuals pay no taxes at present to the state of Pennsylvania. They are riding free. They are not responsible for one cent to our general fund.

There has been a lot of misinformation on this bill and on this tax Conference Report. Mis-information from top to bottom. I have a sheet here in front of me that was given out today evidently by representatives of the insurance companies. It is headed "To Members of the Senate and House of Representatives." And it says, "from insurance companies domiciled in Pennsylvania."

I do not know what that means. I called two of the largest insurance companies that are domiciled in Pennsylvania today, and they knew nothing at all about this piece of paper that was given out. I called the Insurance Company of North America and the Fire Insurance Association. I think they have a pretty good reputation and I think they are big insurance companies. They knew nothing about this thing that has been given out.

This piece of paper that was given out by the insurance companies domiciled in Pennsylvania states that this bill imposes a confiscatory tax on at least 17 small Pennsylvania life insurance companies and beneficial associations.

If they had taken the bother and time to read the Conference Report that we are now voting on and that they are trying to kill with this piece of paper, they would see that the beneficial associations have been taken out. They also have two specific examples here where it shows that a mutual life insurance company that earned $11,000 in 1949 would pay $26,000 tax. They do not have a thing on here about dividends. I have checked with our Revenue Department and I checked with other individuals interested in insurance, and they say that anyone that can prove anything by those two examples—they have not included dividends—cannot do it. Maybe the gentleman who wrote this can do it for us. They are not true facts; they are not all of the facts. And they are asking us again to vote against a Conference Report with these things in it.

Another thing they are doing down at No. 4. They say that the tax will probably reach most fraternal and beneficial societies, such as those long operated by the Masonic Order—this bill will affect them. They are not talking about the Conference Report. They say the Eagles will be affected; the Odd Fellows, the pension funds, police and firemen's pension and relief funds, county mutual fire and county casualty companies.

We took out in this Conference Report every one of those things that they mentioned. I am washing my hands of it tonight, and I am placing the brunt of the responsibility on you Members if you vote against this Conference Report.

I want you to know that when you vote against this Conference Report, your Masonic order, the Eagles, the Odd Fellows, the pension funds of police and firemen will be in the bill because we are taking them out in the Conference Report. Now if it makes sense to vote against the Conference Report like that, I don't know how.

I do not say it was a good bill, but I do say this: that this Conference Report makes it a very much better bill than it was when we sent it to the Senate.

Let me assure you of something else: if this Conference Reports falls, the responsibility is on you Members who vote against it. When the Senate passes the tax bill—which they will do without these things taken out—it is your responsibility and not the responsibility of the Member who voted for the Conference Report. Bear that in mind. The Senate will pass this bill as we send it back, and it is not in good shape, it is not a good form. Beneficial societies are in it. We are trying to help them; we are trying to take them out. We are taking the pension funds out. You are voting against every one of those organizations if you vote against this Conference Report.

All I have to say is, think before you vote against it.

Mr. BOMBERGER. Mr. Speaker, it seems by the remarks made by our Majority Leader that there were quite a few corrections made in Conference Committee to House Bill 1694.

I wonder why they overlooked one of the most important features in the bill. Incidentally in my remarks on this bill I believe that I confined my remarks to the amendments which were written into the bill by the Senate. I could have but did not stray afield and tell the Members of this House why this is a much worse bill than our Majority Leader admitted it was.

I cannot conceive why the Conference Committee, if they put as much time and thought on this bill as they claim, overlooked the fact that the Members of this House by agreeing with the Conference Committee would impose a tax first on a group of insurance companies that up until this time had not been taxed; and secondly, increase an existing tax by two and a half times. Finally, passing the bill in the end of December and making it retroactive to January 1st, of that year. This bill will impose a financial difficulty on large and small insurance companies.

As I stated before the financing of an insurance company is a very intricate affair. The two per cent tax on gross receipts, regardless of expenses, is an item that has not been anticipated by any insurance company in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In many cases the companies who derive their premiums from assessments have already levied their assessments for the year 1951 and collected their premium income. Now at the end of the year we notify them that regardless of the fact that the two percent tax on this income was unknown to them at the time they levied their assessment, regardless of that fact, they are forced to pay to the State of Pennsylvania a two percent tax.

That is one of the most unfair features of this bill. As far as I am concerned I would much rather have the report of this Committee on Conference voted down on the basis that the amendments which were put into it in the Senate are a heck of a lot worse than the bill was in its original form.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I am not expressing an opinion for and on behalf of anyone except myself. I do not ask any member of the minority or any member of the majority who may be otherwise committed, to be in any way influenced by my personal attitude. I want that distinctly understood.

There has been a great deal of interest in this bill and in the Conference Report, on both sides of the capitol.

I have no doubt that members of the minority will be much more influenced by counsel from other sources than they will be influenced by anything I say. I am not endeavoring to sever them from their allegiance to any other leadership either inside this Chamber or outside. But as for myself, I desire to be recorded as supporting this conference report.

If in its wisdom the Senate receded from its amendments to the House bill, we would have an intolerable bill. I have been told by persons who want this Conference Report defeated that the Senate would not dare recede from its amendments to the House bill. I have no way of judging the extent of Senatorial daring at this time, or Senatorial muddling, or Senatorial interference in the affairs of this Chamber. But I do desire to support the bill as expressed by the Majority Leader when he said that in the event the Senate should recede from its amendments and hand back to us the bill we handed to the Senate, we would have a bill that would be a hissing and a byword throughout the extent of this Commonwealth.

That is all I have to say, Mr. Speaker. Let everyone in this Chamber be the guardian of his own conscience since only those within this presence will be permitted to vote.

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, I had no intention to make any remarks but inasmuch as a roll call has been ordered, I feel that at this time I should express the reason why I am going to vote in opposition to the Conference Report.

I have in my hand a telegram from Mr. A. H. Burchfield, President of Joseph Horne Company of Pittsburgh—one of the largest Department stores in western Pennsylvania, addressed to me as follows:

"Joseph Horne Company which employs 3,000 employees is strongly opposed to the provisions of House Bill 1694, placing a tax on annuity premiums. We oppose this provision since it is a narrow based tax and since it would greatly increase the cost of our store wide pension plan. I urge you to vote against this bill."

I also have a telegram from the Greater Beneficial Union of Pittsburgh, William T. Funk, Supreme Secretary, wherein he states:

"We kindly request you to defeat House Bill 1694. A tax on fraternal societies would compel us to raise the premiums of all our 50,000 insurance members."

Now, according to the statement that has been made by the Majority Leader to the effect that these provisions have been removed from the bill, in the event that there is non-concurrence on the other side, there would be a situation where you would have a bill with these items in, and the point is later on if we are able to get together and remove them, I would go along with the bill, but as it now stands I feel that I must oppose the Conference Report.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I tried to make the situation as plain as I could in my layman's language to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Schmidt.

I would like to inform him that this Conference Report does everything he is now asking. It takes out annuities, it takes out pension funds, and if we do not adopt it, they will be in the bill. It takes out all beneficial societies, so his people in Pittsburgh should be very happy and send him another telegram to vote for the Conference Report. The bill has them in; the conference report takes them out.

The gentleman has reminded me, Mr. Speaker—as an afterthought—if this conference report goes down, the Senate will be able to vote on the bill with the annuities, the pension funds and the beneficial societies in it.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lancaster who spoke previously.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lancaster, Mr. Bomberger, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BOMBERGER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I am confused by all these complexities of what is in and what is out, and I would like to ask the gentleman whether the provisions, the two percent and also setting up the date, which are contained in this Conference Report, apply to the small mutual companies which typically the farmers of counties like York and Lancaster turn to for their insurance. The kind of companies I mean, I would advise Mr. Bomberger, are the small companies which deal with the farmers in the farming communities.

Mr. BOMBERGER. Mr. Speaker, as the bill is in its present form after taking into consideration the report of the Committee on Conference, the two percent tax would be imposed upon the largest insurance companies in the state as well as the smallest companies operating on the mutual plan who normally sell to the farmers in the rural communities. Two percent tax would be imposed on all the premiums which they collect during the year 1951, and as I pointed out a few minutes ago they have already collected their assessments to cover their expenses for 1951, and this would be an additional burden on all those companies.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I have been informed that these companies are non-profit, and that the only expenditures they make are expenditures for the salaries of their officials, and all other moneys received are used either to pay claims or to put into funds which are set aside for the purpose of paying claims. I would ask the gentleman if that is correct.

Mr. BOMBERGER. Mr. Speaker, that is correct.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

In spite of the fact that the Conference Report would seem to have ameliorated the situation in regard to certain types of mutual insurance, it seems to me that it is a very bad bill as it stands, and I now am in the position of feeling that to accept this Report is to accept a bad bill.

I would like to be advised whether I am wrong in saying that we have no choice beyond either accepting this Report or the bill before the Conference Report. Is it not possible to reject this in toto? I would ask whoever is available to advise me about that.

Mr. SMITH. I do not know if I can answer the gentleman completely, but before I try I would like to say that this two percent would be taken out of the dividends at the end of the year, so if they had been assessed prior to this time, it would not do too much harm. A company would not be broke, as has been so represented, because they do have the right of levying special assessments, if need be.

We are now voting on the Conference Report. If that Report is rejected the bill will then be in its present form. It has not been altered in any respect so far as the two percent on mutuals is concerned, and the bill would then be back in the Senate, and they could vote on it again as it was sent over to them. We are not in any sense talking about the two percent in this Conference Report.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, a former implication that I think the Majority Leader made seemed to indicate that we had only one choice—either we are to vote for the Conference Report or for the bill as it was before the Conference Report. Now my question is: is it possible to vote against this bill with the outcome that we do not have a bill at all, is that possible at this point?

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I would say that we do not—that it is not possible, because we are voting on the Conference Report at this time, and when we turn that down, the bill will then be in the hands of the Senate if we non-concur.

Mr. SEYLER. Mr. Speaker, if we non-concur, am I right that it goes back to the Senate but it does not become law?

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, it does not become law until the Senate recedes from its amendments and then votes on it.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. READINGER. Mr. Speaker, is the House required to vote on this Conference Report prior to the Senate's taking action on the same report?

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, a Conference Committee having been appointed on a House bill, the House is required to act first on the report of the Committee of Conference.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, for the information of the House, would the Majority Leader please take the last House reprint of this bill and compare it with the Conference Committee report for the purpose of showing specifically the changes between the Conference Report and the original bill as sent to the Senate?

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, I will have to get a reprint. Do you happen to have one? What is the Printer's number, Mr. Andrews.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, this is a Senate reprint. I do not know what the Printer's No. of the bill was as it left the House.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. Speaker, not being a Member of the Conference Committee, I will yield to Mr. Johnson, who was a member of that Committee, because he is far more familiar with it than I am.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I would rather from my memory, which I believe will be substantially correct, explain the insurance bill as it left the House and went to the Senate.

I believe on third reading the bill was amended, adding annuity considerations to the bill in the House. So when the bill went over to the Senate the annuity considerations were in the bill. However, as I understand, the annuity considerations were added in another portion of the bill to make it plainer. I was informed that was to take in the foreign companies having annuity considerations in this state.

The Senate also clarified an exemption from the tax on gross premiums, considering that when the mutual company received a note—a so called premium note, that would be excluded from computing their gross premium tax, to the extent that a premium had not been assessed on the premium note, as I read the amendment.

When the bill went to the Senate a stock insurance company, as a credit against the tax, would deduct the amount of taxes that they paid on their capital stock or on their net income. We having raised the percentage to two percent, it was necessary to write in the amendment that the credit would be limited to 60 percent of what they paid for capital stock and corporate net income so that credit for the tax on the premiums which they had been paying would be preserved. That is the reason for the 60 percent clause which is now in the bill.

If the bill goes back to the Senate and they recede from their amendments, as the Majority Leader has stated, beneficial societies will be taxed; pension funds, particularly those of Pennsylvania companies, will be taxed in full.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. JOHNSON. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, first of all what Printer's No. are you using—977?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, in relating to the gentleman how the bill left the House of Representatives, I am not using that particular bill. I am reporting it from my memory, which I believe is substantially correct.

Mr. ANDREWS. A further question, Mr. Speaker?

Will the gentleman from the last Printer's No. of the bill as it left the House, tell the House on what page beneficial associations are covered in the bill?

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I now have a copy of the bill, Printer's No. 977. I believe the gentleman's question was on what page of the bill will you find included beneficial associations or other organizations as mentioned by the Majority Leader? Mr. Speaker, by way of explanation, I would say, if you will recall the tax program which we devised in the House as a substitute for the income tax, under one heading we had the elimination of exclusions.

In the bill, Section 24, page 2, the law previously was that it was the duty of the president of every insurance company incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth—it formerly said "except life insurance companies and companies doing business upon the mutual plan without any capital stock and purely mutual beneficial associations," and so forth. In other words, as the law was previously written without the brackets in the bill, purely mutual beneficial associations were exempted from the act, and there was no report required from the president of the company. So when the bill went to the Senate we had brackets around the old laws which removed the exemptions of purely mutual beneficial associations. The brackets took them out of the exemption class and, therefore, would have made them subject to the act in that they were not excluded any longer from the bill.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, that answers the question, as the Members of the House who care to resort to the bill and read it for themselves can see. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. BOMBERGER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to try to throw some light on one impression which seems to be prevalent in the House. It seems that some of our Members feel there are two things which can happen with this Conference Committee Report: One, that we adopt it. Two, that if the Conference Committee report is rejected it automatically goes to the Senate. The Senate will not insist upon their amendments and will automatically enact this bill into law. That may be the impression of some Members of the House. Personally, my impression is that if we defeat this Conference Committee report the bill is just what it should be—a dead duck.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, should the report of the Committee of Conference not be adopted, the question will immediately recur on the amendments made by the Senate.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett, rise?

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, if what you just said is the fact, would we have another Conference Committee appointed?

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Lovett, the bill will be returned to the Senate, with the action of the House on concurrence in the amendments of the Senate, or insisting on its non-concurrence in the amendments of the Senate.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, and if it insists on its non-concurrence, do we then appoint another Conference Committee?

The SPEAKER. The House would then await the action of the Senate. The Senate would have the option of receding from its amendments non-concurred in by the House, or request the appointment of another Conference Committee.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, and if they receded, what would happen?

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, if the Senate recedes from its amendments non-concurred in by the House, the bill as passed by the House would be sent to the Governor for approval.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, without a vote of the Senate?

The SPEAKER. The vote of the Senate would be on its receding from its amendments.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker and not on the bill?

The SPEAKER. The vote would then, should the Senate recede from its amendments, be on the bill as passed by the House unamended by the Senate.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, unamended by the Senate, but there would have to be a vote of the Senate on that particular bill?

The SPEAKER. On the question of the amendments, would be the only vote submitted to the Senate.

Mr. LOVETT. I am still a little confused, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. If the gentleman desires to state another question of parliamentary inquiry, he is permitted to do so.

Mr. LOVETT. I would like to know from the Speaker, the House without the amendments which were put in if the Senate recedes from its amendments, does the Senate then vote on the original bill that was sent from by the Senate?

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, it is the opinion of the Chair that the vote of the Senate on receding from its amendments would be a constitutional vote which would constitute final passage of the bill in its original form as received from the House of Representatives.

Mr. LOVETT. Then, Mr. Speaker, may I ask this question: am I right in my thinking when I say then that the Senate of Pennsylvania has let a bill become law that they have really and truly voted upon?

The SPEAKER. The Chair is not of that opinion, for the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, if there is anyone who can clear it in my mind—the Senate has never voted upon the bill which we passed in the House.

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, the Senate has passed finally the bill received from the House, passed by the House with amendments. A vote of the Senate to recede from its amendments will leave the bill passed finally without amendments. A constitutional vote by the Senate to recede from its amendments will be required.

Mr. LOVETT. Mr. Speaker, then they will never recede; they will insist upon their amendments.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee of Conference?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays taken and were as follows:

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section 205 of the act approved the ninth day of April one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine (P. L. 177) entitled "An act providing for and reorganizing the conduct of the executive and administrative work of the Commonwealth by the Executive Department thereof and the administrative departments boards commissions and officers thereof including the boards of trustees of State Normal Schools or Teachers Colleges abolishing creating reorganizing or authorizing the reorganization of certain administrative departments boards and commissions defining the powers and duties of the Governor and other executive and administrative officers and of the several administrative departments boards commissions and officers fixing the salaries of the Governor Lieutenant Governor and certain other executive and administrative officers providing for the appointment of certain administrative officers and of all deputies and other assistants and employes in certain departments boards and commissions and prescribing the manner in which the number and compensation of the deputies and all other assistants and employes of certain departments boards and commissions shall be determined" as last amended by the acts approved the twenty-eighth day of April one thousand nine hundred forty-nine (P. L. 776) and the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred forty-nine (P. L. 1438) is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 205 Pennsylvania State Police The Pennsylvania State Police shall consist of a Commissioner a Deputy Commissioner the State police force and the State Highway Patrol as now authorized by law which are hereby consolidated into one force to be known as the State Police Force and such chiefs statisticians clerks experts and other assistants as the commissioner with the approval of the Governor shall deem necessary for the work of the force

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want my remarks to be construed as in opposition to the purpose of this act, but I do want to call attention to the fact that here we are increasing the salary of the Deputy Commissioner of the State Police while out in the field we have hundreds of State Troopers who receive as little as $240.00 a month. With all the increases that have been given in every other field of governmental service, the State Patrolmen of Pennsylvania are not being paid on a par. I think it is a sad commentary that we vote here today on increasing the salary of the Deputy Commissioner, and although we are probably unanimously in favor of it, I feel that this bill ought to include an increase in the salaries of the State Police themselves.

Mr. President, I do not think that we ought to leave this Session of the Legislature without enacting legislation along those lines, and as far as I am concerned I will not vote for an increase to the Deputy Commissioner unless it has attached to it an agreement or rider that the State Police themselves out in the field will receive a salary increase.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I just want to add to the remarks of the gentleman from Westmoreland.

Frankly, Mr. President, I do not think legislation is necessary to increase the salary of the Deputy Commissioner. I think that can be done by the head of the department, but there is just one bad feature about a special act to increase the salary of a deputy. We have deputies in every department, board and commission in the State Government, and if you approve a bill to increase the salary of one deputy, you are going to find every other deputy in the various agencies of the State Government making a similar request and justly so. If they do it for one, there is no reason why it should not be done for the rest of them.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am very sorry that our distinguished colleague from Armstrong, who is the sponsor of the bill, is not on the floor at the moment. I will, to the best of my somewhat limited ability, try to explain to the gentlemen of the Senate that, as I understand the statute that is now before us for action, Senate Bill No. 811, the salaries of the various members of the Cabinet and their deputies were approved by the General Assembly at a prior date. Inadvertently, the Deputy in the Pennsylvania State Police Department was not included in that, and that is the reason for a separate statute being necessary. It is merely putting this deputy on a par with the other deputies in the other departments.

Mr. President, I agree partially with the statement made by the gentleman from Westmoreland. I am very hopeful that legislation increasing the salaries of the men in the ranks will also be presented to us for action, because I think that is fundamentally necessary. As I understand the modus operandi, to directly answer one of the problems raised by the gentleman from Westmoreland, it would take separate legislation and not an amendment to this particular phase of the code which is before us.

Mr. President, I am very hopeful that the General Assembly will recognize or evidence recognition of the very fine service which has been performed for Pennsylvania and its ten million citizens by this corporation known as the Pennsylvania State Police. However, the two matters are not germane to the same piece of legislation, and that is why they must be considered separately.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I may have been a little hasty in my quick perusal of the act. I listened carefully to the gentleman from Allegheny and I examined the record, as it were, and I find that his position is correct. This is a bill which cannot be amended to increase the salaries of the men in the field or the State Patrolmen, and I want to say that it would be unfair for me to mislead any Member of this Senate and have them vote against this particular bill unless they are opposed to the increase, in the hope that by so doing they might be able to increase the salaries of the patrolmen.

Therefore, Mr. President, I will recede from the position which I stated, that I would not vote unless such an amendment were added. I will vote for this bill because I am not opposed to raising the salary of this deputy to a level with all the other deputies in the State. I would say to the Senate that a bill was introduced, and is now in committee, which gives a fifteen per cent cost of living increase to the State Patrolmen of Pennsylvania. If we are sincere and honest, I would suggest that we take a recess in a very short time from now, after we have reached that stage in the Calendar that we can take the time, that the committee holding that bill call a meeting, and let us get that bill on the Calendar and be fair to the men who have to do a great deal of the physical work.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I appreciate very much what the gentleman from Westmoreland has just said, and I want to assure him that most of us on the floor of the Senate still have a firm, deep appreciation of the sincerity and the honesty of the membership involved. I assure him it is our desire also, as I have said previously, to see to it that the men in the ranks also receive recognition for their meritorious service.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I do not want to be misunderstood. I do not oppose this legislation. However, I have noticed that the trend seems to be here that we raise the salaries of those in the higher income bracket, and yet we just toy with the idea of raising the salaries of those that are in the field.

Mr. President, to keep the record straight, I think there have been two bills introduced providing for salary raisers for the rank and file of the Pennsylvania State Police. The other day Senator McMenamin and myself sponsored a bill to that effect, and I say to the Membership of the committee, I think it is in the State Government Committee, that they should give this bill their serious consideration. If they do not want to pass a bill with Democratic sponsors, let the Republican side sponsor the legislation, because what we want to do, and I believe all of us will agree, is preserve the integrity of our Pennsylvania State Police. We want to give them an adequate salary so that they can live decently like the rest of the population of this State. At the present time they are under-paid, they are doing a tremendous job, they are doing a wonderful job, and if we do not pass legislation to help the rank and file, we are certainly derelict in our duty.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

COMMUNICATION IN RE. SENATE
RESOLUTION SERIAL No. 99

The CHAIR cleared his table and laid before the Senate the following communication from the Office of the Actuary, Department of State, State Employees' Retirement Board, dated December 3, 1951, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
STATE EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT BOARD HARRISBURG

Office of the Actuary

December 3, 1951

Honorable Lloyd H. Wood, Lieutenant Governor
President of the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

Dear Sir:

My attention has been called to the Senate Resolution designated as Serial No. 99, adopted September 26, 1951 as it appears on page 232 of the History of Senate Bills and Resolutions for October 1, 1951. This resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, A group of Senate Bills Nos. 854 to 862, (Printer's Nos. 592 to 600), appear on the Senate Calendar for action, and the Members of the Senate desire more complete information as to the effect on the various Retirement Funds.

Whereas, It would be unwise to pass upon this group of bills without full knowledge of the facts pertinent to their effect on the affected retirement funds, particularly with respect to the resultant additional costs to the State system; now therefore be it

Resolved, (by the Senate), That the actuary for the State Employees' Retirement System shall study Senate Bills Nos. 854 to 862 (Printer's Nos. 592 to 600), with a view to presenting to the Senate a concise statement of the effect of each and all of such bills, if enacted into law, upon various Employees' Retirement Systems with especial emphasis upon the added financial burden thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That such report shall be presented to the Senate not later than December 10, 1951."

In compliance with this resolution I have studied Senate Bills No. 854 to No. 862 (Printer's Nos. 592 to 600) and submit the following statement to your honorable body:

The purpose of these bills is to correct a situation which exists under the several public employees' retirement systems which have been established and are being administered throughout the Commonwealth. This situation often results to the disadvantage of employees in public service who transfer from State service to that of a political subdivision of the Commonwealth (referred to hereafter as municipality,) or who transfer from municipal service to State service.

For example, Senate Bill No. 855 amends the act under which cities of the second class are providing pensions for their employees so that it would be possible for the pension board of such a city to give every covered city employee credit for each year of service rendered by such employee as a State employee for which credit had not previously been allowed. The bill also amends the State Employees' Retirement Act so that conversely the State Employees' Retirement Board could give credit under the State system to a former city employee for such years of service as were rendered to the city for which credit had not already been allowed.

In order to secure credit for this service, the employee of the city must have made contributions to the State Employees' Retirement Fund during his previous State service for which credit is sought, and there must be paid into the city pension fund in instalments or in a lump sum an amount equalling his contributions to the State Employees' Retirement Fund plus any accrued interest. The State Board is required to transfer to the city pension fund an amount equalling the contributions made by the State to the account of the member during such State service.

The converse of the above is provided under the bill; namely, that an employee of the State who is a member of the State Employees' Retirement System, in order to get credit under the State system for former city service must make written application for such credit to the State Employees' Retirement Board, with the city Board of Pensions certifying the number of years for which he made contributions and for which contributions were made by the city to the city's pension fund and the total amount of such contributions plus accrued interest at the time of his withdrawal.

In addition to the above, the Board of Pensions of the city is to transfer to the State Employees' Retirement Fund, an amount equalling the contributions made by the city to the account of the member during such years of service and the amount, if any, of accumulated deductions, plus accrued interest, left by such employee in the fund.

I do not know why the bill differentiates between the basis of payments by the employee member of the State Employees' Retirement Fund to the city pension fund and the basis of the transfers from the city fund to the State fund. It is to be noted, however, that section 11.1 provides that the State Employees' Retirement Board is to transfer to the city pension fund an amount equalling the contributions made by the State to the Fund on account of the member but that the amount paid in by the member during his service to the State plus any accrued interest is to be paid in a lump sum or in instalments presumably by the employee. On the other hand, the Board of Pensions of the city is to transfer an amount equivalent to the city's contribution on account of the member and the amount, if any, of the accumulated deductions plus accrued interest left in the fund by the member.

In view of the fact that some of these employees may have drawn out some or all of their accumulated contributions when they left city service, the transfer to the State Employees' Retirement Fund from the city fund would be short by such amount. On the other hand, the payment to the city fund is the full amount of the contributions of the member with the accrued interest, whether or not the full contributions of the member remained in the State fund.

Senate Bill No. 854 is similar to No. 855 in its provisions but relates to the employees of counties of the Second Class.

Senate Bill No. 856 is similar in its provisions to No.

855 but relates to the employees of counties of the Third Class.

Senate Bill No. 857 is similar in its provisions to No. 855 but relates to employees of counties of the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Classes.

Senate Bill No. 858 is similar in its provisions to No. 855 but relates to employees of counties of the Fourth Class.

Senate Bill No. 860 is similar in its provisions to No. 855 but relates to employees of cities of the Third Class.

Senate Bill No. 862 is similar in its provisions to No. 855 but relates to employees of cities of the First Class.

Senate Bill No. 859 amends the State Employees' Retirement Act so that the Retirement Board could give credit to a State employee, who is a member of the State system, for years of service as an employee of a municipality and conversely credit could be given by a municipality for State service, if the provisions are complied with as to the proper certification of service years and the transfer of employer contributions and the payment of employee contributions with accrued interest. This bill is in conflict with the provisions of the other bills in that it completely reverses the provisions relating to the payments of employee contributions, since it requires the payment of the full employee contributions and the accrued interest into the State fund in the case of a former employee of a municipality and only the balance, if any, left by the employee paid into the municipal pension fund by a former State employee.

Senate Bill No. 861 is similar in its provisions to No. 855 but relates to transfers between the State Employees' Retirement Fund and the Municipal Employees' Retirement Fund related to employees who had served in municipalities before entering State service or in State service before entering the service of a municipality.

The provisions of the several acts governing retirement systems for employees of the State; the cities of various classes; the counties of various classes, as well as members of the several police forces vary so greatly in their provisions as to contributions and the amounts and kinds of benefits that it is difficult to see how equitable results could accrue from the provisions of these bills. The contributions to one pension fund related to the service of a covered employee may well be wholly inadequate to cover the cost of the benefits accruing to such member in the retirement system under which he is now covered. This is particularly true as to employees who are now in State service but with the records of previous service to the municipalities. For instance the pension credit for a year of service under the State system is more liberal than in the case of some of the county systems. Consequently, if a State employee is to get credit for years of service to such a county, the amount of the contributions transferred by the county system would be wholly inadequate and therefore a financial load would be thrust on the State to make up the difference.

The same would be true in transfers from the Municipal Employees' Retirement Fund to the State Employees' Retirement Fund, for the reason that the pension credit under the State system is greater per year of service than under the Municipal Employees' Retirement System and the superannuation retirement age under the State system is five years earlier, sixty as against sixty-five which adds materially to the cost.

It would appear to me that there are other serious defects in this legislation. For example, I have in mind the case of a man who served many years under a county system and has retired under the provisions of the act governing that system and is enjoying a superannuation retirement allowance. He is now engaged in State service. Could he receive credit from the State for the service to the county and retain his county superannuation retirement allowance?

Again, since the transfer of an individual appears to be optional with the individual and not obligatory each one can choose the course deemed to be most advantageous to him and therefore most costly to the system to which the transfer is made.

In this legislation no distinction is made between employees of a retirement system as to whether they are original members or new members of the retirement system in which they are carrying membership or from which they have transferred.

Furthermore, when reference is made to the transfer of contributions of the employer no distinction is made between contributions related to the current service of new members or original members and to the past service of original members. For example, in the counties of the Third to the Sixth classes contributions are made each year to cover the cost of county pension credits related to current years of service. But additional contributions are made to cover the cost of pension credits related to past service and here the county assumes the employee share as well as the county share of such past service pension credits all to be financed over a period of years not to exceed fifteen. Some of the counties are well on towards funding these past service credits; that is, ten or more years, while others have only just started and only a small portion of their past service cost is funded. Are these past service contributions to be transferred as well as those related to current or future service regardless of the extent to which the costs have been completely funded or whether the employee gets double or single pension credit under the system to which he has transferred?

Conclusions

Regardless of the merit of the intent of these bills, I submit the following:

1. The bills do not take into account the wide variations in the required contributions of the employees and their employer organizations nor the conditions under which benefits are payable and the amounts of such benefits.

2. Because of item (1), where credit is given for years of service in a prior system, to a member now covered under a more liberal system, the cost to the latter system would be much greater than the contributions transferred from the prior system thereby creating an additional financial obligation.

3. Because the State system is more liberal in its provisions than many other systems in the State including the Municipal Employees' Retirement Fund, any credits allowed by the State for service to a political subdivision would impose obligations on the State which might well require substantial appropriations by succeeding General Assemblies.

4. To ascertain with any degree of accuracy the potential financial load on the State, if these bills were enacted into law, a canvass would have to be made of all State employees to determine what previous service each one had that would be covered under any one of these bills and also whether the employee would avail himself of the privilege if granted, and then have calculations made as to the excess cost of financing these pension credits over the amounts expected to be transferred from the prior fund.

5. A similar excess cost would be imposed upon any municipal retirement fund that gave pension credits for the additional service greater in value than those provided for through the transferred contributions to the former fund.

6. To ascertain the additional financial obligations under item (5) would require canvasses similar to those outlined in item (4).

7. The State may well be discriminated against in the payments by the members as noted in this memorandum and there are conflicting provisions as to the amounts of such payments required of the members.

8. No distinction is made in these bills between memberships classed as original or new in either the original retirement system or the one to which a transfer has been made; or to the differences between benefits related to prior or current service or the contributions which may have been made which were related to past or current service of either system involved. This is important in that there are wide variations in the amount of funding which has been done in the various systems.

9. Some of the retirement systems are so financed that employer contributions are made in amounts sufficient only to meet current pension payments and they might well take the position that they had no contributions related to active members to transfer thus involving loss to the retirement system in which service credit had been obtained.

10. It would seem to be much more equitable to make provision so that the superannuation retirement equities which had accrued to a member in a given retirement system would remain to his credit when transferring to another retirement system, provided the transferee left his entire accumulated contributions in the system in which he formerly carried membership. Such equities are commonly referred to as deferred annuity credits. The ultimate retirement allowances would thus come to the retired employee from the two or more sources.

11. Steps should be taken to harmonize in every way possible the contributions required and the benefits provided in the various retirement systems in existence throughout the Commonwealth.

Respectfully submitted,
GEORGE A. HUGGINS, Actuary
State Employees' Retirement System

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I suppose it is common knowledge by now that we on this side of the house who have fought both within Philadelphia and outside of Philadelphia for decent government in the city of Philadelphia—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, will state his point of order.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the only thing in order now is the offering of amendments to Section 1 and not discussion of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, is well taken.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am preliminarily discussing the merits of Section 1, and in order to do so, and before offering my amendments, I want to give the Senate the benefit of the background behind the whole bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am about to offer amendments to Section 1 of Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675, and before doing so, for whatever it may be worth, I would like to point out to the Members of the Senate, and particularly to the Members of the Senate on the other side of the aisle, that the passage of this bill will be a deathblow to the hopes and the desires of the majority of the two million people of the city of Philadelphia. I would like to repeat and remind the Members of the Senate that for a period of almost twenty-eight years hundreds of groups in the city and thousands upon thousands of people have been working diligently to make Philadelphia the kind of a city we know it can be.

Mr. President, way back in 1923, the people of this Commonwealth, recognizing the problem of the cities of our State, adopted a constitutional amendment which would permit home rule by any of the cities of this Commonwealth. It took twenty-six years of effort, and God knows how many years of work, to reach the point where this Legislature would agree to permit the city of Philadelphia to have home rule and adopt its own charter. During all those many years, these groups and these people realized that Philadelphia had a problem which was peculiar to Philadelphia itself as compared to any of the other political subdivisions in the entire State. The city of Philadelphia and the county of Philadelphia were one and the same. There were no boroughs, there were no townships. The citizens of the city of Philadelphia, all of the citizens of the city of Philadelphia, were citizens of the county of Philadelphia. All of the residents of the city of Philadelphia were residents of the county of Philadelphia. Unfortunately, this dual kind of government, one of which partially stemmed from Harrisburg and the other of which stemmed from Harrisburg altogether, made it very difficult for the kind of centralized control which any city should have in an effort to run it economically, efficiently and decently. The city itself existed on the basis of a charter which was a legislative mandate, the last one of which took place in 1919, and the city council in the city of Philadelphia could operate only in accordance with the powers granted to it by that charter. The city council of the city and the people of the city were subject to those changes which this Legislature would decide to enact everytime it met in amending that very same charter.

Mr. President, all of the decent citizens of the city of Philadelphia, and all the civic-minded groups in the city of Philadelphia, and all the press in the city of Philadelphia and everybody but the Republican organization of the city of Philadelphia, recognized this problem. Unfortunately, nothing could be done because this Legislature, Republican dominated as it was in every Session, took its dictation from the leaders of the Republican Party in the city of Philadelphia. As a result, it was bad for its citizens, for its residents, for its business. This developed to a point, as I know and you gentlemen know, where it became commonly known as the "Philadelphia Story," and I have watched many of my colleagues on the other side of this aisle over the years sneer, and rightfully so, every time the "Philadelphia Story" was dragged out on public display either in this chamber or in the chamber of the lower house.

Mr. President, this did not deter decent, civic-minded organizations, this did not deter the thousands of decent Philadelphians who were sincerely interested in giving Philadelphia a place in the sun. Notwithstanding their inability to obtain home rule, and notwithstanding their inability to obtain a city-county consolidation amendment, they came to this Legislature every two years, Session after Session, with plans for a new city charter which they asked the Legislature to adopt. Session after Session, notwithstanding the complimentary comments of the Republican Members of this Body who did not reside in Philadelphia, and who appreciated the problem and who for their own communities wanted nothing but the best kind of government, Session after Session, unfortunately, they knuckled down to the demands and the dictates of that small click which was in control of the Republican organization of the city of Philadelphia, that same click which caused its downfall on last November 6 in the city of Philadelphia.

I repeat, Mr. President, that these groups were not deterred and they multiplied. Many organizations grew up and their sole purpose was to obtain home rule for the city of Philadelphia. More thousands upon thousands of citizens of the city of Philadelphia joined in the crusade. It reached a point where the citizens realized that the only way in which they could begin to get it, and hope to get it, was at the ballot box.

Mr. President, in 1949, after twenty-six years of effort, more than a quarter of a century, the Republican leaders of the city of Philadelphia, beginning to see the handwriting on the wall, decided that they better pass an act which would, at least, make it appear as if the citizens of the city of Philadelphia would obtain home rule without further interference from this Legislature. With a few exceptions, one a serious one and I will refer to it later, this Legislature, after many changes were made by the sponsor of the measure, finally passed a home rule bill. Now, you gentlemen may wonder why we were so anxious to obtain such a bill for the city of Philadelphia. I will try to explain it as simply as I know how.

Mr. President, I explained to you that we had a dual government in the city. We had the city government and we had the county government. However, our tax-raising body was part of the city government, and had no say at all in how the county offices were operated. They had no say at all as to the number of employees, they had no say at all as to the amount of money these departments should spend, as to the type of individual that could be hired, as to their qualifications. There was a reckless disregard of ability to do the particular job, and it seemed like everybody in the city of Philadelphia recognized that except the organization in control of city hall. Every newspaper in the city recognized it, fought the battle, wrote about it, but still the group in city hall was adamant. Every Member of this Senate, and I will include those from Philadelphia, knew about it and yet when these groups came and pleaded, when we on this side of the house pleaded, you looked at us, you sympathized with us, you thought that it was an awful thing, you felt that it was a rotten thing, you said that you could not begin to permit the communities back in your own counties to operate that way, but at the crucial moment the sledge hammer was brought out. You gentlemen shrugged your shoulders and you had to go along. Mr. President, I say to my colleagues that I can appreciate their position but there comes a time when the limit is reached, and I thought that limit had been reached.

Mr. President, these groups then in 1949 pleaded, cajoled, and with the assistance of the radio, with the assistance of the press, with the assistance of the Governor, were finally able to initiate the beginning of a program for the city of Philadelphia. Now, what kind of a program was that? That program was basically one which would give us home rule, which would give our tax levying body the right to determine how many people should be employed, how many people were needed, how much money could be raised, how much money could be spent, so that when this Legislature met every two years they would not have to come running, hat in hand, pleading for another change in the charter, for another amendment. The plan envisaged that there would be home rule and that the county government would be merged with the city.

Mr. President, I think every Member of the Senate knows what I mean when I refer to county government. Every Member of this Senate knows that even in his own county he has a sheriff, a recorder of deeds, a prothonotary, a coroner, a register of wills, a treasurer, a controller, a clerk of quarter sessions court, perhaps a board of revision of taxes—I do not know whether that is true in other counties—and county commissioners. These are the offices I am referring to when I talk about county government. You have almost all of those offices in your own counties and yet, Mr. President, over the years the city had to pay the bills for the operation of every one of those offices and had not a word to say about how many employees they should have, what duties they should perform, how much they could spend. This was the serious problem which confronted all of us in the operation of the city of Philadelphia, and when I say all of us, Mr. President, I am talking about practically everyone except the few men who were in control of the people, who had a strangle hold on the city by their control of the city hall government.

Mr. President, this then was a double problem and it required a double remedy, and this Legislature in 1949, after a great deal of pressure, finally began to supply that remedy. We were given a home rule act and on its way was started an amendment which would permit the consolidation of the county offices referred to with the city, so that finally our tax levying body would know, when it started a fiscal year, how much money it would have to spend and it could arrange to have it spent accordingly. Mr. President, we were glad to get that home rule bill, even though it was not quite all conclusive.

Mr. President, we have had quite a problem in the city of Philadelphia for a good many years with our Board of Revision of Taxes. It was an arm all by itself and had to answer to no one, and try as we might, when that home rule bill was on its way through this Legislature, we were met with shaking heads and were told that you will take this or you will get nothing. You know we took that bill. That bill called for the appointment of a new City Charter Commission, a bipartisan commission. The Mayor of the city of Philadelphia, who was a Republican, I believe, appointed ten members to that commission. The President of the City Council of Philadelphia, who was a Republican, appointed five men to that commission and notwithstanding the fact that for many many years these groups had come to this body with new charter after new charter, with new plans after new plans, suggesting a streamlined city government, notwithstanding that fact, this charter commission, made up a reputable men in the city of Philadelphia, took eighteen months to prepare and submit to council and to the voters a new charter for the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, these men worked not only by themselves, but there was organized in the city of Philadelphia a Citizens Charter Committee, made up of five hundred fifty-eight different organizations in the city of Philadelphia. There developed out of that activity a group known as the Greater Philadelphia Movement, which was the coordinating body for most of the large civic groups in the city of Philadelphia. Panels were arranged, discussions were held, there were hundreds and hundreds of meetings, and after eighteen months a new charter was passed. That, Mr. President, was the first part of the job. There was still the problem of the county government setup which we had to absorb into our city government. Drafters of this charter envisaged eventually the passage of a city-county consolidation amendment, and in the preparation of their charter they provided, in the event there were any constitutional changes which would add additional duties to the government of the city of Philadelphia, the mayor of the city and the city council of the city could integrate those functions into the city government.

Mr. President, the charter passed in April of 1951. In November of 1951, the city-county consolidation amendment passed, and we, all of us in the city of Philadelphia, felt that we had finally achieved almost everything which we had fought for since 1923.

Mr. President, about ten days ago there was introduced into this body the bill which is now before this Senate. In the past—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I understood that the gentleman arose to present an amendment to this bill. May I suggest to the gentleman that he present his amendment and then he will be given the widest latitude in discussing it.

Mr. President, I have a faint impression that the gentleman is discussing or debating the bill on Second Reading. I would suggest that the gentleman present his amendment and then discuss it.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I will be guided by the ruling of the Chair. I am not debating the bill, I am giving the Senate the benefit of the history of this whole problem.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has allowed, as you know, a wide latitude on this point, but the point of order is well taken, Senator Rosenfeld.

Mr. ROSENFELD. If the Chair wishes, I will offer the amendment and continue my discussion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We will be in better order if you do that, Senator Rosenfeld.

Mr. ROSENFELD offered the following amendment:

Amend Section 1, Page 3 by adding a new subsection "c" between lines 9 and 10 to read as follows "(c) A bipartisan commission of ten persons shall be created, five of whom shall be appointed by the Governor and five by the Mayor elected at the 1951 Municipal election. The Commission is empowered to consider and report to the City Council its recommendations for the integration into the provisions of the Philadelphia Home Rule Charter of the office and duties of certain former county officers as herein provided."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Rosenfeld, would you like to have us act on the whole amendment as presented or just Section 1?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to state that the title would have to be amended to cover Section 1, and that is why you find notations with regard to the title on there.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I did not understand it that way. Would the gentlemen from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, like to have the Senate act on the amendment to the title as well?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Just the amendment to Section 1, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would ask my colleagues to vote the amendment down.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I understood that I was going to be permitted to finish my discussion of this amendment.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I beg the Chair's pardon. I thought the Chair asked him if he wanted to have us act on it, and he said yes.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President I think the Chair made it clear to the Majority Leader that the amendment contained an amendment to the title, and the Clerk only read the amendment to Section 1.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia is correct. The gentleman may proceed.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, the passage of the city-county consolidation amendment, after the adoption of the new City Charter, gave rise to a tremendous feeling of good within the minds and the hearts of all of the good citizens of the city who had worked all these years to accomplish it. They envisaged finally that we, in the city of Philadelphia, would be the bosses of our own destiny. We who raised the taxes to pay for our city government would no longer have to depend upon the Legislature at Harrisburg for our day to day operation. About ten days ago, the bill which is now before us was introduced by my colleague from the city of Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart. It was introduced with the tag, or label or handle that this was going to be the city-county consolidation which we in the city of Philadelphia had fought for these many years.

Now, Mr. President, one would suppose that meant that we, in the city of Philadelphia, were going to be given the right to integrate all of these former county offices which were now city offices, that the tax levying body of the city of Philadelphia the city council, would finally be in control of every one of these former county offices so that it could begin to budget properly, so that it could begin to tax properly and so that it could run an efficient and economic entity. However, what we actually find is that almost all of these so-called county offices, which all of us were so anxious for so many years to integrate into our city government, were separated much further from the tax levying body, our city council. As a matter of fact, those of you who attended the public hearing yesterday were told that most of these offices, it is true, performed no county functions any more, but they did not even perform city functions because my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, in his bill now provides that most of these offices perform State functions. The sheriff, the former county office of sheriff, which we worked so hard to get into our city government, so that council would have control over it, suddenly by this measure is placed under the jurisdiction of our Board of Judges, actually a State function. Council has no control. Gentlemen, I ask you, is that what we in the city of Philadelphia have fought for all these years? Is that consolidating the city and the county or is it, in effect, saying, "Well, you have had your city, and now that we have done away with your county, most of what the county did before belongs to the State." That is what is happening.

Mr. President, we thought we were obtaining something of a permanent nature. We thought we were obtaining home rule. Does this bill give us home rule? No. Does this bill provide that the sheriff, a former county office, is now going to be under the jurisdiction of the Board of Judges and is going to stay there permanently? No. Mr. President the sheriff remains a legislative office and notwithstanding the fact that this Legislature may have the audacity to pass this bill and may put the sheriff within the jurisdiction of our Board of Judges, and may give it a color of State entity, there is nothing in the world to prevent the Legislature two years from now deciding that the Board of Judges is not such a good place to have the sheriff. Maybe the sheriff, once again, should be a separate office by itself. Maybe the sheriff, once again, should be an elected official. In any event, the office of the sheriff remains outside the pale of city council and outside the pale of city control.

Now, Mr. President, I have talked to many of my colleagues in the Senate about this matter, and I know that many of my colleagues once again have shown a great deal of sympathy, have shown a great deal of interest, have nodded their heads, have shaken their heads, have said "I don't see how I could vote for a piece of legislation like that," and yet I think I have been around here long enough to have a sense of feeling that the calling up of this bill for action at this time is an indication that the old blackjack, the old steam shovel, the old steam roller has been put into action and the boys are going to go down the line voting "yes," when deep down within them they know that they are doing a tremendous disservice not only to the city of Philadelphia but to the State of Pennsylvania.

Now, Mr. President, many of you gentlemen may feel that this is just a "Philadelphia Story", that you are not affected by it at all, you are willing to accept the pleas, the preachments, the implorings of the leaders of a political party which has now been discredited three times in a row in the city of Philadelphia. You are willing to permit yourselves to be bludgeoned to that low stature, notwithstanding the fact that this is costing you, costing the citizens of your counties, money. Your passage of this kind of a bill involving the city of Philadelphia can mean only one thing. We are now facing a $15,000,000 deficit in the city of Philadelphia. We will not be able to do a thing about that deficit, because this particular section dealing with the sheriff, as do many other sections of this bill, freezes into office, if you please, every present employee of the sheriff's office and the present employees of many of the other offices. It is no secret. The press has carried the story that the city faces a $15,000,000 deficit.

Now, Mr. President, there are only two avenues open to us in the city to overcome that deficit. One is we will have to raise our real estate assessments. Now, in the event you gentlemen do not know it or do not realize it, the raising of our real estate assessments, brought to the attention of the State Tax Equalization Board will mean that we in the city of Philadelphia are going to get more funds for education purposes. Now, gentlemen, those funds do not just come from out of the air. Those funds come from a pot, a common pot, which we create here in Harrisburg for every school district in the Commonwealth and that covers every school district in Potter County, in Clinton County, in Lycoming County, in Schuylkill County, and that means that the school districts in your counties are eventually going to get less money.

Mr. President, what else does it mean? It means that we will have to increase our wage tax. The increase of our wage tax will mean that the nonresidents of our city, too, residents of Delaware County, residents of Montgomery County, residents of Bucks County and other counties, are going to have to pay into the coffers of the city of Philadelphia for the purpose of operating that city all that extra money, money which could very well be retained by these individuals, money which could very well be spent by them in their own communities. So, you see, gentlemen of the Senate, you are not dealing just with a local Philadelphia problem. It is much broader than that. You are dealing with a problem that affects everyone of you as individuals, and which affects everyone of the residents of your communities in your counties.

Mr. President, this bill and this particular section is by no stretch of the imagination consolidation. How in the world anybody can say that the appointment of a sheriff by the Board of Judges, making it in effect a State function and separating it further from city council, is consolidation, is beyond me. Mr. President, I know as I face the other side of this aisle that I am speaking into the wind. It is this kind of thing, after all of these years of work and effort, that makes me wonder whether this kind of work is worth it. It is, in simple language, just plain disheartening and just plain disgusting. I know that many of you will find it difficult after voting on this section, to really honestly and sincerely look me in the eye so that I might have the feeling that you thought you did the right thing. Gentlemen, I know you would not be able to do it, and if you do, I know that you would not be able to do it sincerely, and I know that you cannot mean it. I think, after all these years and I think you already know the people of our city, and I am talking of Republicans as well as Democrats, everyone of them will know that the small group in control of city hall, which they discredited, was able to come up to Harrisburg and say to you gentlemen, "This is a matter that involves Republican politics and you have got to go along." Gentlemen, and I speak to you now politically, if you have the temerity and the audacity to pass this kind of a bill and make anybody with any decency think that it is an implementation of city-county consolidation, then I say to you that your Republican Party is doomed for the same kind of treatment by the voters of this whole Commonwealth which the voters of the city of Philadelphia gave to that organization.

Mr. President, I ask that my colleagues on this side of the Senate,, and I plead and implore and speak to the decency, because I believe all of my colleagues are decent, of all of my colleagues on the other side of the Senate and ask you to vote for the adoption of this amendment.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, the particular amendment suggested by Senator Rosenfeld sets up a commission to investigate the possibility of integration and consolidation of the county government in Philadelphia. The result of any such commission would be that consolidation would be delayed until after the commission acted. Consolidation would be delayed until after the persons elected last November took office. Consolidation would be delayed until they had served out their terms of office, because the Constitution provides that once in office they cannot be removed during their terms. Those jobs are necessary, many of them, and the whole purpose of the consolidation amendment to the Constitution was to remove them and make the government in Philadelphia a more efficient and a better government.

Mr. President, the Democrats know when they ran for office last fall and were elected that they might never take office, because at the same time that they ran, the people voted for consolidation in Philadelphia. The people of this Commonwealth have imposed a duty on this Legislature to consolidate the government of Philadelphia, and to integrate the county functions with the city government. That is a duty which we in the Legislature cannot shirk. We have the duty upon us to consolidate Philadelphia's government.

Not only that, Mr. President but at the hearing of the Joint State Government Commission in 1948, when consolidation was discussed, a proposed amendment to the Constitution was submitted to that commission by the Democratic Party, by Mr. Dilworth, Mr. Clark and Mr. Finnegan, which implicitly and in no uncertain terms provided that if a consolidation amendment were passed by the people of Pennsylvania, only the people actually in office at that time would be permitted to remain. No one, because they were just elected, would be permitted to take office and thereby be in interference with the proposed consolidation. So much for the amendment.

Now, Mr. President, I would like to digress and go a little bit afield to answer Senator Rosenfeld on some of his other points, and I ask unanimous consent to do so. I am assured by the opposition that I will receive such consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has permitted wide latitude. The gentleman may proceed.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the question which first confronts us at this time is whether consolidation will be effected by the Legislature or by some local agency such as city council or a commission appointed in Philadelphia. At that same hearing which I referred to, before the Joint State Government Commission, the Democrats speaking through Mr. Clark, the present Mayor, had this to say. Mr. Clark said:

"The type of city-county consolidation amendment which we recommend is attached as Exhibit 1 to the memorandum. It is not our work—it represents the work of people who have been thinking about the thing for fifteen or twenty years as the result of conferences among a number of civic agencies. It covers what I think is sound government procedure in that it is a resolution which consolidates the city and county and then leaves the details of consolidation to legislation. That is the only sound way to bring city-county consolidation about, and any other suggestion, gentlemen, is a red herring and a phony." In other words, Mr. Clark thinks that we should consolidate by legislation in this body.

Mr. President, at the same hearing, Senator Walker asked Mr. Clark:

"SENATOR WALKER: You mentioned the city charter and home rule. Are you suggesting that the legislative committee draft this charter or that we have a city commission so that the home rule people here can draft their own charter?"

"Mr. CLARK: My point is that we have so much milling around with charter drafting—we know what we want except for the matter of detail. I am in favor of a legislative charter and home rule bill so if we don't like the legislative charter we can amend it or change it."

Now, Mr. President, what my bill provides is consistent with what Mr. Clark requested at that time, a legislative consolidation, and if they do not like it in Philadelphia, Section 9 of the bill provides that they can change it by amendment to the home rule charter.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to vote down this amendment, and I expect to debate this bill at greater length on Third Reading when the matter is properly before us for debate.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, whether the interrogation is on the proposed amendment?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, the interrogation is with respect to one statement he made, and which indirectly or directly has to do with the section that we are dealing with.

Mr. KEPHART. I will accept the interrogation, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, my interrogation has to do with an amendment submitted by my colleague, Mr. Kephart, which concerned itself with the appointment by the Mayor of the city of Philadelphia of all of these people who were elected on November 6, 1951 into some city office and if they were not placed in some office, provided that they shall be paid their salaries, nevertheless, by the city of Philadelphia. Did you not introduce such an amendment to this bill?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I presented the amendment, which you will find contained in Section 10 of this bill, to the committee and requested that it be put in the bill. As far as I am concerned, it can be stricken out if you so desire.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I merely want to bring to the attention of the Members of the Senate that my colleague from Philadelphia is so anxious to have us believe that these men who ran for office on November 6 knew that even if they were elected, they might not serve and yet, by his own amendment to this bill be provided that even if they do not serve, they should be put into some other office, or if not put into some other office, they should be paid by the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, may I further answer the gentleman from Philadelphia on that point? In a letter to the Governor, the Mayor-Elect explained that it was unethical to keep the people who were elected last fall from getting their jobs or their salaries. My amendment merely provided that the Mayor would have authority to place those people, whose jobs had been taken away or dropped because they were unnecessary, in his city setup, and it provided further if they did not have any qualifications to fill any job, then I guess we would have to pay them if they were so unethical as to take the money for not working.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Here tonight, Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman if the Legislature were not in Session at this moment, what would have happened after the people passed the consolidation amendment?

Mr. KEPHART. I think, Mr. President, that the question is immaterial. We are in Session, the people have spoken, they have passed an amendment to the Constitution in which it states that the county of Philadelphia should be consolidated with the city, and they have placed that duty upon this Legislature. It is our duty to perform that function or we are shirking our duty.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I just want to say, in reply to the gentleman's answer, that the question of duty and the interpretation of duty is one that would require a great deal of time. All of us see our duty in different lights. I do not think it is the duty of this Legislature in three days to attempt to create a condition in the city of Philadelphia by passing a consolidation act which he, himself, must admit, and if every man on the Senate floor were interrogated tonight as to the provisions of this act, would admit, would be in violation of their duties, as I see them, including myself, because there is not anyone other than perhaps the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, and a few who might have read the act, who know what they are doing tonight.

Mr. President, what is happening here? It is the old question of the majority taking charge, riding roughshod over the minority. The question resolves itself into what is the duty of this Legislature. It is the duty, as he sees it, for this group of Senators on the other side of this Senate tonight to say to the people of Pennsylvania that the citizens of Philadelphia are going to have what we give them tonight as a consolidation act? What is consolidation in the interest of the people at the proper time? The people of Philadelphia in their own way, under their own charter, the Home Rule Act shall decide the best manner in which that city shall be governed. If there is a problem to come before the Legislature, let it come after there has been mature thinking upon the problem.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, said that it took some twenty odd years to design the legislation which we have in the Charter Act. The fight has gone on for years. We have had for many years bills before us covering consolidation. Senator Kephart said here that the gentlemen who ran for office in the last general election knew that they would not be able to take office. From the campaign which they carried on in the city of Philadelphia, knowing that they were not going to take office there, I want to ask the Members of this General Assembly if you think these fellows were in their right minds when they went out and spent their money, spent their time, to win a hollow victory. The men who ran for office I believe, were entitled and are entitled to the privileges of the office to which they were elected. At no time was there a notation placed behind the candidate's name, saying, if this man is elected he will not take office if the General Assembly is stymied and is still in Session.

The thing tonight, Mr. President, that must seem peculiar to all of the people of Pennsylvania is how this group of Senators can find it so convenient to get together in caucus action and decide on a solid vote for a purely political piece of legislation, and yet, on the question of fiscal problems involving the sufferings of many of the people of this Commonwealth we have sat in our chairs for the last eleven months or more, trying to find some kind of a solution to the fiscal problems and the budgetary problems of this Commonwealth, and yet here tonight we find a solid mass working together. For what reason? To save those in Philadelphia who were destroyed in the last election. It would be just as proper for me, representing the Democrats in Westmoreland County, to come before this Senate tonight and say, "You ought to pass some kind of a blanket law concerning the Democratic officeholders who will lose their jobs in January, because we lost control of the county commissioners office." It would be just as proper for me to come in with that kind of legislation as it is for you to come in with this kind of legislation. You do not come with clean hands unless you are agreeable that in every county where there has been a change in administration, those unfortunates, who by the fortunes of war are now losing their political jobs, ought to be blanketed in and have their civil service.

Mr. President, let us look at the civil service provisions of this bill. If ever civil service has been written in such a manner as to make mockery out of it, just read the provisions in this bill. Summed up, Mr. President, this is what it says, that these individuals in Philadelphia, these Republicans who now hold jobs, will and must be kept in their jobs so long as they are able to walk and breathe. That is the only qualification under this bill which they must live up to. Why make a mockery of civil service?

What do we mean by merit rating, what do we mean by civil service, continuing in office those officeholders who the people turned down? I believe in Westmoreland County the people wanted a change. They wanted a change or they would not have voted the way they voted and no administration can act in good faith unless it has its lieutenants unless it has its soldiers in the army following the leader.

Mr. President how can you sabotage the new administration of the city of Philadelphia by giving them those workers in that city who are opposed to the leaders, who are against the very principles which they stand for? How can we, in good conscience, say to the people of the State of Pennsylvania, "We are doing the just and proper thing"? It would be just like saying to the American Army, "We will take from you the generals and give you the enemy's generals, and then you fight for them." You just cannot do it. It is not human nature, they would be sabotaged at every turn, and the economies, and the good government which have been promised by the Democratic victors in Philadelphia will not be forthcoming, because at every turn, every order will be countermanded by some saboteur working in the ranks, working in the offices of the officials who have been duly elected by the people, and they will be helpless to do anything about it.

Mr. President, we do not want to discuss the merits of the bill today. Tomorrow we will discuss the so-called merits. Tonight we will discuss the demerits of this legislation, and I will guarantee you that it will take hours and hours and hours for anybody to convince me that the demerits will not outweigh the merits. Why the rush? Why all this haste? For eleven months we have not done anything but have Republican Caucuses. That is all we have had that I know of, and we can continue to do so. Those of us who feel that this is an important question are willing to stay, and in all probability we will have to stay anyway.

Mr. President, I am a little bit disturbed about this "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men." Some people believe that the only thing that counts is political power, political victory. They will go to any ends to achieve it, and let me say in all seriousness to the Republican Party, you have lost Philadelphia and you will lose the State of Pennsylvania just as sure as you are in your seats tonight, because the decent people out over the districts will not stand for this kind of action. You cannot say that it is fair for Philadelphia and not put it in vogue everywhere else. You cannot say it is good government in Philadelphia to freeze those in office whom the people voted against, and remember when a political party is wiped out it means that the entire political party is wiped out, not just the generals, but the rank and file, too. We live by that code where I come from, and most every other man in government lives by that code. If at any time when they were in power, and for so many years they have been in power, they felt that this was good government, why did they not pass it then? If they felt that this live and walk and breathe type of civil service was proper, why didn't they pass it then? They fought every attempt to give the city of Philadelphia good government, but tonight it is the holy duty of Senator Kephart to save what, to save the jobholders in the city of Philadelphia, and there is not another thing which this bill does, no matter how you color it up and no matter how you talk about its virtues. I could give it the name that it properly should carry.

Mr. President, this piece of legislation is causing at this late hour a disturbance here in the Senate, and will cause a disturbance in the House of Representatives which will long be remembered, because it is, to my mind, in all the years that I have been here concerning much of the unfair legislation that I have fought against and much of the good legislation which all of us have tried to pass, the outstanding piece of chicanery that has ever been tried in this Senate. Under what guise, under what name? Under the holy name of duty? How do you measure duty? What do you call duty? Duty to the people who tried and lost, duty to the people who failed, duty to the people who went out and rang the doorbells to try to win and when they failed, because the people were against them, you say to the people, "You won, but we are not going to let you win because we still have thirty votes in the Senate of Pennsylvania. You men from other counties over there, you men that come from Schuylkill, you men that come from Monroe, you men from Luzerne, you men from Dauphin, you men from Erie, all of you who come from outside of the city of Philadelphia, why join in this rape of those people? Why join in this tonight? I might say to all of you that there is other legislation upon the books and upon the calendar today. Let us see whether your duty compels you to follow this type of legislative activity when it comes to that legislation.

Mr. President, coupling all of the things that are happening here, I have read with careful interest one of the bills which has been presented to this Senate on reapportionment. I do not know the final stage in which it will appear, but when you read it, is that the kind of duty you call sublime? Is that the kind of duty you call proper? Look at that reapportionment bill. It is not a reapportionment bill, it is an abortionment bill, seven Democrats to be ripped out of their offices in the State of Pennsylvania by the dirtiest trickery since the Civil War. Is that the kind of legislation you call duty? Well, if that is duty, I want no part of it.

Mr. President and Members of this Senate, just as surely as you are in the chamber tonight, those who live by the sword shall die the same way if the fortunes of war change. The pendulum swings but it must come back if time is to move, and time is the only thing which is constant. We in this chamber, whether it be those who are present here tonight or whether none of us live to see the day, but there will be a day when other men will sit in this chamber and they will not look with pride to the actions tonight. I say to all of the Members of this Senate, you can be ashamed of this action. You cannot be proud of it, because in individual conversation I know how you feel about it, and yet the Governor of this State, right or wrong, but in the opinion of the twenty Democrats on this side we felt that he was wrong, that man, the titular head of his party, could not wield the force which is being wielded tonight to bring into play that solidarity which would have meant that this State would not have been subjected to eleven and one-half months of ridicule in the eyes of the people.

Mr. President, who is the real casualty here tonight besides the people of Philadelphia? One individual is the casualty here tonight. That man is the Governor of the Commonwealth, because every decent citizen can ask this question. He can say to himself, "What happened in Harrisburg? They said that the Republicans were split, that no solidarity could be gained. There was no unanimity of purpose," and yet here on a political job and on a political job-stealing piece of legislation we find them welded together into a solid phalanx, mowing right down the middle, against all honor and against all opposition, fighting here tonight for one reason only, to hold into political office those who should not be there anymore than the Democrats in Westmoreland should be there, any more than the Democrats in York should be there, or anymore than the Republicans in Erie should be there. A man who is elected to public office has the right to select his help because that is the only way in which a man can properly run a political government.

Now, Mr. President, if you want to continue this sublime duty, why not put a bill in freezing all of the employees of this Commonwealth into civil service? Why don't you freeze everybody and let's have a merit rating government which will end up in time in the same kind of a debacle which overtook Europe, because it has been discovered that unless men and women have a responsibility to those above them, to the officers in charge, unless they have a certain responsibility to government, government becomes lax. I say to the people of Philadelphia, you will have another election some day, and I doubt if these political officeholders who were unable to save you this time can save you then, and I say to all of the Members of this Senate tonight, this is a black night and will go down in history. It will go down in history and if it does go down in history, then history must repeat, and some of us will live to see the day when this kind of an action will be properly rejected by the people of the State of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I look forward to the day when upon house cleaning of this State, sincere men will show what can happen when a majority forgets its responsibilities to the voters. The citizens of Philadelphia are entitled to home rule and home rule is not created here in Harrisburg. Under normal conditions this Legislature would have been out of here in June or July, and under those conditions, when the amendment was accepted by the people, there would have been a time of study, there would have been a time of preparation and then the Legislature would have had the benefit of mature thought.

In questioning the sincerity of the Democrats, let me tell you, Senator Kephart, that if you look over the records you will find that the Democratic Party in Philadelphia was sincere because it sent out messages to me and to every other Democratic leader in all the rural counties, in all of the counties away from Philadelphia, and asked them to support this amendment. If they thought for one minute that this kind of action was going to be taken tonight, knowing that they were going to win in Philadelphia, and if they were just as political minded as the opposition party is tonight, they would have been justified in asking all of their friends all over the State to vote against the amendment, but, no. In all sincerity, they wanted to give Philadelphia city-county consolidation, and in all sincerity this side of the Senate says to you on the other side tonight, "Do not do what you are trying to do. We can only voice our opposition. We know you have the votes, but there are some things we can do to call to the attention of the people of Pennsylvania this blight upon the escutcheon of this Senate. We can do that by legal, logical and proper means."

Mr. President, I say to the Senate, much as it may delay this Senate action, much as it may cause some inconvenience to some of the people of the Commonwealth, we will do it. It must be done because throughout history every time tyranny has raised its ugly head, somebody has had the courage to fight it. This group here will show the people of Pennsylvania by whatever means legal and parliamentary which we can find at our command, that this condition exists in Pennsylvania. We will attempt to show to the people of Pennsylvania that it is nothing but pure politics, and if anything happens to the institutions by this action, it must revert to those who caused this action to be taken, because they feel more for the political jobholders in the city of Philadelphia than they do for the institutions of this State.

Mr. President, this is not a threat, it is a statement of fact and principle. Whatever may come, whatever may go, this group of Senators on this side will bring to the attention of the people of Pennsylvania, by every legal means, this action tonight. It is not proper, it is not justified, it is not fair play, and I for one will extend every ounce of strength and every ounce of ability at my command to see to it that the people of this Commonwealth know what is going on.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. STIEFEL. Senator Kephart, in preparing this bill did you consult all the research work done in connection with the city-county consolidation?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I was the sponsor of the consolidation amendment which the people voted on and approved at the last election. In the preparation of that amendment and in the preparation of the home rule bill which gave Philadelphia home rule, I consulted with the five civic groups in Philadelphia who had the proposition most at heart and who represented most of the best thinking of Philadelphia at the time.

Mr. President, since that time, the Greater Philadelphia Movement has been organized and I have consulted with the Chairman of the Greater Philadelphia Movement. I have consulted with the Legislative Committee of the Greater Philadelphia Movement, I have read extensively, and this is most important, at the hearings which the Joint State Government Commission conducted in 1948, at which time these civic agencies in Philadelphia and leading Democrats, those who are now elected to office were present, I read in those proceedings where they came before the Joint State Government Commission and explained their viewpoint in detail. My bill merely carries out the plan which was acceptable at that time to all these civic agencies and the Democrats also.

Mr. President, there is nothing in this bill which, if you read that record, would even be considered as a controversial measure. Everything was agreed upon by all of them. I want to read from those proceedings a statement by Mr. Clark, where he said, "We know what we want in detail, except in certain small details, and we want you people to put it into effect." They gave us the plan in writing, and tomorrow I propose to show in detail that everything in my bill was agreed to at that hearing and comes from, is sponsored by, or is approved by those civic organizations, the Democratic Party and the members of the Democratic Party who appeared, Dilworth, Clark and Finnegan.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. STIEFEL. Senator Kephart, you just consulted opinions, but you did not make a study of the functions of each department which you incorporate in your bill.

Mr. KEPHART. Senator Stiefel, I did not get your question.

Mr. STIEFEL. Did you make a thorough study of the functions of each department which you incorporate in this bill?

Mr. KEPHART. Well, Doctor Stiefel, I would say that I do not know in detail all the ramifications of each department which we changed, but I think that is wholly unnecessary. The fact that whether you would change the Bureau of Weights and Measures from the County Commissioners to the Department of Licensure, which is the new department created by the Home Rule Charter, does not necessitate that I know every detail as to what the Bureau of Weights and Measures in Philadelphia does. I have been in the City Solicitor's Office for seven years, I was Assistant City Solicitor, and I know something of the workings of the departments of the city. I have been in Philadelphia for twenty years, and in the practice of law have learned a great deal of what goes on in the city-county government. I have been up here since 1939, and in that connection I have come in contact with various departments of the city. I know something about political science, maybe not too much, maybe not enough to be a doctor. I hope that answers the Doctor's question.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I desire to further present a question. In connection with your allusion to political science, have you consulted the Institute of Local and State Government of the University of Pennsylvania which delved into this question and prepared studies about it?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, the Institute of Local and State Government filed a brief or a prepared statement at one time or another, but I have a recollection of having read it.

Mr. STIEFEL. Senator Kephart, how does that brief, prepared by the Institute of Local and State Government of the University of Pennsylvania, which you will agree are political scientists, compare with your bill?

Mr. KEPHART. Well, Senator Stiefel, I cannot say in detail how it stacks up one way or another. If I had their report here, it would probably take me an hour or so to go through it, paragraph by paragraph, to see how it lines up. I think the most important thing is what the five civic groups all agreed upon and what the Democrats themselves sponsored and agreed upon, which I propose to-morrow to go into, paragraph by paragraph and read into the record of the Senate. I do not propose to do it tonight.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I just wanted to point out, as the gentleman from Westmoreland stated before, that this measure was prepared in a minute of haste and will result in a lifetime of regret. It is only based upon opinions, but where you have a thorough study by scientists who gave plenty of time to each function of each department, if you would have given attention to this matter and if the bill would have been prepared on the basis of those studies, I am sure that this opus would have not been presented to the General Assembly of Pennsylvania.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, Senator Kephart said that the reason he introduced the bill at this time was to hasten city-county consolidation. It is rather remarkable that the Republican Party in Philadelphia should be so anxious to have immediate city-county consolidation. It is only a little more than five weeks ago, on November 6, that the Republican Party suffered its worst defeat in some seventy years, or probably in its history.

Mr. President, this defeat was remarkable for two reasons. First, because in the city of Philadelphia the registration of the Republican Party is close to three to one. Secondly, this defeat was remarkable because the Republican organization in Philadelphia started with 20,000 jobholders who together with their sons and daughters and families started with over 100,000 before a Democratic vote was cast. Now, what is the primary reason for this remarkable defeat? Mr. President and Members of the Senate, there is only one answer and that answer is that the Republican organization thought more of feathering its own nest than caring for the welfare of the people of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, on the same day that the Republicans suffered this defeat, the people of Philadelphia by a big majority ratified the new City Charter. This charter was the creature of eighteen months of hard work. There was one draft, then there was a second draft, then there was a third draft, and let us look at the people who drafted this Charter. It was done in accordance with the mandate of the act of 1949, giving home rule to the city of Philadelphia. On this commission there were ten Republicans and five Democrats. It took them eighteen months. They consulted every worthwhile organization in the city of Philadelphia before completing this charter and submitting it to the people.

Now, Mr. President, here we have, in the space of a couple of weeks, an organization which has been so thoroughly discredited making up its mind just how this consolidation should be done. How could it possibly be right? If we look at this amendment offered, it was a thought discussed and suggested at the public hearing which was held yesterday, and at that time it seemed that Senator Kephart thought it might be a good idea to pass a simple law here in this Legislature creating a commission of ten, five to be appointed by the Governor and five to be appointed by the Mayor-Elect. They were to make a study of all the departments, where they should go, how they should go and what possible jobs could be eliminated. The proposition seemed so fair that Senator Kephart himself thought this might be the solution, but it was not long before we got word that there was nothing doing on it because, in all probability, Senator Kephart got his orders from this same discredited organization which suffered such a defeat just a bare five weeks ago.

Now, Mr. President, when you are trying to take an office like the sheriff and put it into the prothonotary's office and put the burden on our Common Pleas Judges of appointing a sheriff and fixing salaries, you are throwing our Common Pleas Judges right into politics, and they do not want it. They have said now that they do not want those outside duties which take them into politics. They are now in politics through the Board of Revision of Taxes, in that they appoint the members of the board. I am sure that every Judge of the Common Pleas Courts of Philadelphia would be grateful if our charter had included the Board of Revision of Taxes and taken it out of their supervision, and yet with this bill we are taking another big office and throwing it into the laps of the Common Pleas Judges and throwing them into politics.

Mr. President, what does that mean? It means only one thing, it can mean only one thing, that the Judges, having been put in politics by this bill, must be resisted and must be opposed every time they come up. Now, who wants that in the city of Philadelphia? Certainly, the drafters of the charter had no such thing in mind and did not want it.

Mr. President and Members of this Senate, let me say that if, through influence brought upon you, you pass this bill against your better judgment, I firmly believe that this Senate will be tarred with the same iniquitous brush that brought such a terrific defeat to the Republican Party in Philadelphia last November 6.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, I believe you can count on the fingers of one hand the number of times I have risen in this Senate, and if the Members of this august body will please give me the opportunity for three or four minutes to get what I have to say off my chest, I will appreciate it very much.

Mr. President, I do not speak as a filibusterer, because I think it is the lowest and foulest method of trying to get your point across, but I would like to speak more or less as a prophet. -

About twenty years ago we played a baseball game in Kelayres, Pennsylvania. We won the game fairly and squarely, and our opponents, unable to take defeat gracefully, stoned us out of town. This incident helped me to better understand people and impressed upon me the fact that people will rise up against anything which does not please them, right or wrong. (In this case their opposition was wrong as the rules of the game had been closely followed). Yes, people will rise up against a situation not to their liking either forcibly or peacefully.

Some years ago a man named Foss tied a rope around his neck and committed suicide. The people in my district read about it, saw his picture, and got acquainted with the facts. Why he did it, I do not intend to go into. They came and asked me, "When is the next election? We have to get these people," and they voted for the first time for the Democratic ticket. This, I believe, was the first victory for the Democrats in many years.

Mr. President, later on somebody committed suicide by jumping off a bridge. The people again asked, "When is the next election?" They were waiting for the next election; they started thinking and acting.

These happenings, which are so vivid in my store of memories, point up the fact that people will react to a situation through the means at hand. In these instances it was through the peaceful machinery of an election. However, in enacting the Kephart bill, we are disturbing the tranquility of a city and the results may be disastrous. By the designated means and machinery, they have attained an election in the proper manner. This is not any moral, cold-cut situation. We are dealing with emotions which no one on earth can control.

If a group of unthinking people are sufficiently riled up by a cunning and malicious person, they are liable to organize a machine gun parade to put an end to this smelly situation in Philadelphia. They will say, "We must use force because that is our only recourse."

I say to you, gentlemen, we are taking a serious step. If you give this kind of ammunition to unthinking, easily-led people—give them this kind of bill, gentlemen, bear in mind that the "Massacre of Kelayres" or the "Bloody Fifth in Philadelphia" can be repeated. Unthinking people will not try to rationalize a question of such importance with you or assimilate such a serious situation by word of mouth. They will take action. They will figure out that where there is an injustice done, force is required, and where there is force a disastrous situation can be created.

Mr. McMENAMIN. Mr. President, I am a freshman Senator and have tried to observe the time-honored tradition of staying in the back row. I believe in a lot of traditions and I think there is plenty of room in America today for some traditions. However, Mr. President, I would like to say a word or two at this time.

It seems to me, Mr. President, that this bill that we are getting into now is the most serious problem in connection with good government which has faced this Legislature yet this year. Now, what brings me to the microphone at this time is Senator Kephart's reference to political science. Sitting in the back, I cannot help but let my mind go back over the years to when I had a course in political science, too. Perhaps it was not the same one that Senator Kephart had, but in one of the text book cases in American politics and in American government, one of the chapters certainly was the chapter on big city machines, and in the text book example of big city machines and all the evil and harm that they did to America was, among others, the Philadelphia gang. Professors predicted at that time that they would eventually be driven off the American political scene. Since that time, of course, we have seen the Long Machine in Louisiana go down, we have seen the Kansas City crowd wiped out, Tammany is gone in New York, and last November 6 the people of Philadelphia, after a good many years, did away with machine politics in Philadelphia.

It seems to me, Mr. President, that this bill is the death rattle in the throat of that Republican machine in Philadelphia. I cannot understand for the life of me how Senators from other parts of the State, belonging to that Grand Old Party, can allow themselves to be placed in a position to go along to try to save that crowd. I believe, as Senator Dent has said, this action is going to bring the State organization of the Republican Party down with the Philadelphia city machine if this bill is passed in its present form at this time.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President and Members of the Senate, I, too, feel very strongly about this piece of legislation. I do not seek to be repetitious here, but I think this is a despicable attempt by a defeated group of politicians, who have brought disgrace for years to the greatest city of the Commonwealth, to retain control for the party hacks, the common gamblers, the leeches upon the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, on November 6, 1951 the voters of Philadelphia repudiated the Republican organization which had enjoyed control of the city's political life for 70 long years. The decision was not a sudden one, but was the result of a series of disclosures of graft and corruption which literally permeated the entire structure of the government of the city under Republican control.

Certain basic changes have long been needed. In 1949 the Pennsylvania Legislature conferred upon the city of Philadelphia complete powers of local self-government. Thereupon, civic leaders of both parties commenced the difficult and important task of drafting a new Home Rule Charter for the City, which was finally adopted by the voters on April 17, 1951.

There remained the fundamental need to consolidate the functions of city and county government in Philadelphia, in order that the antiquated methods by which the city had been governed might be streamlined and a modern form of government established. During the recent campaign, Republican leaders were slow to approve city-county consolidation, but finally gave it their blessing. On November 6 the voters of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania approved an amendment to the Constitution which abolishes all county offices in Philadelphia and provides for the performance of county functions by the city of Philadelphia.

Immediately following the elections, the Mayor-elect appointed a committee, consisting of representatives of both parties, to study the problem of consolidation and to make recommendations with respect to any legislation which was needed to give effect to the constitutional amendment. This committee stated that no such legislation was necessary and that, even if legislation were necessary, all that would be required would be a simple bill authorizing the new City Council to enact appropriate legislation.

Mr. President, the simple bill turns out to be the Kephart Bill which might properly be called "Operation Blunderbuss." It completely ignores the will of the voters of Philadelphia in a brazen attempt to perpetuate Republican organization control of the city in the face of its overwhelming repudiation in the November elections. This bill retains only two of the county offices—the District Attorney and the City Controller. It abolishes the offices of the Recorder of Deeds, the County Commissioners and the Board of Inspectors of the Philadelphia County Prison. For all practical purposes it abolishes the offices of Coroner. This bill further permits the present Coroner, Register of Wills and City Treasurer to complete their respective terms of office, but it eliminates the office of Recorder of Deeds, to which a Democrat was elected in November.

For many years, Mr. President, there had been considerable concern over the fact that Philadelphia Judges were required to be engaged in politics by reason of their power to appoint certain officers and employees. The judges themselves did not want to be in politics, and since 1947 the compensation of all public officers, clerks and employees has been fixed by City Council, except the salaries of elected officers which are fixed by law. The City Council, of course, was controlled by the Republican organization in Philadelphia. The Kephart Bill puts the judges back into politics with a vengeance. The Register of Wills is to be appointed by the Judges of the Orphans' Court, and the judges are given authority to approve the number of employees he shall appoint, their qualifications and compensation.

Mr. President, the Bill provides that the Common Pleas Judges shall appoint the Sheriff and approve the number of his employees. The same board shall continue to appoint the Prothonotary and approve the qualifications of all his employees. However, the bill goes much further than that. It abolishes the office of the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions (to which a Democrat was elected in November), and transfers his functions and all his employees to the Prothonotary. As a result, the Board of Judges is to approve the number and qualifications of all such employees.

Heretofore, Mr. President, City Council fixed the compensation of employees of the Board of Revision of Taxes. Under the Kephart Bill, the Board of Judges is given the power to approve the number, qualifications and compensation of the employees of the Board of Revision of Taxes. It is clear, therefore, that if the Kephart Bill should become law, the Common Pleas Judges in Philadelphia, who desire to be removed from politics, have full authority over the offices and employees of the Sheriff, Prothonotary, the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions and the Board of Revision of Taxes—more power than they ever had.

Mr. President, the Kephart Bill abolishes the County Commissioners and distributes their functions among the various departments of the city under the new charter. There is, however, one glaring exception. The functions previously performed by the commissioners as the county board of elections are transferred to the Registration Commission, which is a state agency, controlled by the Republican government at Harrisburg. In this respect, the Kephart Bill has the effrontery to deny the voters of Philadelphia any voice in determining how their own elections shall be conducted.

The new charter accords civil service status to city employees. The Kephart Bill, with the stated purpose of ratifying this provision of the charter, provides that all former county employees, when the act becomes effective, shall be continued as city employees and have civil service status. But, this applies to employees in all county offices now controlled by the Democratic party as a result of the November elections, whereas civil service status is not accorded to employees of the Prothonotary (which include the employees of the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions) or to the employees of the Board of Revision of Taxes. The obvious reason for their exclusion is that these offices are still controlled by the Republican organization, and it is undoubtedly considered essential to retain control of these employees for the purposes of the organization. Furthermore, in order to insure retention of control over these employees, the authority previously exercised over them by City Council is transferred to the Board of Judges, a majority of whom are Republicans. Although the employees of the Sheriff are also subject to the approval of the Board of Judges, they are placed under civil service for the reason that the new Sheriff is a Democrat, and while the sheriff's employees are to be under civil service, the Sheriff himself is specifically excluded therefrom.

Mr. President, in conferring civil service status on the employees of the former county offices, the Kephart Bill refers to all former county employees "on the payroll." This qualification seems unnecessary unless there are a number of county employees who would not be considered employees except for the fact that they are on the payroll.

Another section of the Kephart Bill, which may have escaped general notice, is Section 9 which provides that certain sections of the bill can only be modified by act of the General Assembly and other sections may be modified by amendment to the Home Rule Charter.

As to the provisions of the Kephart Bill which may be modified by amendment to the Home Rule Charter:

Section 9 spells out the specific provisions which may be thus amended; namely, those provisions relating to:

1. Coroner.
2. Commissioner of Records.
3. Office of the City Treasurer.
4. Board of Inspectors of the County Prison.
5. The former functions of the County Commissioners relating to:

- (a) The Bureau of Weights and Measures.
- (b) Institutional care.
- (c) Construction and maintenance of certain buildings.
- (d) The payment of certain salaries.

Nothing else in the bill is subject to modification by amendment to the charter, but can only be modified or amended by act of the Legislature.

Some such provisions are as follows:

1. The office of Sheriff, all of whose present employees, although transferred under the Board of Judges, nevertheless having a superior who is a Democrat.

2. The office of Prothonotary—he now becomes the superior of the employees of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions and all of these employees are now under the jurisdiction of the courts and will not have civil service status. Therefore, they can continue political activity and can be dismissed at will.

3. The office of Register of Wills. This office now comes under the jurisdiction of the Judges of the Orphans' Court, the majority of whom are Republicans.

4. The functions heretofore performed by County Commissioners as the County Board of Elections. These functions are transferred to the Registration Commission.

5. The provision referring to the Board of Revision of Taxes the authority over the number, qualifications and compensation of the employees having been transferred to the Board of Judges. These employees can continue their political activity. The majority of the Board of Judges are Republicans.

6. The employees of the District Attorney—most of these employees, other than the Assistant District Attorneys, having been given civil service status under the Kephart Bill.

In short, Mr. President, the Kephart Bill is an out and out effort, and not a very subtle one, to deprive the voters of Philadelphia of the benefits and advantages they won in November, and to perpetuate a form of government they flatly rejected at the polls. The Kephart Bill should not become law—the people have already voted against it.

Eighteen years ago tonight Adolph Hitler had to destroy by fire the Parliament of the people's Republic of Germany, the Reichstag, to accomplish the diabolic principle of tyrannical action which Senator Kephart seeks here tonight to accomplish not by storm troopers or firebrand, but by the implementation of despicable legislation action.

Mr. President, I for one say this, that when a minority does not have the proper tools to fight this type of tyranny in the Senate of Pennsylvania, excepting that we do have a Constitution which cannot be overridden arbitrarily by the will of the majority, I for one will take this type of action to indicate my thoughts on a matter such as this. I for one will vote against any non-preferred appropriation bill that may come before this Body from this day on, if the Majority Party in this Senate insists upon this type of damnable un-American political activity, and I ask my twenty colleagues on this side of the aisle to stand with me.

Now, Mr. President, what does that mean? It means that no preferred appropriation will be approved by the Senate of Pennsylvania by a two-thirds vote if my colleagues on the Democratic side of the aisle stand with me. So, I say, if that is the kind of legislation you intend to jam down the throats of the people of Philadelphia, of the minority Members of this Senate, then we or at least, I, will take the only whip at my disposal and absent myself from this chamber when the appropriation bills dealing with non-preferred expenditures are read, and we will see whether or not you can get by that one.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the roll is now to be called on the amendment presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Allegheny, we are now calling the roll on the amendment presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, to Section 1.

Mr. WALKER. Thank you very much, Mr. President. I am now ready for the roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,
Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Dent,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
			Yosko,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Berger,	Letzler,	Propert,	Walker,
Chapman,	Mahany,	Robinson,	Watkins,
Crowe,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watson,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.,	Stevenson,	Wolfe,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wood,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Hare,
Kessler,	Peelor,	Wagner,	Presiding Officer

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: yeas 17, nays 27, and the amendment falls.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. ROSENFELD and Mr. HOLLAND and Mr. BYRNE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—17

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,
Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Dent,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
			Yosko,

NAYS—27

Berger,	Letzler,	Propert,	Walker,
Chapman,	Mahany,	Robinson,	Watkins,
Crowe,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watson,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.,	Stevenson,	Wolfe,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wood,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Hare,
Kessler,	Peelor,	Wagner,	Presiding Officer

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. ROSENFELD offered the following amendment:

Amend Section 1 (a) Page 2, Line 2 by inserting between the word "to" and before the word "integrate" on said line the following "empower the City Council by ordinance to."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I think the Members of the Senate are now beginning to get an idea of what this bill is about, at least Section 1. This amendment is made necessary by reason of the fact that the Home Rule Charter, adopted by the citizens of the city of Philadelphia, provided in Section 1—102.2 on page 3, of this one hundred page charter as follows:

"Any additional executive and administrative power which may be conferred on the City by amendment of the constitution or laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall be vested in and exercised by the Mayor and, so far as practicable, by the officers, departments, boards and commissions designated in this charter. The Council shall by ordinance distribute among such officers, boards and commission . . . the exercise of such powers and the performance of such duties."

Now, Mr. President, since the City Charter Commission, since the citizens of the city of Philadelphia envisaged the passage of the constitutional amendment and provided for these additional powers and duties which are now granted by the adoption of the city-county consolidation amendment, there is, in effect, no necessity at all for the passage of Senate Bill No. 897. Since it appears, however, that the sponsor of this measure would prefer not to be guided by the desires of the citizens of the city, not to be guided by the provisions of the Home Rule Charter, which I hope he voted for but which I doubt, because the introduction of this bill would make it appear that he was against it and he is against it now, it becomes necessary, therefore, for me, since this bill is before us, to move for the adoption of this amendment.

Mr. President, The amendment simply provides that the city council of the city of Philadelphia, by ordinance, under the authority granted to it in this act, would be empowered to integrate the so-called former county offices into the city government in accordance with the provisions of the Home Rule Charter.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to ask the Senator from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, if he will permit himself to be interrogated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Senator Kephart, I would like to know whether you are familiar with the provisions of Section 1—102.2 of the new Home Rule Charter for Philadelphia?

Mr. KEPHART. I am, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Are you aware of the fact that that section provides for additional powers which may be conferred on the city by amendment of the Constitution?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I am aware of the section that provides that the Legislature can, by law, vest additional powers in city council.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to know from the gentleman from Philadelphia, if he has page 3 of the charter before him, whether he understands the meaning of the first two lines of that section which provide that, "Any additional executive and administrative power which may be conferred on the City by amendment of the constitution or laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall be vested in and exercised by the Mayor," etc.?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I understand what it means, yes.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Does the gentleman agree that this means that the city-county consolidation amendment was one of those which was intended to be included in that sentence?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I think the present bill, when acted into law, might be construed to come under that particular provision.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, do I understand that the Senator agrees that this would give the city administration the right to integrate the former county offices?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would not agree that it would give them the right to integrate the former county offices without implementation by an act of the Legislature, nor do I think the city of Philadelphia, by its charter, would let itself be hanging by its own bootstraps either. There are certain powers and duties in cities, and performed by counties, that are State powers. I would not agree, for instance, that the Home Rule Charter in Philadelphia could take over completely the office of the District Attorney, and say that he should be appointed by the Mayor. I say I think he is a State officer and must, of necessity, remain a State officer, and that we in Harrisburg, in the Legislature, should determine whether he shall be elected or appointed or how he shall be constituted.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I assume that the gentleman is familiar with the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President to a certain extent.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, let me be more specific. Is the gentleman familiar with that provision of the Constitution which sets forth the county office's and includes the office of District Attorney?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would have to look at that list of office's. I think he is listed there as a county official.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Is the gentleman familiar with this city-county consolidation which provides for the abolition of county offices?

Mr. KEPHART. I am, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, does the gentleman agree that the district attorney is one of those county officers abolished under this amendment?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, that is true and that is why he is dealt with in this bill.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Don't you agree then that if he is now a city officer, that the city, under the powers set forth in the section referred to, could now provide for the future of that office?

Mr. KEPHART. I do not agree with that, Mr. President. I think that the constitution amendment would require some implementation to decide whether that should be changed or not, because the constitutional amendment says that the offices shall continue to be constituted and so forth as provided by law, and they meant by law, enacted by the General Assembly and not by the City Council.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I understand that the gentleman has indicated that these, or some of these, are not county offices but are State offices.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I said that the functions of the county were primarily to carry out what is really a State function. I do not think that the city-county consolidation amendment to the Constitution, for instance, would take away the right of the Attorney General to supersede the District Attorney. It is just inherent in government that the District Attorney's office and his functions are to enforce the State laws, and while he is elected in Philadelphia, do not think Philadelphia should determine that he should be appointed, say, by the Mayor.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, isn't it true that the Recorder of Deeds and other city offices operate in the performance of State laws, too?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, that is true, but you would not say they were State offices. I think the function of the Recorder of Deeds can be properly delegated to the city government and that is what my bill does.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to know whether the Senator is familiar with the history, at least the recent history, of the city-county consolidation?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would say that I am.

Mr. ROSENFELD. And I would like to know from the gentleman whether it is not a fact that in all of the discussions with regard to city-county consolidation, that these constitutional county offices were intended to be merged and placed under the supervision of the City Council of the city of Philadelphia?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, you mean to say by that that City Council, under the constitutional amendment, could determine who should be District Attorney and decide that they could elect a District Attorney?

Mr. ROSENFELD. No. I did not say that.

Mr. KEPHART. That is what I understand your question to be. If it is, I would say no.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask the gentleman whether it is not true that in all of the discussions with regard to city-county consolidation it was not intended to merge, under the jurisdiction of the city, these county constitutional offices, like Sheriff and Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court and all the other offices which are affected by this bill.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I do not believe that the amendment to the constitution went that far.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, I do not believe there should be any question in anyone's mind what was intended, perhaps not by the Senator when he introduced this constitutional amendment two years ago, but I would suggest by almost everyone who is interested in this whole problem that it was intended that we would do away with these county offices, and the constitutional amendment very definitely states that it abolishes these county offices and it makes them city functions.

Mr. President, I cannot see how under the circumstances these offices can be placed under the supervision of the Board of Judges and out of the jurisdiction of the only city legislative body that we have, our city council. I do not see how this bill carries out that mandate, and on top of it I do not see how at this time this Legislature can act at all when the city of Philadelphia, by its Home Rule Charter, has already provided an orderly process to effectuate this integration into the city government.

Therefore, Mr. President. I ask my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, the dispersal of functions is most damaging to any system of government. As we are getting a little bit tired and it is proper to bolster up the spirits of the people, I just want to relate a story which is in point. In the good olden times when polygamy was still permitted, a man had two wives. The man was a middle-aged man, his black raven hair had already certain gray patches and he had two wives. One was young and beautiful and the other wife was old, and he had to divide his attention between the two wives. One night he would spend with his beautiful young wife, and then she was concerned about the patches of his gray hair. So, she would pluck the gray hair, so he would look younger. When he came to the older wife, she would just reverse the process, pluck the raven hair, so that he would look older. So the story tells us that between the two women this man became baldheaded.

Now, Mr. President, this is what is going to happen through the dispersal of powers in Philadelphia. The people of Philadelphia will suffer. Any government that is not systematic, where the functions are not divided evenly, such a government is bound to fail, and for this reason I feel that the Senate of Pennsylvania is not going to lend assistance to this perfidious act. Just in passing I want to make this observation.

Mr. President, one of the greatest tragedies in the life of Pennsylvania is the attitude of deprecation and indifference which is often displayed towards the fate of Philadelphia. I say that if the people of Pennsylvania, through its Senators from up State, Republicans and Democrats alike, would make a thorough study of the shortcomings of the Philadelphia situation, they would never lend assistance to this measure. The time is at hand when you should take a greater interest in Philadelphia. Do not just brush it aside and say, "Another Philadelphia measure." Philadelphia is part of Pennsylvania and is to stay in Pennsylvania, and if such is the case, please do not disperse the powers of the Philadelphia Government because that will weaken it and whatever has been accomplished will be brought to naught.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I sometimes wonder whether we, as Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania, are not entirely out of our minds. Mr. President, I have sat here this evening and listened to the arguments pro and con on this piece of legislation. I find that Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania from cities of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth class, are passing on the organization of the government of this great city of Philadelphia. I sometimes wonder whether we are not taking on just a little more than what we should.

Mr. President, I understand that under the Constitution we have that responsibility, but I also say that if an amendment could be passed, legislation could be passed, which would confer these powers upon the city council, I think we would be doing a more intelligent job. In going over an analysis which was given to me here today, I observed that quite a number of the employees of the city of Philadelphia are going to be placed under the jurisdiction of the various judges of the Courts of Common Pleas and the various judges of the Orphans' Court in Philadelphia. The judges are going to have the power, are going to have the authority to pass upon their qualifications. They are also going to pass upon the number, and they are going to pass upon the emoluments which they might receive by virtue of these appointments.

Mr. President, it has always been my thought that those who have the responsibility of raising the revenue should most certainly have the right to supervise the expenditures. It seems to me that responsibility lies in city council. If that be the case, city council is placed in the position of giving a blank check to the Board of Judges to do as they see fit. For example, we do not know how many men they are going to appoint because they have the power to appoint them. Now, how in the world can the good citizens of Philadelphia County be given an efficient government under provisions such as this, because if the courts are so minded, they can decide that where one hundred used to work, they can put on two hundred and city council is still to pay the bill?

Mr. President, I notice, too, under the provisions of the Kephart Bill that the District Attorney, who is the chief law enforcement and prosecuting officer in Philadelphia County, will only have the authority to appoint his assistant and his chief of county detectives. I believe that each and every Member here will agree that the office of District Attorney is, indeed, a very important office. I, for one, would not relish a position there for the simple reason that he will have no control. What can the District Attorney do?

I say to you, Mr. President, that as far as I am concerned, and I am speaking sincerely, what we should do is kill this bill. We should kill this bill because it is not going to give good government to Philadelphia. I know that the Members of the Senate here, who worked with me in the Committee on Local Government, have always taken the position that those who raise the revenue should control expenditures. As a matter of fact, Mr. President, we even established a salary board for that purpose. We established a salary board whereby in 1949 it consisted of the three county Commissioners, county Controller and the head of the department which wanted a salary set or a salary increase. We did that for the purpose of controlling expenditures, and now we are doing just the reverse.

Mr. President, I have heard arguments time and time again by some of the most eminent and most able members of the Republican Party in our Committee on Local Government argue the point that I am arguing here today. How in the world can the city organization, the city administration of Philadelphia, under the Kephart Bill, give the people a decent, honest administration? It cannot be done. It is virtually impossible because there is nothing they can do. They have no control over these employees.

Mr. President, I notice, furthermore, that a certain number of these employees in certain departments under Democratic control will be under civil service. The others, under the Board of Revision of Taxes, are not under civil service for the simple reason that they are going to participate in politics and attempt to hold the politicians and the organization together. I say, Mr. President, and I am talking to the rural Members here, we do not have the right to regulate the government of Philadelphia County.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, Senator Kephart was interrogated by Senator Rosenfeld on Section 1—102 of the Charter, adopted on November 6. A reading of that section is rather convincing that the whole intent and purpose of consolidation was to give the power to the people of the city of Philadelphia, through their Council, to say what department should go where, and not to let those questions be settled here in the Legislature by men who come from all parts of the State and who are not keenly interested in the government of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, for the purpose of the record, I should like to read that section so it can be properly recorded.

Mr. President, I am reading into the record Section 1-102 of the Charter, adopted by the city of Philadelphia by an over-whelming vote on November 6, 1951, just a bare five weeks ago.

"Section 1-102. Executive and Administrative Power.

"(1) The executive and administrative power of the City, as it now exists, shall be exclusively vested in and exercised by a Mayor and such other officers, departments, boards and commissions as are designated and authorized in this charter. The Mayor and other executive or administrative officers shall be elected or appointed as provided in this charter."

Now, Mr. President, I am referring to Section (2), which in the opinion of any reasonable man would indicate whom the people of Philadelphia wanted to allocate the various boards and departments. I am reading Section (2):

"Any additional executive and administrative power which may be conferred on the City by amendment of the Constitution or laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania shall be vested in and exercised by the Mayor and, so far as practicable, by the officers, departments, boards and commissions designed in this charter. The Council shall by ordinance distribute among such officers, departments, boards and commissions such additional powers and duties, but to the extent that this is not practicable, it may create additional officers, boards and commissions for the exercise of such powers and performance of such duties and provide for the appointment of the additional officers or members of boards or commissions."

Mr. President, I think that a reading of this provision by any reasonable person should convince that person and the Members of this Senate that the people, on November 6, 1951, by ratifying this charter, had in mind that county departments are to be allocated after a thorough study by the council of our city and not by Members of this Senate or Legislature who may live anywhere from two to three hundred miles from the city of Philadelphia.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the roll call which has just been requested will be on the amendment which now has been presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the Majority Leader the roll call will be on the amendment offered by the distinguished gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, an amendment to Section 1 of Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675.

Mr. WALKER. Thank you, Mr. President. I am now ready for the roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recored as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

			Yosko,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: yeas 17, nays 26 and the amendment falls.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. LANE and Mr. ROSENFELD and Mr. HOLLAND and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—17

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

MOTION THAT SENATE BILL No. 897 BE APPROVED

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I now move that Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675 be approved on Second Reading.

Mr. TAYLOR. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I have some very interesting amendments to this bill which I think—I heard some laughter, and if that is an indication of ridicule, I do not think it is decent at all. I have studied this problem very carefully. I have studied it more carefully or, at least, as carefully as any other Member of the Senate. This is a very serious thing not only to me, not only to the Senate, not only to the citizens of Philadelphia but to everybody in the State who is interested in decency. I do not think it comes with good grace that I should be prevented from introducing these amendments, which I have worked very hard to prepare and then be met with laughter when I get up to remonstrate that fact.

Mr. President, we have been here a long time—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman yield for a moment? The Chair rules the motion out of order. We are now working on Section 1 of the bill.

Mr. WALKER. Now, Mr. President, I want to say, in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, that I am perfectly willing to cooperate with him to the best of my ability. I want to say, in all sincerity to the gentleman from Philadelphia, that there is an old maxim in equity about coming in with clean hands, and I want to say very frankly to him that in my opinion the amendments are being offered for one single purpose, and that is the purpose of delay, delay, delay.

Mr. President, the gentleman has had two or three amendments which he has presented already to Section 1 of this bill. Upon inquiry, the gentleman advises me that he has about forty more amendments. Now, Mr. President, I am assuming that these amendments were offered to the bill when the bill was in committee, and it is obvious that the committee did not approve the amendments but, of course, that does not bar the gentleman from Philadelphia from presenting the amendments on the floor.

Mr. President, this is one of the most unique proceedings I have every witnessed in all the years I have been in this Senate. We sat here tonight and permitted the gentleman from Philadelphia to debate this bill on Second Reading under the guise of offering amendments. Mr. President, with some difficulty I have persuaded my colleague, Senator Kephart, not to debate the bill on Second Reading because it is proper, under our Senate Rules, to debate the bill on Third Reading and Final Passage. It has been difficult for the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, to explain to his colleagues on this side of the aisle that a lot of the statements which are being made by the opponents of this bill could be answered by him, if he were given the opportunity. Two wrongs do not make a right, Mr. President, and it is wrong for either the Minority or the opponents of this bill, or the proponents of this bill, to debate the bill on Second Reading. I think the gentlemen of the Senate should thoroughly understand that we are not trying to gag you. We are not trying to bar the presentation of these amendments by Senator Rosenfeld, but, Mr. President, I think all of the fifty Members of this Senate should be seriously interested in upholding the Rules of the Senate and dignity of this Senate. When we have a rule that bills are debated not on Second Reading but on Third Reading, we, as Members of the Senate, should adhere to that rule.

Now, Mr. President, under no circumstances would I want to gag the gentleman from Philadelphia or any other Member of this Senate. I am perfectly willing to sit this out and let the gentleman present his amendments, but I point out again to this Senate that the amendments that his presenting deliberately for delay and not with any idea that he is going to mold this bill nearer to his heart's desire.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I find no rule in the Senate that forbids debate on any reading of a bill. I think that over the years there have been as many bills, as the Members of the Senate desired, debated on Second Reading. However, the most important question here is this. I understand that many times if a bill, a law, is taken to the higher courts for adjudication, that the intent of the legislature oftentimes becomes the basis for the decision or for the deliberations prior to the decision of the court.

Mr. President, as I understand it, the purpose of these amendments is to show to the higher court, in the event that this bill goes to the court of appeals, that the Legislature, at least some Members of the Legislature, had in mind certain amendments to correct some of the particular phases of this legislation that may have to be adjudicated by the higher court. If the amendments are not presented and the case goes before the court, the court can rightfully ask, "If you desired this change in the law, why not this change presented to the General Assembly?" Whether the General Assembly passes the changes or not is one question, but whether certain Members of the Legislature feel that certain changes are needed in the act is another question.

Mr. President we believe from the discussions given and the explanations given us by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, that these amendments are amendments which he would desire for the people of Philadelphia, that in his opinion would correct certain evils as he sees them in the legislation. We must get them, at least, on the record as having been presented in order that we know just what the gentleman from Philadelphia has in mind. We all, and I want to thank the Majority for that, that the Majority can by a simple procedure eliminate any discussion which is out of latitude, but in so far as putting in the amendments, I would say that that is the prerogative of any Member of the Senate.

I agree with the Chair that the only thing before us is that section of the bill which is being read, and the bill must be read by sections. We have not asked that each section be read at length. We are allowing the bill to be read in its normal processes. However, when that section comes up and there is a desire to amend, at least the amendment must be presented and a vote cast on it. That is all. We are not asking for a roll call just to be capricious. We are asking for a roll call for a specific purpose. We feel that this legislation must run the gamut of all the courts of the land, if necessary, to show whether or not this Legislature can thwart the will of the people.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from Westmoreland, and again I would like to suggest, and I say this in all sincerity, if the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, has additional amendments to Section 1, that he follow the prescribed or the customary practice in the Senate of presenting all of his amendments to Section 1 so that they can be read and acted upon. I want to say to the gentleman from Westmoreland, as to the recourse of the courts in determining the will of the Legislature, I am very happy to get the information as to how they decide that. I have often wondered that myself.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, may I suggest to the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker that I have no more amendments to Section 1, but it is impossible for me to limit my amendments to any of the other sections in the act, because they could not possibly read right. Therefore, with each office covered by each section it becomes necessary for me to introduce a separate amendment, because each one is a separate and different idea. That is why I would have to do it piecemeal, section by section, sometimes once, sometimes twice, sometimes three times, sometimes not at all. I am frank to say I do not have amendments to all the sections.

MOTION TO ADJOURN

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Friday, December 14, 1951, at 11 o'clock, a. m. Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. MCCREESH. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll. (During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll

Mr. MCGINNIS. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,
Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Diehm,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
			Yosko,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Berger,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watkins,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.,	Stevenson,	Watson,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wolfe,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Wood,
Kessler,	Peelot,	Wagner,	Hare,
Letzler,	Probert,	Walker,	Presiding Officer
Mahanay,	Robinson,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the motion: ayes 17, nays 25, and the motion falls.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HOLLAND and Mr. BYRNE and Mr. LANE and were as follows, viz.

YEAS—17

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,
Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,

NAYS—25

Berger,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watkins,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.,	Stevenson,	Watson,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wolfe,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Wood,
Kessler,	Peelot,	Wagner,	Hare,
Letzler,	Probert,	Walker,	Presiding Officer
Mahanay,	Robinson,

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. ROSENFELD offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2 (a), Page 3 by striking out the following words on line 11 "by the Judges of the several" and all of lines 12 to 19 inclusive and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "elected or the office abolished and the appointment qualifications and compensation of such employees as may be needed to perform the duties of said office shall all be as provided by ordinance of the City Council elected at the 1951 Municipal election;" amend Section 2, Page 4, line 1 by striking out all of said line.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to state for the benefit of the Members of the Senate that this Section 2. (a) deals with, I suppose I could call it the disposition of the office of sheriff, formerly the Sheriff of Philadelphia County, now the Sheriff of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, again for the benefit of the Members of this Body, I would like to point out that this is the first office taken care of by Senator Kephart in the so-called consolidation bill, and I think you will gather, when I read just two sentences from that section, that it is neither consolidation nor is it home rule.

Mr. President, Section 2(a) reads, among other things: "The Sheriff shall be appointed by the Judges of the several Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia sitting as a board." This is supposed to be consolidation.

Mr. President and Members of the Senate, for the last seventy-five years, at least in the city of Philadelphia, the citizens of the city of Philadelphia elected a sheriff. At least they had that much to say over who was going to be their sheriff. We thought, perhaps, it was bad, maybe it was not necessary, to have so many county offices elected, and so we thought if we made it a city office that something could be done about it. We thought maybe the office could be abolished. All of those things were discussed. Now, along comes the sponsor of this bill, and by this measure revokes further the right of the citizens of this city to elect a sheriff, removes him further from the jurisdiction of the City Council and places him under the jurisdiction of the Board of Judges. I do not want to go into too much detail now, and I think you have heard it already from other speakers about what this will do to the Board of Judges in Philadelphia. That, Mr. President, is what the sponsor of this bill considers consolidation. Mr. President, what else does this bill say? It says, "The compensation of the Sheriff shall continue to be that provided by statute." Now, that I assume is supposed to be home rule. Statute can only be one thing, a law of this General Assembly, and if this General Assembly decides that the Sheriff of the city of Philadelphia should be paid $50,000 a year, whether our council has it to pay him or not, does not make a bit of difference, but this Body is going to decide what the sheriff in our city is to be paid, whatever that amount is. Don't you gentlemen feel that we, in the city of Philadelphia, can determine such a simple question for ourselves? We determine the salaries for so many of our city officials, why is it that for the office of sheriff we do not have enough simple common sense to determine what he should be paid? Maybe the amount you decide will be too little, maybe there should not be a Sheriff in the city of Philadelphia, maybe we should abolish him.

Mr. President, again I repeat, I do not see how in the world anybody can get up on the floor of this Senate and defend this as a decent consolidation, as consolidation of any kind or as home rule. I would ask that the Members of this Body approve my amendment, which would provide that the sheriff would be either appointed or elected, or even abolished, when the City Council of Philadelphia examines it and decides what the will of the people of the city of Philadelphia is with regard to this question.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, I would like to explain this section of the bill which has that provision in it.

Mr. President, at the hearing before the Joint State Government Commission, it was Mr. Dilworth who made all the directives and statements as to what the Democratic Party would do. At the hearing the other day, and assuming the leadership of the Democratic Party in Philadelphia, he said under oath, "Every group here today will agree that the elective officers should be confined to those." He agreed that, "At the most the elective officers should be the Mayor, the Council, the District Attorney and the Controller. I do not think there is any group that appeared here today, or will appear here today, that wants any other officers elected."

Now, Mr. President, we are attempting to carry out the mandate of the civic groups in that connection, because we are having the sheriff not elected, and if he is not to be elected then the only other alternative is that he must be appointed. The question then recurs, by whom will he be appointed? His primary functions are to serve writs, conduct sheriff's sales and otherwise execute the orders of the Court. He has practically no police duties in Philadelphia because there is a separate department under the Home Rule Charter to handle police matters.

Mr. President, Section 1-102 of the Home Rule Charter says, "In the case of new officers whose primary duties are to assist the courts, the appointive power may be vested in the judges thereof." We are only doing what is the most logical and obvious thing to do with the sheriff. In fact, it is the only thing I can see to do. We cannot abolish the duty of serving writs, we cannot abolish sheriff's sales. Somebody must do the court's functions, and the only place to put him is under the court.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I have noted on two or three occasions now that the Senator from Philadelphia is making reference to some notes where he quotes Mr. Dilworth and Mr. Clark. I would like to know whether the Senator feels that Mr. Dilworth and Mr. Clark are speaking for all of the citizens of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, Mr. Dilworth and Mr. Clark and Mr. Finnegan all attended the hearing and all agreed that these things should be done. They said that they represented all the civic groups in Philadelphia, and that all the civic groups were agreed that these things should be done. I think there is no better cross-section of what the citizens of Philadelphia want than what these civic groups have asked, and what we have given them by giving them a Home Rule Charter, a consolidation amendment and by what we are now giving them in actually carrying out the final step of consolidation in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to know whether the paper book record, or whatever it is, from which the Senator is quoting, I would like to know whether those hearings took place prior to the passage of the Home Rule Act in the city of Philadelphia?

Mr. KEPHART. They did, Mr. President, but the framework of the city-county consolidation is what was being discussed at the hearing, and at that time they were asking for legislative action to consolidate certain things, and telling us what they wanted in Philadelphia and why it was necessary to have the consolidation amendments so that the legal obstacles of consolidation could be removed and the Legislature then go this last step and give Philadelphia consolidation. These excerpts which I have been reading appear in Volume 6 of the Senate Journal for the year 1949.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, would the gentleman be willing to quote the attitude of those gentlemen today with regard to this problem?

Mr. KEPHART. Well, Mr. President, I would have to let the gentlemen speak for themselves. I am sure that some of them, like Mr. Dilworth, will change their minds with the change of the wind.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to know whether in this bill the gentleman does not provide that the office of County Commissioners shall be abolished and its duties transferred to the Registration Commission, that is, its election duties?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, that is not included in this amendment or section which he is attempting to amend. I would be very glad to debate that any time he wants to, and now if he insists on it.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am not debating it. I would just like an answer to it, Mr. President. I would like the answer to that one question. Does not this bill at the present time provide for the transfer of the election duties of the County Commissioners to the Registration Commission, just yes or no?

Mr. KEPHART. Well, Mr. President, the question is a rhetorical question and—

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, either it does or does not.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, it is answered. He can read the bill just as well as I can, and the answer is obvious that it does, and it does so to carry out what the people in Philadelphia and what the Democratic Party have advocated for some time in the past.

Mr. President, I could read sections of the same hearing where they advocated that, and here is an editorial from the December 7, 1951 Evening Bulletin, a most reputable newspaper in Philadelphia, advocating the same plan. I can also read you an editorial from another reputable newspaper in Philadelphia, namely the Philadelphia Inquirer, also advocating exactly the same thing.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would merely want to point out that two years ago the Senator was anxious to transfer the duties of the Registration Commission to the County Commissioners, and he now has changed his mind.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, the Minority Leader from the House has asked me if we could take a five-minute recess for a very important decision. We would like to have the Members of the Democratic Caucus meet back here in the council chambers for just five minutes at the most. We have to decide something.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be at ease. (The Senate was at ease.)

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, in accordance with the ruling made by the Chair, I shall confine my remarks solely to the section that is about to be voted on for amendment.

Mr. President, I think that this Section 2 (a) is probably the first tip-off why the Republican organization was so anxious to pass this bill so quickly. It deals with the question of sheriff and assigns the power of appointment to the Common Pleas Judges of the city of Philadelphia. I was just wondering, could it be possible that Senator Kephart's bill so provides because the majority of the Common Pleas Judges in the city of Philadelphia are Republicans.

Mr. President, I said before and I say it now that if our Common Pleas Judges were polled on the question as to what they think of this 2 (a) provision, I am rather certain that there would be a unanimous vote, "Please, Members of this Senate, do not put us into politics."

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the roll call that has just been requested is a roll call on the amendments presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the Majority Leader, the request for a roll call is on the amendments offered by the distinguished gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, to Section 2 of Senate Bill No. 987.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am now ready for the roll call.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Silvert,
Barr,	Holland,	McMenamin,	Stiefel,
Byrne,	Lane,	Rosenfeld,	Yosko,
Dent,	Leader,	Ruth,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Berger,	Mahanay,	Robinson,	Watkins,
Chapman,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watson,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.	Stevenson,	Wolfe,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wood,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Hare,
Kessler,	Peelor,	Wagner,	Presiding Officer
Letzler,	Probert,	Walker,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: yeas 15, nays 26, and the amendments fall.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BARR and Mr. ROSENFELD and Mr. BYRNE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—15

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Silvert,
Barr,	Holland,	McMenamin,	Stiefel,
Byrne,	Lane,	Rosenfeld,	Yosko,
Dent,	Leader,	Ruth,

NAYS—26

Berger,	Mahanay,	Robinson,	Walker,
Chapman,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watkins,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.	Stevenson,	Watson,

Freed, Kephart, Kessler, Letzler,	Meade, Pechan, Peelor, Probert,	Taylor, Wade, Wagner,	Wolfe, Wood, Hare, Presiding Officer
--	--	-----------------------------	---

So the question was determined in the negative.
And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the section?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, it is now ten minutes past twelve. We have entered a new day. Can this Senate at this time vote on the Calendar of the previous day?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland, the Chair rules that this is still a legislative day. We have not adjourned.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, it is my understanding then that the time on the face of the clock in the halls of the Senate at this time, registering thirteen minutes after twelve, is not recognized as the time of day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland, it is not.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, will the Chair tell the Senate what day it is and what time it might be of that day?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland it is Thursday, before midnight.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, what time of the day?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Before midnight.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want any—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Westmoreland, the Chair has full knowledge of the fact that Senator Neff pushed the clock ahead.

Mr. DENT. We have full knowledge, Mr. President, of the fact that a Sergeant-at-Arms in the Senate has been pushing the clock back but, Mr. President, that is not the question I want for the record. I would like to have the Chair tell us at this moment what time of the day it is. These are important questions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is before midnight on Thursday, December 13.

Mr. DENT, Mr. President, in answer to the question I asked, the Chair has said that it is before midnight, Thursday.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. DENT. Then, Mr. President, am I to understand that the time now registered on the face of that clock is not recognized in the Senate Chamber as being the right time of day?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman is correct. The clock will be immediately returned to the time from whence Senator Neff advanced it.

Mr. DENT. Yes, Mr. President, we took the time and the picture.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sergeant-at-Arms will carry out the instructions of the Chair.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, might I suggest at this time on my question of parliamentary inquiry—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Sergeant-at-Arms will return the clock to the point from whence Senator Neff advanced it.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, it is my understanding that the Chair says that the time is now, when the Sergeant-at-Arms is through turning it, sixteen minutes until eleven of Thursday.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is before midnight on Thursday, December 13.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I want to suggest to the gentleman from Westmoreland, if he will take a look at the rules and the decisions which are in the pamphlet and in the Pennsylvania Manual, he will find that this question has been presented to the General Assembly on prior occasions, and the ruling of the Presiding Officer in each instance has been that the legislative day would continue until that legislative body adjourns for that day. Therefore Mr. President, the question of whether a proponent of a bill turns the clock forward or backward, or whether an opponent of a bill turns the clock forward or backward, is immaterial for legislative purposes. It is still Thursday, December 13.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, may I interrogate the Majority Leader?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I understood the Majority Leader to say that a legislative day does not end until the Session is adjourned, and it makes no difference whether a proponent or opponent turns the clock forward or backward I am wondering why the Chair ordered the Sergeant-at-Arms, at the request of the Majority Leader, to turn the clock back just a moment ago?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I say I cannot anticipate as to why the Chair did it. May I say to Senator Neff it was not upon the suggestion of the Majority Leader, and may I say further in answer to the gentleman's question, ever since I have been in this Senate, knowing that these rules and these rulings have been on the books for years, I have often wondered why the two branches, the House and the Senate, went through this business of continuing to turn the clocks back as though that were the governing factor. Under the rules, it is not strictly the governing factor. It is still a legislative day until the legislative body adjourns.

Mr. NEFF. Thank you, Senator Walker.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Neff, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, why did you order the Sergeant-at-Arms to turn the clock back?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The ruling of the Chair at the time was an instruction to the Sergeant-at-Arms to return the hand of the clock from whence it had been advanced and before midnight, to indicate that the legislative day had not yet ended.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Neff, will state his point of order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, Senator Walker stated that the rules provide that a legislative day is not ended until the Senate adjourns. Now, I am wondering whether or not the rules of the Senate supersede the Constitution of the State.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. They do not.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I would like to read for the record then the Act of April 13, 1887, P. L. 21, as last amended by the Act of May 3, 1923, P. L. 129, which makes Eastern Standard Time the only lawful time in Pennsylvania. Article 3, Section 4, of the Constitution, provides every bill shall be read at length on three different days in each house. The act setting up Eastern Standard Time as the legal time in Pennsylvania states that all days shall everywhere be taken to begin and end in accordance with said standard. This means simply the day is from midnight to midnight. If the clock is obviously wrong, it can be corrected, and so I will challenge the President of the Senate, as I do now, to call a recess for the purpose of appointing a committee of three to call Western Union for the purpose of ascertaining the correct Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The ruling of the Chair has been stated, and the gentleman is out of order.

APPEAL FROM RULING OF THE CHAIR

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is 'an appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Barr, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, is it not true that we have to make this in writing? Is that the ruling of the Chair?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No one asked that the appeal be placed in writing.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, according to parliamentary procedure, on an appeal from the ruling of the Chair, the Presiding Officer must step down.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I very respectfully suggest that it is my recollection, under the rules, that an appeal having been made from the ruling of the Chair, the Presiding Officer must relinquish the gavel of authority to one of his colleagues until the matter has been determined by the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The rule is, Senator Walker, that he may, and if that is the desire of the requester, I will be very happy to oblige.

The Chair at this time calls to the rostrum Senator Wade, of Cumberland, to preside during the appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I know that Senator Wade will get there on time, but I do not think, if President pro tempore is in the Senate, that the Presiding Officer can call Senator Wade to the Chair. I think that Senator Taylor must get in the Chair and appoint a Presiding Officer.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (M. Harvey Taylor) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. I directed Senator Hare to make that announcement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (George N. Wade) in the Chair.

Mr. WADE. For the information of the gentlemen of the Senate, the President pro tempore has requested me to announce that he has directed me to take the Chair.

On the question,

Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to have the exact wording of the ruling of the Chair read to the Senate, so that we know exactly what we are voting on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be at ease. (The Senate was at ease.)

(Reporter read to Senate the ruling of the Chair.)

And the question recurring,

Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, before the roll is verified, I have one question about the roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman will state his question.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to know how the gentleman who made the ruling, if he voted on this motion, Senator Hare, how he is recorded as voting?

Mr. HARE. For the information of the Chair, I voted "aye" as a Member of the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I challenge the right of the gentleman from Somerset, Senator Hare, to vote on the decision that he made when occupying the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair rules he can vote on the question before the Senate as a Member of this Body.

Mr. BARR. I appeal from the ruling of the Chair, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is nothing but the roll call before the Senate.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, there has been intervening business, and I now appeal from the decision of the Chair on Senator Hare's vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair rules that there is nothing before the Senate except the roll call and the results of the roll call.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, an appeal from the decision of the Chair is always before the Senate and proper. If the Secretary of the Senate will look it up, he can tell you that I am right.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair rules that that question will have to be decided after the roll call on the first appeal from the decision and on the question.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

Berger, Chapman, Fleming, Freed, Hare, Kephart, Kessler,	Letzler, Mahany, Mallery, McPherson, Jr., Meade, Pechan, Peelor,	Propert, Robinson, Snowden, Stevenson, Taylor, Wagner,	Walker, Watkins, Watson, Wolfe, Wood, Wade, Presiding Officer
--	--	---	---

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Bane, Barr, Byrne, Dent, DiSilvestro,	Holland, Lane, Leader, McCreesh,	McGinnis, McMenamin, Neff, Rosenfeld,	Ruth, Silvert, Stiefel, Yosko,
---	---	--	---

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: ayes 26, nays 17. The ruling of the Chair has been sustained and an appeal denied.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BARR and Mr. NEFF and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—26

Berger, Chapman, Fleming, Freed, Hare, Kephart, Kessler,	Letzler, Mahany, Mallery, McPherson, Jr., Meade, Pechan, Peelor,	Propert, Robinson, Snowden, Stevenson, Taylor, Wagner, Walker,	Watkins, Watson, Wolfe, Wood, Wade, Presiding Officer

Bane, Barr, Byrne, Dent,	DiSilvestro, Holland, Lane, Leader,	McCreesh, McGinnis, McMenamin, Neff,	Rosenfeld, Ruth, Silvert, Stiefel, Yosko,
-----------------------------------	--	---	---

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Fred P. Hare) in the Chair.

APPEAL FROM RULING OF THE CHAIR

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I wish to appeal from the decision of the Presiding Officer, Senator Wade, when he ruled it was proper for Senator Hare to vote when he, Senator Hare, was presiding and made a decision which was appealed.

Mr. NEFF. I second the motion, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. I second the motion, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be at ease. (The Senate was at ease.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. The question is on the appeal from the Chair's ruling on the propriety of Senator Hare voting on the question of an appeal while presiding.

On the question,

Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am wondering since the real subject matter, the real subject of this question is Senator Hare, whether Senator Hare has a right to be on the rostrum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of parliamentary inquiry is not well taken.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am afraid I will have to appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is one appeal pending now, but if the gentleman from Philadelphia—

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I will reserve mine until later.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld.

The question before the Senate is the question on the ruling of the Chair.

The Clerk will call the roll. (During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, because of the nature of the question, I feel that I should not be recorded as voting.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Cumberland, Mr. Wade, will not be recorded as voting. (The Clerk continued to call the roll.)

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Berger, Chapman, Fleming, Freed, Kephart, Kessler, Letzler,	Mahany, Mallery, McPherson, Jr., Meade, Pechan, Peelor, Propert,	Robinson, Snowden, Stevenson, Taylor, Wagner, Walker,	Watkins, Watson, Wolfe, Wood, Hare, Presiding Officer
---	--	--	--

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Bane, Barr, Byrne, Dent, DiSilvestro,	Holland, Lane, Leader, McCreesh,	McGinnis, McMenamin, Neff, Rosenfeld,	Ruth, Silvert, Stiefel, Yosko,
---	---	--	---

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any correction? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: ayes 25, nays 17, with 1 voting present. The ruling of the Chair has been sustained and an appeal denied.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BARR and Mr. NEFF and Mr. ROSENFELD and were as follows: viz:

YEAS—25

Berger,	Mahanay,	Robinson,	Watkins,

PRESENT—1

Wade.

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

APPEAL FROM THE RULING OF THE CHAIR

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I question the right of the Chair to assume the rostrum in connection with this roll call, and I appeal your decision.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia just appealed the decision which bears upon whether or not the Chair can call a roll on an appeal from the decision of the gentleman from Cumberland, Senator Wade. I submit, Mr. President, that the gentleman's point of order on the appeal is not well taken.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair so rules.

Mr. MAHANY. Mr. President, I have a great respect for the integrity of the Members of this Senate. I think we have all been congenial so far this Session. I came quite a distance to get down here and I hope that the Members of the Senate will not continue this line any further.

Mr. President, I am interested in this bill, I would like to vote intelligently on it and I respectfully ask that we get back on the track and discuss this bill as we should do like real men.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am very much in sympathy with the remarks of my colleague, Senator Mahany, and I must assume, as he states, that he is interested. We, on this side of the house, think this bill is very very important, but at the same time, knowing full well that there are twenty-six Members on the other side of the house, we feel a little bit frustrated that not one of those Senators who continue to vote constantly against each amendment and continue to vote constantly in favor of each section of the bill, has the slightest desire to get up to talk about the merits of the bill.

Now, Mr. President, we would be glad to discuss it with them. We do not care how long it takes, but we think if they are that interested then they owe themselves and the Senate the obligation to really let us know how they feel about each of these provisions.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, I think it has been said here a couple times this evening, that we have every intention of discussing this bill, section by section when the bill is before this Senate for Third Reading and Final Passage, as has been the practice in the Senate, and the gentleman has been advised of that a couple of times. I assured the gentleman we will be glad to debate the bill with him at that time. At this time, I think there is nothing before the Senate except the amendments being presented by the Senator from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny is quite right. The question before the Senate is on the amendments being presented by Senator Rosenfeld to Section 2 (a), of Senate Bill No. 897.

Mr. HOLLAND. Question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I thought I had the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, has the floor.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman to refrain from interrupting me? Now, Mr. President, with regard to Section 2—

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, kindly yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, is entirely out of order.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

PREVIOUS QUESTION

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move the previous question on Section 2 of Senate Bill No. 897.

Mr. KEPHART. I second the motion, Mr. President.

Mr. BERGER. I second the motion, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The previous question will now be put. The question is on the motion.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, there is an appeal from your decision.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman is out of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I called for the previous question, and it has been seconded.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, an appeal from the decision of the Chair has been made by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, and he deserves to be heard.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Lawrence is out of order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, there has been an appeal from the decision of the Chair made by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Holland, and he deserves to be heard under the rules of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has ruled the gentleman out of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have moved the previous question, and it has been seconded. I submit, Mr. President, there is nothing before the Senate but the adoption of Section 2.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

Mr. WALKER. I submit, Mr. President, the gentleman is out of order. There is nothing before the Senate but the adoption of Section 2.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, under a question of personal privilege—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senators please take their seats?

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman is out of order under a question of personal privilege.

The question is on the motion to put the previous question, and it has been properly seconded.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, what is the previous question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, Section 2 has had amendments offered to it by Senator Rosenfeld which were defeated. Senator Walker now moves the previous question on Section 2.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I beg to differ with the Chair. My amendments have not yet been voted on.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the gentleman is correct. The previous question is whether or not the Senate shall adopt the amendments to Section 2 presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia. I have moved the previous question and it has been seconded. I submit, Mr. President, the only thing before the Senate is to vote on the amendments submitted by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the present business before the Senate.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I differ with the statement made by the Majority Leader. The only thing before the Senate in my opinion is the vote for the previous question, not the vote on the amendments of Senator Rosenfeld.

Mr. WALKER. Now, Mr. President, may I explain to the gentleman from Washington, Senator Lane, that at the time I made the motion, or moved the previous question, I was of the impression we had already voted on the amendments which Senator Rosenfeld offered to Section 2 of the bill, and it was my impression there had been a roll call on it and the amendments had been voted down. I moved the previous question, Senator Lane, which would call for the adoption or rejection of Section 2. I have just been advised by the Chair that that is correct, that the amendments to Section 2, as offered by Senator Rosenfeld, were defeated by a roll call vote and the calling for the previous question now presents to the Senate one thing only, and that is whether or not the Senate will adopt Section 2 of the bill.

Mr. President, the moving for the previous question shut off all debate, and may I say to the gentleman from Washington that the only matter before us now is the roll call on the previous question as to whether or not we shall adopt Section 2.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, there has been no vote on the amendments that I offered to Section 2 and, therefore, the previous question is on my amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, there has been a roll call vote upon your amendments to Section 2. They were defeated 15 to 26. The only thing before the Senate is the previous question, Senator, and the previous question has been moved on that.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I merely want to state for the benefit of the Members of the Senate that I have another amendment to Section 2.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move the previous question.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Do I understand, Mr. President, that Mr. Walker does not want me to offer this amendment to Section 2?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate Senator Walker.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I submit there is nothing before the Senate but the question of moving the previous question.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, do I assume the gentleman does not want to be interrogated?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is nothing before the Senate but moving the previous question on Section 2.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I do not believe the Chair can prevent me from offering amendments to Section 2.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, the motion for the previous question shall preclude debate on the original subject. The previous question shall be moved by not less than four Members. When a call for the previous question has been made and sustained, the question shall be upon depending amendments and the main question, in their regular order, and all incidental questions of order arising after a motion for the previous question has been made, and pending such motion shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, the rule talks about the question being on pending amendments, and I am being prevented from presenting pending amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, the Chair again refreshes the gentleman's memory. When a call for the previous question has been made and sustained, the question shall be upon pending amendments and the main question, in their regular order, and all incidental questions of order arising after the motion for the previous question has been made, and that is the ruling of the Chair.

APPEAL FROM RULING OF THE CHAIR

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. I submit, Mr. President, there is nothing before the Senate but the roll call on the previous question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order raised by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, is well taken. There is nothing before the Senate but the roll call on the previous question.

Mr. LANE. Now, Mr. President, you are right.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. ROSENFELD. I would like to note for the record, again, I am not only being prevented from introducing amendments to this serious piece of legislation, but for the first time in my life I am informed that I cannot even appeal from the ruling of the Chair. I repeat my appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion to adopt the previous question.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I would like to know what we are voting on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is nothing in order but the roll call.

Mr. HOLLAND. On what, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is nothing in order but the roll call. The Clerk will proceed.

(The Clerk continued to call the roll.)

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is nothing in order but the roll call.

(The Clerk continued to call the roll.)

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, what are we voting on? I am serious about this. Are we voting on the roll call, or what are we voting on?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is nothing before the Senate but the roll call.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, can't you, as the Presiding Officer, tell me what we are voting on?

(The Clerk continued to call the roll.)

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President I rise on a question of Parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman is out of order. There is nothing before the Senate but the announcement of the roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. WALKER and Mr. KEPHART and were as follows, viz:

----------	-------	--------

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The third section was read.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, has the floor. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I yield to my colleague from Lawrence, Senator Neff.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Neff.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I wish to inquire as to how I was recorded as voting on the measure just passed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The roll call has already been announced. The gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Neff, is recorded as voting "present."

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I did not vote "present", and I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman is out of order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair made no decision. The gentleman is out of order.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I yield to my colleague from Lawrence, Senator Neff.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Freed

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order. Will the gentleman from Lehigh, Mr. Freed, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. FREED. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I would like to inquire of the Senator from Lehigh if, with full cognizance of his oath of office, he will tell me the time as indicated by his timepiece

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman is out of order. There is nothing before the Senate but agreement to Section 3, and this is facetious.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Lehigh deserves the right of the floor to answer a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman's question is not germane to the problem before the Senate.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, he has indicated that he will answer, and I see no reason why the Chair should take an arbitrary attitude at this time and refuse the gentleman from Lehigh the right of the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. I will, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny may proceed.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, with regard to Section 3 of this bill which is now before us, if he has amendments which he would like to present at this time? I want to say to the gentleman that I am still trying to cooperate with him and have his amendments presented to the Senate. I appreciate the fact as we get closer to the hour of midnight, tempers get somewhat frayed, and may I say to the gentlemen of the Senate that if we could just see a motion picture of what has transpired in the last half hour, we would not be very proud of our adult conduct here on the floor of the Senate.

Now, Mr. President, I would appreciate it very much if the gentleman from Philadelphia would advise me if he has amendments to present to Section 3.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, may I answer by stating to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, that I, too, appreciate the tension which exists and I appreciate with him that it is not only created by reason of the fact that the hour is getting late or early, depending upon whose hour we use, but I do not think it will help the situation one way or the other if the gentleman, in effect, gags me from presenting amendments to very important features of Section 2.

Now, Mr. President, I am hoping that we have cooled off and relaxed a little bit, and if the gentleman will permit me, orally, to present my additional amendments to Section 2, I will do all I can to preserve as much order and decorum in this Body as it is possible for me to do.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I appreciate what the gentleman from Philadelphia has said. I do hope that the wish is father to the thought. I am saying this carefully, and I am quite confident that conscientious consideration will be given to this problem from here on in.

Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Philadelphia understands very thoroughly the mechanics involved. Now, I think he understands we are at a point where Section 2, according to the record, has been adopted by the Senate. I have no desire to shut the gentleman off, and I say that to him very sincerely. I am going to cooperate with him. I want to say to him that if this can be conducted in an orderly, dignified, fashion, I assure the gentleman from Philadelphia that he will have the utmost cooperation from the Majority side.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, will the gentleman yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be in order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I say to Senator Rosenfeld if we can conduct this in a quiet, orderly, fashion, I assure the gentleman that he will have the complete cooperation of the Majority side. As he knows, turmoil and confusion only gather momentum, and I would appreciate very much if the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, will present to the Senate the amendments he has for Section 3 which is before us. I apologize very humbly to the gentleman from Philadelphia for adopting Section 2 without fully understanding that he had additional amendments to the section. If the gentleman will cooperate and present his amendments to Section 3, again I will offer him the full cooperation of the Majority side, because I am assuming we are going to do it in a quiet, orderly dignified fashion.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, if the gentleman really wants to cooperate with me, he will move to reconsider the vote by which Section 2 passed Second Reading, and permit me to offer amendments as simply as I know how.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I answer the gentleman—will he yield for the answer?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia, I will be very happy to cooperate with him. Without attempting to establish who threw the first stone, may I say to the gentleman that I will be very happy to make the motion to reconsider the vote by which Section 2 passed Second Reading. If the balance of this bill can be conducted in an orderly, dignified, fashion, I think then that we will all be a lot better off for it.

Mr. President, I want to say very frankly that I would be embarrassed, as I know all of us would be embarrassed, if we had visitors in this Senate Chamber who for the first time were seeing a Session of one of the greatest legislative bodies in the world, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, but the attitude of disgust that might arise from disgruntled people does not worry me a bit. If we can continue in an orderly fashion, I will make that motion.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I have been trying to keep as cool as I can as the hour gets earlier. I note here something that I think would help all of us if I would just read from the Pennsylvania State Reporter, Volume 85, Page 401, Supreme Court Decision, Kilgore vs. Magee. In part it says something which I think is very apropos at the moment. "So far as the duty and consciences of the members of the legislature are involved the law is mandatory. They are bound by their oaths to obey the constitutional mode of proceeding, and any intentional disregard is a breach of duty and a violation of their oaths."

Mr. President, these matters that cause this kind of a display, as it were, on the Senate floor are displays in minimum; a maximum display would come if an act so utterly disgusting to a valiant minority becomes a law. A minority does not lose its decorum unless something is being attempted that violates their sense of justice.

Now, Mr. President, there are questions to be answered and questions to be asked. We realized that this would result in exactly what is happening, and I would say that it is my honest opinion that when this bill hits the House, if it has not been amended in some fashion to allow the minority to express an opinion, that the House will probably take up where the Senate left off, if we leave off.

Mr. President, I am sure that at this hour none of us like this early hour tension, and none of us like the actions that are going on, but isn't it possible to maintain an equal balance under stress? It is just as proper, Mr. President, for the minority to use every legal means to stop the passage of an act as it is for a majority to use every political means to enforce the passage of an act. We all know that this is a political bill. It is one of the types or pieces of legislation that come up maybe once or twice a Session, when we lose regard for what we all conceive to be the proper decorum of the Senate. No one in this room wants to do anything to bring any kind of disgrace, any kind of criticism to any of the Members of the Senate but how can we proceed in this manner when all of us feel so deeply about it? It is strictly a political question.

I do believe, Mr. President, that if the gentleman from Philadelphia is allowed to present his amendments, no matter how long it appears to take, it will not take nearly as long as the confusion and the appeals and all the legal rights which they will invoke in the matter. That is something that no man can stop. Each individual Senator feels it his duty to do that which he feels to be right in the matter. The Republican Majority feels it their right to do what they are doing, I know they do. The Democrats feel the same way, and I would suggest to all of the Members of the Senate that the gentleman who feels so deeply about his amendments be allowed to present them and that we vote on them. It does not matter whether you do it in a loud, noisy fashion. The hour sometime must reach twelve o'clock.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am perfectly willing to permit the gentleman from Philadelphia to present his amendments. I understand he has amendments to Section 2, and I understand that inasmuch as cooperation is a two-way street, it will be extended by and given to both sides. Let us see if we can conduct the consideration of the balance of this bill in a courteous, dignified manner.

RECONSIDERATION OF SECTION 2, SENATE BILL No. 897

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Section 2 of Senate Bill No. 897 passed second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I voted in the affirmative.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. President, I voted in the affirmative.

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. ROSENFELD offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2(a) Page 3, Line 11 by striking out the following on said line "Judges of the several" and all of line 12 and insert in lieu thereof the following "Mayor elected at the 1951 Municipal election Provided"; Amend Section 2(a) Page 3, Line 16 by striking out the words "aforesaid board of judges" and inserting in lieu thereof "Personnel Director."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, for the information of the Senate, so that we can perhaps vote on this amendment intelligently now that we are in a quiet, sound, relaxed mood, I would like to explain that this still involves the office of Sheriff of the city of Philadelphia. Most of the groups of the city of Philadelphia are anxious that city council be given the right to determine what happens to the office of sheriff. That was the purpose of the amendment which this Body defeated.

Now, Mr. President, there are some groups in the city of Philadelphia who would like to have the Mayor appoint the Sheriff of the city of Philadelphia, and it is for that reason that this amendment was offered so that those groups could present to this Body their request that the future City Sheriff of the city of Philadelphia be an appointive office, appointed by the Mayor of the city of Philadelphia. I ask all my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I am sure you will agree with me that I sat here and conducted myself as a gentleman tonight.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Northampton.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, when I requested you to tell me what we were voting on, I was sincere about it because of the turmoil here and, frankly, I still do not know what the question was that we were voting on. I do not believe I cast a ballot, although I am probably recorded as voting for something or other.

Mr. President, I heard Senator Mahany say that we should cut out this nonsense. I do not think this is nonsense at all, and I do not think it is nonsense because it is the only way we have to show our resentment against something that is wrong. I am sure that you, as Presiding Officer, and every Member in this Senate, know that what is being attempted here is wrong.

Mr. President, I heard Senator Walker say that if the gallery were filled with people, it certainly would be embarrassing to the Members of this Senate for the conduct displayed here tonight, and I say to you that if that gallery were filled with Philadelphians here tonight, I am sure that they would take the same attitude that we are taking here. So far as I am concerned, I will fight and stay here until hell freezes over before I permit this Senate to resolve itself into a dictatorship, and that is exactly what the Senate is trying to do, resolve itself into a dictatorship because it is trying to reverse the will of the people. Dictatorships are being fought all over the world, and if we do not fight against dictatorship here, we would not be performing our duty. I am proud to be a Member of the Senate. I take a great deal of pride in it, but, I repeat, I would not permit this Senate to resolve itself into a dictatorship.

Mr. President, just what are you trying to do here in Section 2? In Section 2 it says that the Sheriff shall be appointed by the Judges of the several Courts of Common Pleas of Philadelphia, sitting as a board. Why should the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia appoint a Sheriff in Philadelphia? We just had an election last November, we had a primary election, too, and the Democrats put up a candidate for Sheriff and the Republicans put up a candidate for sheriff. They were nominated in accordance with the Constitution and in accordance with the laws of this Commonwealth, and then the general election came and it was a bitter campaign as you well know. There were street corner rallies by both parties, and there they discussed the issues and they went before the people and told them what they stood for; they appeared on television and there they talked about their platforms; they appeared on the radio and there was all sorts of literature issued in the city of Philadelphia for the office of sheriff. The people had a chance to read, hear, see and absorb everything that went on during that campaign, and finally election day came. The people went to the polls and they voted. Unfortunately for you, and fortunately for the Democrats in Philadelphia, a Democrat was elected, and what do you do now? You are saying to the people of Philadelphia, "We do not care what you decided at the polls. We are going to change that decision of yours, and we are going to take that election out of your hands and we are going to place the appointment of the sheriff, whom the people elected, into the hands of the Judges."

Mr. President, what will you be doing when you do that? You will be making politicians out of the Judges and you ought to be ashamed to do it. I am surprised and shocked, really I am, that former Judge Fine, now Governor Fine, has not come into this Chamber and gotten hold of the Republican leadership and told them to do what was right, and what is right? Let those persons take office whom the people elected at the polls election day.

Down in my county, Mr. President, and it is a Democratic county just like Philadelphia was a Republican county, they elected a Republican Sheriff. Let us assume that the situation was reversed here and there was a bill presented to stop them from taking office. Would you stand for it? Why, of course, you would not, and if you would I would call you cowards and I would call every Member of the Senate who would stand for any such thing a coward.

Mr. President, you know and I know what this section in this bill wants to do by calling for the appointment of a sheriff, who was elected by the people of Philadelphia, by judges. You know what you want to do, you want that Board, which is appointed by Republican judges, to appoint the employees in the sheriff's office so that they could be frozen there, employees that the people of Philadelphia said by their votes on election day, "We no longer want you in office, because while you were there you did not conduct yourselves in accordance with law and in accordance with the best interests of the people of the city of Philadelphia," but yet now here in this Chamber you want to resolve yourselves into a dictatorship and you want to reverse what the people decided should be done.

Mr. President, I will tell you it hits me right here, and I am sincere about it, to see you people here, gentlemen all of you, stand for something like that. You ought to hang your heads in shame, and I do not know how any of you can go back and face your constituents knowing that you indulged in this practice here tonight. I hope that before this bill comes up for Third Reading, Governor Fine will get the Republican leadership and tell them to send this bill back to committee where it belongs and let the law take its course. Let those people who were elected at the polls on election day take their offices, and if under the charter something is to happen later by which those people are to be replaced, then wait until that time comes.

Mr. President, I realize that there is a Presidential election next year, but I am telling you now, Members of the Senate and Members of the Republican Party, you are not going to help yourselves by keeping a lot of drones on the pay roll whom the people said should be eliminated from office, should be eliminated from their jobs. The people will go to the polls and express their resentment against these tactics here, and you will regret and rue the day you ever passed this bill if you do pass it.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the roll call is about to be called by the Clerk on the amendments offered by Senator Rosenfeld to Section 2 of Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Allegheny, we are voting on a roll call vote on the amendments placed by Senator Rosenfeld in Section 2, of Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am ready for the roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Dent,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
			Yosko,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: ayes 17, nays 26, and the amendments fall.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. HOLLAND and Mr. BYRNE and Mr. SILVERT and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—17

Bane,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman if he has any additional amendments for Section 2?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Yes, I do, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I yield to the gentleman from Philadelphia.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. ROSENFELD offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2 (a), page 3, line 11 by striking out the following on said line "Judges of the several" and all of line 12 and insert in lieu thereof the following "Personnel Director Provided"; Amend Section 2(a), Page 3, line 16 by striking out the words "aforesaid board of judges" and inserting in lieu thereof "Personnel Director".

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, this amendment 15 offered by me in order to accommodate certain groups in the city of Philadelphia who prefer to have the sheriff appointed by our new personnel director. They thought that would be in keeping with the new streamlined city charter.

Mr. President, I suggest that my colleagues vote in favor of this amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll (During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Yes, I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman if he has any further amendments to Section 27.

Mr. ROSENFELD. I do, Mr. President. I yield to my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Stiefel.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. STIEFEL offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2(f), Page 5 by striking out all of lines 12 to 20 inclusive and inserting in lieu thereof as follows "The former County Commissioners of Philadelphia County now the City Commissioners may be appointed, elected, be abolished and have their duties transferred and the appointment qualifications and compensation of such employees as may be needed to perform the functions of such office shall be as provided by ordinance of the City Council elected at the 1951 Municipal election"; Amend Section 2 (f), Page 6 by striking out all of lines 1 to 19 inclusive; Amend Section 2 (f), Page 7 by striking out all of lines 1 to 10 inclusive.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, this is probably the most vulnerable section of the proposed legislation because it deals with the election machinery in the city of Philadelphia. It has already been pointed out tonight that two years ago Senator Kephart introduced legislation transferring the Registration Commission to the Election Bureau of the County Commissioners. Now, in this case there is an element as to the constitutionality of this provision, because if this measure is adopted, the uniformity which is provided by the Constitution of Pennsylvania will now have this exception, namely, in the case of the city of Philadelphia where the election machinery will be transferred to the Registration Commission.

Mr. President, this again is a violation of the principle of home rule because the election machinery will be vested now in the Registration Commission, and the Registration Commission consists of five members who are appointed by the Governor of Pennsylvania. I pointed out two years ago, and state now, that appointees of the Governor in certain cases may be persons of decency, persons who are interested in preserving clean elections in the city of Philadelphia, but even today we have a situation where one of the vacancies has not been filled. We have only one Democratic member on that commission, and despite our clamor for the appointment of a second member, our wishes have not been carried out despite promises that were made during the Session.

Mr. President, if you transfer this election function to the Registration Commission, we are again violating the principle of home rule. In Philadelphia, for generations the election machinery has always been of a tainted nature, and now we would like to have a system whereby the wishes of the electorate could be carried out, and by vesting this election function in the Registration Commission we are again frustrating the will of the people of Philadelphia. For this reason I appeal to the membership of the Senate to vote in favor of this amendment, which will carry out the wishes of the people of Philadelphia.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, for the benefit of the Members of the Senate who do not live in Philadelphia and who do not know all about our city government down there, the Registration Commission is composed of five members, three of whom are Republicans and two of whom are Democrats. In other words, there is minority representation.

Mr. President, Senator Stiefel has raised the question of the propriety of making this transfer of the Election Board from the County Commissioners to the Registration Commission, and he has also raised the question of its constitutionality. At the hearing before the Joint State Government Commission in 1948, Mr. Clark and Mr. Dilworth agreed with me, and so did Mr. Finnegan, and they had this to say:

"As to consolidation of election functions in the Registration Commission, which we favor, I hope you will do it but do not consolidate with the County Commissioners. You can do a good thing by consolidating Registration and Elections in the Registration Commission. There is some question as to the constitutionality. I think it is constitutional, and I suggest that those sections of the Constitution dealing with voting machines and election laws are broad enough to permit this being done."

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, during the hearing which was held before the Committee on Local Government, Senator Kephart referred to the same passage in which he questioned Mayor-Elect Clark about the Constitutional features of this amendment, and at that time, according to the record, Mayor-Elect Clark expressed his opinion that this may be constitutional. I have all the respect for their rendition of Mayor Clark, but at the same time I feel that many Members of this Senate are well versed with the provisions of the Constitution of Pennsylvania and they know that a salient feature of such provisions is uniformity, and once that uniformity is violated the provisions become unconstitutional.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, the section we are dealing with, as presently in the bill, transfers the duties of the Election Board from the County Commissioners to the Registration Commission. I heard Senator Kephart say, before twelve o'clock, that he considered the Bulletin a fearless, independent paper, which is interested in the welfare of the people.

Mr. President, I would now like to interrogate Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I assume, Senator Kephart, that you still feel that the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin is a fearless, independent paper.

Mr. KEPHART. I do, Mr. President, but I have this reservation in connection with the problem at hand, namely, that last week they wrote an editorial in which they favored this and today they wrote an editorial in which they are not so sure. They will have to make up their mind. I have an editorial from the Inquirer which is whole-heartedly in support of the provisions.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SILVERT. Senator Kephart, did you read today's editorial dealing with this question?

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I just said I did.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, the Bulletin, which we can agree is an independent, fearless paper, today in an editorial said that transferring the Election Board to the Registration Commission is one of the worse features of Senator Kephart's bill.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, it might be a good time now to read the editorial of the Evening Bulletin into the record.

"Election Consolidation"

"It has long been recognized as a weakness of Philadelphia's election machinery that responsibility was divided. Five Registration Commissioners appointed by the Governor are responsible for registration. Three County Commissioners elected by the voters are responsible for the conduct of elections.

"The merging of these duties in a single body has often been urged, but the path to that goal has always seemed one-way.

"It was possible to transfer the registration duties to the County Commissioners, but not the other way around. The feeling has been, however, that even to achieve unification of the election administration it would be a mistake to increase the powers of the County Commissioners.

"As elected officers, not under a merit system, the County Commissioners were too hard to get at if something went wrong.

"The adoption of the City-County consolidation has provided another solution. It now seems to be possible to abolish the County Commissioners and to transfer their duties elsewhere. In the distribution of their powers, the Registration Commission looks like a logical place to put responsibility for the conduct of elections, and that is where Senator Kephart's consolidation bill would put it.

"Administration of registration and elections by a single agency works well in other cities."

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, for Senator Kephart's edification, may I read just two lines from today's Bulletin editorial. After discussing the bad features of the bill, it goes on to say, "Equally obnoxious is the proposal to give the Governor control of all election functions," and that is exactly what this bill is doing.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would like to make just two brief comments with regard to this amendment. One is that if this provision is carried out, Philadelphia would be the only county of the Commonwealth which would have its election machinery in the hands of an appointed board under the Governor. Secondly, I would like to state for the benefit of my colleagues here that while it is true that the Registration Commission is supposedly bipartisan, there is no guarantee at all that the Governor would appoint a person from the other party who would not either be a left-handed dealer or a left-handed Republican.

Mr. President, I might say, finally, that there has been a vacancy in the office of the Registration Commission in the city of Philadelphia since February of 1951. It is now December of 1951. There have been three elections, one on the Charter Commission, the primary, election and the General Election, and the Governor has not seen fit yet to appoint another minority member. This means that if it were carried out to its logical conclusion, that if there were two vacancies for minority members on that Commission and if the Governor did see fit to place anybody in those positions, then we would not have a bipartisan commission to handle our election machinery. That is the danger of this proposal.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, if there is anything personal in his remark about left-handed Republicans?

Mr. ROSENFELD. No. Mr. President, nothing at all. I do know, Mr. President, that during every election campaign there are Republicans for the Democratic candidate and Democrats for the Republican candidate, and it is apt to be one of those kind of individuals who might be appointed as a minority member.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, will Senator Kephart permit himself to be interrogated?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BYRNE. Senator Kephart, you mentioned several names tonight, and you mentioned Mr. Finnegan's name. Do you have any quotes of Mr. Finnegan in reference to the County Commissioners and in reference to the Registration Commission?

Mr. KEPHART. No, Mr. President. Mr. Finnegan, what he did was wait until Dilworth and Clark got through.

Mr. BYRNE. You do not have the quote?

Mr. KEPHART. Yes, Mr. President, I have a quote saying practically, "Me, too."

Mr. BYRNE. Well, why don't you read his quote?

Mr. KEPHART. I will be glad to, Mr. President.

Mr. Finnegan said, "There has been a great deal said about city-county consolidation and the City Charter, and I think that I can say that I agree with ninety-eight per cent of what has already been said along these lines, and it is not my intention to add any further comment to that matter," and ninety-eight per cent is practically, "Me, too."

Mr. BYRNE. Are they the quotes from the meeting which was held two years ago?

Mr. KEPHART. Yes, Mr. President, they are.

Mr. BYRNE. Thank you.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Senator Kephart, is this the point in Section 2 where they turn the election machinery over to the Registration Commission?

Mr. KEPHART. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Now, Mr. President, this to me, as a resident of Allegheny County, is the most serious section of the bill and I think the section that affects all the gentlemen of the Senate. First of all, Mr. President, if you will let me delay one moment, I want to read the Constitution, just one line. This is Article 8, Section 7, where it says, "All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens or for the registration of electors shall be uniform throughout the State."

Now, Mr. President, there are sixty-seven counties in this, what was a great Commonwealth previous to this Session of the Legislature, and they are the County Commissioners who are elected by the people and who are supervising the elections in this Commonwealth and are subject to the choice of the people at the polls, and if anything is done wrong they can be removed either for cause or by the electors.

I submit to you, Mr. President, that when the Return Board meets next year in Philadelphia, this Return Board will be these gentlemen under this bill who are these political hacks, and who are appointed and not elected. I for one, Mr. President, am not going out and ring the doorbells in my precinct, and I know many others are not going out and ring doorbells in their divisions to have their pluralities in their counties, whether Republicans or Democrats, wiped out by such types of persons who are in an appointive job. It appears to me, I think since February, that there has been a vacancy on the Registration Commission in Philadelphia, and the party then in power knew what was going to happen at the November election, and they wanted to save that vacancy for some ward heeler who has been discredited by the people in Philadelphia.

I am not a lawyer, Mr. President, but I can read the English language. Mr. Walker asked me to prove it, and I will prove it by re-reading that part of the section of the Constitution.

"All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens or for the registration of electors shall be uniform throughout the State."

Mr. President, I submit to you that I can read the English language because that is the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Mr. President, this is a deliberate political attempt to try and circumvent the Constitution. I say to the Members of the Senate that this Subsection, in Section 2, is absolutely contrary to the Constitution.

Mr. President, this section, I say, affects each and every one of us in the Senate, and this I am very serious about. I, for one, will not see the pluralities of either Republicans or Democrats in the other sixty-six counties of this State erased by these men who have been spoken of or about at the polls during the past three preceding elections in Philadelphia, namely, the election of 1951, the election of 1950 and the election of 1949.

Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I would like to ask Senator Kephart if he has read Article 8, Section 7 of the Constitution?

Mr. KEPHART. I have, Mr. President, if that is the one you just read.

Mr. BARR. I am sure you have read it, Senator Kephart, and before I ask you the question, may I say that you were not aware of it until today when I showed it to you in front of the rostrum of the Senate.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, if I might further answer Senator Barr, after he showed me the part of the Constitution under which he claims this section might be unconstitutional, I started to look into that question and I was agreeably surprised to find no less authority on the subject than the Mayor-elect of Philadelphia, and I would rather rely on his opinion than Senator Barr's.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, the gentleman about whom he speaks, Mr. Clark, I think I had the pleasure of meeting just once and I presume that Mr. Clark could have had this question asked of him at some of these meetings which he is referring to and not pinpointed to the Constitution, and for that I can excuse him. Secondly, I do not have to abide by the opinion of Mr. Clark.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I did not understand the gentleman properly. Did he say that the Mayor-Elect did not give his opinion on this point?

Mr. BARR. No. Mr. President, I did not say that.

Mr. President, I think that there are quite a number of lawyers on the other side of the aisle, and I think that they can read the Constitution as well as I, and if they read this one section and read this bill, they would know that this section is absolutely contrary to Article 8, Section 7, of the Constitution. I, for one, will not stand idly by and see the pluralities of the sixty-six other counties, whether their pluralities be Democratic or Republican, erased by these discredited ward heelers that I have read about in every paper and periodical in this Country, and who have been a cancerous sore to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, because I have been in many other states and people have asked me about Philadelphia, and I was very happy to say that while I am in politics, I am three hundred fifty miles distant from where that cancerous machine has been operating.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I would like to make a further comment and observation on this particular section. I think that in the event of an election of the Board of Elections, which is the County Commissioners, the President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas takes over jurisdiction. Now, if we are going to have appointees perform the same duties in a first class county as the President Judge performs in all other counties from third class up, I say it is very far amiss. I am very sorry that my good friend and colleague, Senator Diehm, is not in the Senate this evening. I am quite sure that he would take the floor and support the position I am taking, and I say to you here and now, your Board of Commissioners in all other counties, including your county, Senator Hare, acts as the County Board of Elections.

I say to you, Mr. President, when we have men appointed to those positions who supervise those elections, something radically wrong can happen. I must also inform you that each and every County Commissioner, who acts as a Board of Elections, also posts a bond for the faithful performance of his duty.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, as we all know, the Philadelphia Inquirer, dated under tomorrow's date line, comes out on Thursday evening, tonight. I have here tomorrow morning's Inquirer, and I would like to read into the record what "Uncle Dominick" has to say in connection with my bill.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I would like to ask Senator Kephart what edition of the Inquirer is that.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I just have the second section. It is tomorrow morning's edition. I do not have the front page. It is the editorial page.

Mr. NEFF. Is that this morning, Friday morning?

Mr. KEPHART. Senator Neff, if you had been listening, I carefully explained twice that the edition I have comes out the evening before, and I have the Thursday evening edition which, however, is dated with Friday's date line.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, the Senator did not speak quite loudly enough or audibly, and I did not understand him correctly.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, in case some of you do not know who "Uncle Dominick" is, it is John M. Cummings, editorial writer for the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"FRUITS OF VICTORY" SHOULD BE CITY'S, NOT POLITICIANS'

"A little of what passes for dignity among gentlemen of the bar would have been more in keeping with the reputation of Richardson Dilworth when he appeared at a hearing in Harrisburg the other day to have his say against the Kephart Bill.

"Dilworth is known as a competent trial lawyer. More than one trial lawyer with a poor case has sought to befuddle an issue by shouting and carrying on in a manner quite shameful to a profession graced by giants such as George Wharton Pepper and the late John G. Johnson.

"For all his smartness, Dilworth tipped his mitt when Senator Stevenson, chairman of the Local Government Committee, threatened to end the hearing if Philadelphia's District Attorney-elect did not quit his shouting and his badgering.

"I'd be delighted to have it dismissed," said Dilworth.

"Here you have the trial lawyer looking for a mis-trial. Here was Dilworth looking for material which he could use to attack the committee and make it appear he had been given a raw deal.

"Let it be conceded the Kephart Bill is not a perfect piece of legislation. Some of its features undoubtedly should be thrown into the discard. But basically it attempts to do exactly what Dilworth has been insisting from a thousand street corners should be done, and the sooner the better.

"It attempts to do what the Democrats and Republicans in this town have been clamoring for over a long period of years. Its prime purpose is to put into effect city-county consolidation under the terms of the Constitutional Amendment ratified by the voters of the State last month on the same day that Dilworth was elected District Attorney and Joe Clark Mayor.

"The trouble arises, in the main, from the circumstance that no one, Republican or Democrat, expected the Legislature to be in session so late in the year. It was figured that for at least two years nothing could be done in the way of carrying out the provisions of the amendment. But the Legislature is in session. And Senator Kephart put in a bill. And from the moment of its appearance, Mr. Dilworth and several others have been screaming like a pig caught under a gate.

"The complaint revolves around the assumption that the Kephart Bill, in Dilworth's words, 'robs us of the fruits of victory.'

"Well, what are the fruits to which he refers?

"They are plums, political plums. In short, they are jobs. They are jobs in the various county departments which would be incorporated in other agencies under the new City Charter.

"The Bureau of Municipal Research, which certainly cannot be accused of attempting to ignore the will of the people, says the Kephart Bill 'makes real strides toward these objectives,' meaning among other things, simplification of the city government.

"There are features of the bill as it stands which should be changed, says this agency. A similar report comes from the Committee of Seventy.

"But underlying everything else is this question: Are we going to have consolidation now or do we have to wait for another four years to satisfy the patronage-hungry?

"They cry out against piling new responsibilities on the Board of Judges. They should against an attempt to freeze Republican jobs. But these are the wails of blokes endeavoring to befuddle the issue.

"By agreement between the two parties, bi-partisan teams were sent around the State shortly before the election. Their mission was to enlist the support of up-State counties in behalf of the merger amendment. The amendment was adopted by a rousing vote. The Legislature being in session, something ought to be done to give the amendment life and meaning."

Mr. President, I wish to quote from today's Thursday Evening Bulletin Editorial:

"The Legislature has an opportunity to give us a better county set-up than the one the voters have displaced, and Philadelphia has a right to demand it."

Mr. President, my bill will give Philadelphia that better government.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. KEPHART. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, will the Senator agree to the amendments that are being requested by the civic organizations and newspapers of the city of Philadelphia?

Mr. KEPHART. Well, Mr. President, I do not think that I agree with all that those organizations say. As a matter of fact, they touch upon, as I understand them, subjects which there is no reason for us to touch upon at this time at all and which are not involved in connection with the integration which we are here attempting to do. In other words, they wish to go farther and meddle in State functions, whereas we are interested here in integrating the county functions with the city.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would merely like to reiterate that on a prior interrogation on the question of what is a county function and what is a State function, if I did not clear the matter up for the benefit of my colleagues on the other side of the house, I have certainly cleared it up for my colleagues on this side of the house. You see, Mr. President, with the varied comments, with the change in the attitude of the press from day to day, upon a thorough reading of this bill, upon a closer scrutiny of what it actually does, all this confusion has been created, which points up to the fact that it is impossible in a few weeks time to do a proper job. This is a job that must be done by cool-headed individuals over a reasonable period of time. It was something that my good colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, himself recommended when this matter was before the committee yesterday.

Mr. ROSENFIELD, just yesterday, it seems like a long time, well, I should say two days ago if I want to be consistent, but in keeping with the ruling of the Chair I will say it was yesterday, yesterday my good colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, suggested that it might be possible that the City Charter Commission, which previously considered this measure, might sit down and do the same kind of a job that they did with regard to the Home Rule Charter. We even agreeably listened to a suggestion that, perhaps, a new commission could be created, half of whom would be appointed by the Governor and half of whom would be appointed by the Mayor-elect, and we on this side of the house, and all of the decent citizens and groups in the city of Philadelphia who are interested, who are anxious and willing, and I might add, Mr. President, that many of the Republican Members of not only the Local Government Committee but of this Body, were heartened at the idea that we could make such an arrangement.

Mr. President, what kind of a monkey wrench was thrown into the whole idea and by whom I don't know, but a monkey wrench was thrown in and that is why we are here talking about and debating this question this evening. It is nothing that one man can decide, whether it be "Uncle Dominick," or myself, or Mr. Kephart, or the Greater Philadelphia Movement, or the Philadelphia Bulletin or the Philadelphia Inquirer. It is a matter that would require considerable deliberative thought and discussion, and if we can look back to the Home Rule Charter in Philadelphia and see how that developed and how it was finally formulated and approved, and the wonderful job that was done, we could do no less with the question of city-county consolidating.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, it is now ten minutes after two, Friday the fourteenth, 1951, and we have been discussing Section 2.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We have been discussing the amendment to Section 2.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, we have been discussing the amendment to Section 2 of the Kephart Bill for approximately two hours, and there still seems to be a great deal of disagreement. For the edification of the Senate, I think it might be well if this section would be read to know just what this section does to deprive the citizens of Philadelphia of a hard-earned victory to throw out of office a Republican machine that has been nationally in disrepute for many years. So, I would like to read that section at this time:

"Section 2 In the City of Philadelphia

"(a) The Sheriff shall be appointed by the Judges of the several Courts of Common Pleas of Philadelphia sitting as a board Provided That the first Sheriff appointed under this act shall be the person who was elected at the 1951 municipal election The compensation of the Sheriff shall continue to be that provided by statute The Sheriff shall appoint such number of employes as the aforesaid board of judges shall approve The qualifications and compensation of such employes shall be provided by the civil service regulations prepared and adopted under the Philadelphia Home Rule Charter but until those regulations become effective their compensation shall be as heretofore"

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. ROSENFIELD. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the roll call which has now been requested is a roll call on the amendments offered to Section 2 of the act by Doctor Stiefel?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In answer to the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, the roll will presently be called upon the amendments offered by Senator Stiefel to Section 2, Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am now ready for the roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Peelor was on the floor. For the information of Senator Holland, Senator Peelor was on the floor when the roll was called.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, was Senator McPherson on the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, Senator McPherson was on the floor when the roll was called.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. President, was Senator Blass on the floor when the roll was called?

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I do not see him on the floor now.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Lawrence Senator Freed is very much in evidence.

Mr. NEFF. I stand corrected, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: ayes 16, nays 26, and the amendments fall.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BARR and Mr. ROSENFELD and Mr. HOLLAND, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—16

Bane,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Barr,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Byrne,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,	Yosko,

NAYS—26

Berger,	Mahany,	Robinson,	Walker,
Chapman,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watkins,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.	Stevenson,	Watson,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wolfe,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Wood,
Kessler,	Peelor,	Wagner,	Hare,
Letzler,	Propert,		Presiding Officer.

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. I desire to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia if he has any further amendments to Section 2?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Yes, Mr. President, I do.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. ROSENFELD offered the following amendments:

Amend Section 2(a), Page 3, line 11 by striking out the following on said line "Judges of the several" and all of line 12 and insert in lieu thereof the following "Commissioner of Records Provided"; Amend Section 2(a), Page 3, line 16 by striking out the words "aforesaid board of judges" and inserting in lieu thereof "Personnel Director."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I am still on that section of the bill which deals with the disposition, I say again, of the sheriff of the former county, now the city of Philadelphia. I have received a request from a number of groups that since the office of sheriff is an office which has to do with records that the Commissioner of Records keeps, and if any Member of the Senate would like me to explain what a Commissioner of Records is, I will be very glad to do so, that he be the appointing power in this particular case.

Now, Mr. President, we have indicated that my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, in his bill provides that the sheriff be appointed by the Judges of our Courts of Common Pleas, sitting as a board. A few moments ago my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Kephart, was quoting "Uncle Dominick" of the Philadelphia Inquirer. I just received a copy of the Inquirer, turned to the front page, and in big headlines I see the following:

"Judges Here May Ask Legislature to Take Them Out of Politics.

"For nearly two hours yesterday the 21 members of the Philadelphia Board of Judges debated the advisability of appealing to the State Legislature to be 'taken out of politics.'

"At a special meeting called at the request of 13 Republican and Democratic judges, they gave serious consideration to a proposal that they inform the Legislature that not only do they not desire more power over non-judicial appointments, but that they be stripped of their present powers."

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendments?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question, of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to know if the roll is about to be called on amendments offered by Senator Rosenfeld to Section 2(a) of the bill now before us for consideration?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Allegheny, the roll is about to be called on the amendments offered by Senator Rosenfeld to Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll. (During the calling of the roll the following occurred:) Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,
Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Dent,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
			Yosko,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Berger,	Mahany,	Robinson,	Walker,
Chapman,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watkins,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.,	Stevenson,	Watson,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wolfe,
Kephart,	Pechan,	Wade,	Wood,
Kessler,	Peelor,	Wagner,	Hare,
Letzler,	Propert,		Presiding Officer

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: yeas 17, nays 26, and the amendments fall.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. BARR and Mr. BYRNE and Mr. LANE, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—17

Bane,	DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,
Barr,	Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,
Byrne,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Dent,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
			Yosko,

NAYS—26

Berger,	Mahanay,	Robinson,	Watkins,
Chapman,	Mallery,	Snowden,	Watson,
Fleming,	McPherson, Jr.,	Stevenson,	Wolfe,
Freed,	Meade,	Taylor,	Wood,
Kephart,	Peelor,	Wade,	Hare,
Kessler,	Propert,	Wagner,	Presiding Officer
Letzler,	Pechan,	Walker,

So the question was determined in the negative. And the question recurring, Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, if he has any further amendments to Section 2?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I yield to my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Stiefel.

And the question recurring, Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. STIEFEL offered the following amendment:

Amend Section 2(I), Page 8 by striking out all of lines 6 to 10 inclusive and inserting in lieu thereof the following "The office of Clerk of the Courts of Quarter Sessions of Philadelphia may be abolished and its duties transferred or may continue to be filled by appointment or election and the appointment, qualifications and compensation of such employees as may be needed to perform all the duties of such office shall be as provided by ordinance of the City Council elected at the 1951 Municipal election."

On the question, Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I want to state in capsule form a few remarks to substantiate my motion for the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. President, under the Kephart Bill the functions of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions will be transferred to the Prothonotary of the Courts of Common Pleas. Now, the Prothonotary of the Courts of Common Pleas is also the Clerk of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia. The task of the Prothonotary of the Courts of Common Pleas is in the nature of recording the actions of the Judges of the Courts of Common Pleas, and of the Municipal Court. It is purely a recording task, whereas the Clerk of Quarter Sessions is mainly an administrative apparatus.

Now, Mr. President, not only does the Clerk of Quarter Sessions record actions in criminal proceedings, he is also in charge of the probationary department and above all is in charge of the accounting department of the Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia. This latter feature is the most complicated feature of his activities because the accounting department maintains accounts of hundreds and thousands of cases involving domestic litigation, which is rather cumbersome. Now, to transfer all these functions to the Prothonotary's office would mean to nullify the work of the Prothonotary's office, and for that reason I cannot see how these two bodies can be fused, and I feel that the transfer of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions to the Prothonotary is a misplacement.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, referring to the record again, and by that I mean the hearing which we had before the Joint State Government Commission in 1948, I quote from the record, and Mr. Dilworth is speaking:

"There is no sense in the Clerk of Quarter Sessions and the Prothonotary—both should be under the Courts where they belong.

"SENATOR WALKER: Who would appoint the Clerk of Courts?

"Mr. DILWORTH: The Courts."

On page 11, "The Clerk of the Quarter Sessions Court should be appointed by the Judge of the Court that it comes strictly under. The Courts ought to have the right to appoint any office strictly Court business.

"SENATOR WALKER: How much control would the Mayor have over these offices that are appointed by the Courts?

"MR. DILWORTH: I don't think he would have any responsibility there.

"SENATOR WALKER: He would just be the boss over certain departments.

"MR. DILWORTH: The executive department should be boss of all executive departments; the courts over judicial departments. That is a proper separation."

Mr. President, if that was good government at that time, it is still good government now.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the roll that is about to be called will be called on the amendments offered by the distinguished Senator from Philadelphia to Section 2 of the bill which is now before us for consideration?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the Majority Leader, the roll is about to be called on the amendments offered to Section 2 (i) of Senate Bill No. 897, Printer's No. 675.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am ready for the roll call.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Clerk will call the roll. (During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

Mr. BERGER. Mr. President, I ask for a verification of the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Request has been made to have the roll verified. The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the affirmative as follows:

Bane,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Byrne,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,	Yosko,
Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The affirmative roll will stand as verified.

The Clerk will call the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative.

The Clerk read the names of those recorded as having voted in the negative as follows:

Kessler,	Peelor,	Wagner,	Hare,
Letzler,	Probert,	Walker,	Presiding Officer
Mahanay,	Robinson,

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any corrections? The Chair hears none. The negative roll will stand as verified.

The vote on the question: yeas 15, nays 25, and the amendments fall.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. NEFF and Mr. KEPHART and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—15

Bane,	Lane,	McMenamin,	Silvert,
Byrne,	Leader,	Neff,	Stiefel,
DiSilvestro,	McCreesh,	Rosenfeld,	Yosko,
Holland,	McGinnis,	Ruth,

NAYS—25

Letzler,	Peelor,	Wade,	Hare,
		Wagner,	Presiding Officer

So the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. WALKER. Will the Senate indulge me just a moment?

Mr. President, I have no desire to introduce a note of levity upon such a serious occasion, but I would like to give the gentlemen of the Senate the benefit of a message that has been delivered to me by one of our mutual friends of the press. Mr. President, the message reads as follows:

"Ode to the Methuselah of Legislatures (By a Newspaperman Who Is Getting Awfully Tired of It).

"Like a ship without a rudder,
Like a bird with half a wing,
There is nothing now before us,
That you could not have done last Spring.

"You have played around all Summer,
Raced your motors all through Fall,
And soon it will be Winter
And you're still not on the ball.

"You have maddened your constituents,
Sapped our strength and left us weak,
Fellows, all we want for Christmas
Is to get you home next week.

"GET OUT OF TOWN, YOU BUMS!"

Mr. President, I want to say to the very distinguished representative of the Evening Bulletin, we thank him very much for his Christmas Greeting.

I think that will expedite the work of the Senate and permit us, perhaps, to get that much closer to a sine die adjournment.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would like to announce that immediately upon this recess there will be a Democratic Caucus in the Democratic Caucus Room, and that there will be a Republican Caucus in the Senate Caucus Room.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. YOSKO asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, while we are waiting for a report on the Kephart "ripper bill," I would like to give you a brief report on at least two of our mental hospitals in Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, as I told the Senate last week, I have been reviewing the audit reports of the various institutions in Pennsylvania, and the situation which is disclosed in those audit reports is anything but complimentary. Today I will give you a report on two mental hospitals, one is the Retreat State Hospital and the other is the Harrisburg State Hospital. These are the reports for the period ending May 31, 1950.

Mr. President, at the Retreat State Hospital the accounts receivable are $75,817.67. The accounts written off for services rendered to patients total $60,881.44. The audit report further discloses that there is $14,470.06 due from Luzerne County, from the Luzerne County institutional district. The audit report further discloses that the institution is overcrowded. The normal bed capacity is 829, and at the end of the period there were 1112 patients in the hospital.

Mr. President, the audit report further discloses that 435 chickens disappeared from the farm between October 3 and 15, 1949. The State Police were notified, but the loss has been unsolved. Ordinarily, 435 chickens disappearing from a chicken farm or any other place, perhaps, would not be too serious, but I want to say here and now that anybody who would steal 435 chickens which were to be fed to sick patients in a mental institution is the lowest type of person that you can think of. Mr. President, it seems to me that that kind of a situation would involve an outside job. How anybody could get away with 435 chickens, without somebody being on the inside, is a mystery to me, but if the State Police could not solve it I am not going to attempt to solve it.

In addition to that, Mr. President, the audit report discloses that there were four meetings held by the board of trustees without a quorum, which is in violation of Section 401 of the Administrative Code. The audit report further discloses that the Luzerne County Institutional District, in addition to the sum that I have already mentioned, owes the Commonwealth $84,590.58 for the maintenance of indigent patients during the period October 1, 1943 to December 31, 1945, and no part of that amount was paid between the period mentioned and the date of the audit report.

Mr. President, the audit report further discloses that there is $1,426.66 in the patient's account, and by the patients' account I mean the account of money belonging to patients who either died or were discharged from the institution, and the money is still there and has never been distributed. There were five employees who handled funds in the institution who are not properly under bond; as a matter of fact, they are not bonded at all. Frankly, I think something ought to be done to operate this institution in accordance with law and in the best interest of the patients.

Mr. President, at the Harrisburg State Hospital the accounts received are $130,105.50. The accounts written off for services to the patients totaled $74,442.72. The audit, in its comments, states as follows and I quote:

"Our audit disclosed that mechanical, electrical and plumbing supplies, having an aggregate value of $100,000, were not included in the purchase supplies inventory at May 31, 1950. We were informed by representatives of the hospital that a unit control for such supplies is maintained in the storeroom. However, a valuation control, therefor is not maintained on the general ledger of the hospital, without which the system of internal control cannot be stated to be adequate."

Mr. President, you can construe those comments as you please. I went into it a little bit and could not get head nor tail out of just what those comments did mean, but I expect to pursue the matter further.

Mr. President, the audit report further stated that the hospital has been disposing of surplus livestock at the York Livestock Market to the highest bidder, payment for which has been received in the form of credits. These credits have been applied against subsequent purchases of shoats from the same market. Such transactions are contrary to the provisions of Sections 507 and 511 of the Administrative Code. They are not only a violation of the Administrative Code, but a violation of modern practices. I would call that sort of thing bartering, a practice that was used back in the dark ages, not in the year 1951. I have my own suspicions of anybody who engages in transactions of this type.

Mr. President, the audit report further noted, and I quote, "A fixed assets ledger is not being maintained on a current basis, and the custodian of all special funds is not sufficiently bonded."

Mr. President, this institution, too, is overcrowded. The bed capacity in the Harrisburg State Hospital is 2,019. At the end of the period May 31, there was a total of 2,472 patients in the hospital. In my opinion this situation ought to be corrected, as well as the situation at the Retreat State Hospital.

Mr. President, this bill, and I hope it is enacted into law in the closing days of the Session, will help to remedy some of these conditions because it will place the responsibility for accounting, not only for funds but for materials and supplies, upon the Boards of Trustees. It will empower the boards of trustees to appoint an accountant who will be responsible to the Boards of Trustees, and the Boards of Trustees, in turn, are responsible to the Governor.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL No. 893

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 893, entitled:

An Act requiring one-half of the funds derived by cities of the second class from rentals or charges imposed upon consumers for water services to be used solely for construction reconstruction maintenance improvement and repair of such water works and for payment of obligations incurred for such purposes and prohibiting transfers of such funds passed second reading, as amended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I voted with the majority.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I voted with the majority.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, this bill as originally introduced affected only the city of Pittsburgh, wherein the amount of money collected by the city of Pittsburgh for water rentals, etc., would be put in a special fund and could be used only for maintenance and capital improvements of the water works. The bill was then amended in the Senate Committee on Local Government to make it effective as of January 1, 1953, due to the fact that the city of Pittsburgh had made their budget commitments for this year and it was then further amended that fifty per cent of the money would go into that special fund.

Mr. President, there is no question that most of the older cities of this State are having trouble with outmoded water lines, filtration plants, etc. Water is, to me, the most important thing that any municipality furnishes to their citizens. Just a short time ago the city of Altoona was suffering from an impasse or, I should say, a lack of water supply. They felt that they would have to build a new reservoir. They were trying to attract new industries into their city, and at the present time their water supply is not ample to take care of what they have. Mr. President, they put a bond issue before the voters and the bond issue was turned down. I can readily see that, perhaps, in the not too distant future the only way that the authorities in Blair County will be able to remedy this situation will be by creating a water authority.

Mr. President, we have at the present time a very unique problem in the city of Pittsburgh, in the county of Allegheny, which I would like to take a moment to acquaint the gentlemen on the other side with. I am only sorry I did not bring with me the presentation that the Mayor of the city of Pittsburgh made to the Committee on Local Government the other morning. Of course, the Democrats are the early risers and there were only a few Republicans there to hear the Mayor at the Committee meeting, which was held at eight o'clock in the morning.

Mr. President, under the Clean Streams Act, by the amendment passed during the Duff Administration to the LaRue Act of 1937, we were forced to create a Sanitary Authority in Allegheny County. This authority was appointed by the County Commissioners after calling together the one hundred thirty some boroughs, townships and third class cities into a meeting. As usual, as things do happen, Mr. President, these boroughs, townships and third class cities, having trouble with their budgets, were not able to put any money into the till, and the city of Pittsburgh has at the present time loaned $2,000,000 to this Sanitary Authority.

Mr. President, you can readily see if a bill like this is passed, the Sanitary Authority and the work they have done will probably go for naught. Then again there is another problem that faces the city of Pittsburgh. The city does not furnish its complete population with water. The South Pittsburgh Water Company furnishes water to nearly all the residents in Senator Holland's District, south of the Monongahela and Ohio Rivers. Their rate for water exceeds that of the city of Pittsburgh and the city of Pittsburgh must, in turn, pay that extra amount of money.

Now, Mr. President, the Mayor of the city of Pittsburgh appointed in the early part of this year an outstanding committee. I cannot recall, Mr. President, the names of all of the members of that committee, but I do know that the chairman of the committee is the President of the Peoples Pittsburgh Trust, Colonel Robert Downie. I know the President of Carnegie Tech is on the committee. I know that the Chief Hydraulic Engineer for the Aluminum Company of America is a member of the committee. In fact, I was going over the list the other day, and there are nine on the committee, eight of whom are outstanding Republicans in our community. This committee was appointed to try and resolve this problem, and they are to make their report, and as I understand from Colonel Downie, whom Senator Fleming and I talked to on the phone, and after talking to the Mayor of the city of Pittsburgh, this report will be ready within the next few weeks. I do not know, Mr. President, but I think they are going to recommend probably the creation of an authority in Allegheny County to not only handle the water but this sanitation problem, and maybe the South Pittsburgh Water Company.

Mr. President, this bill in my opinion, contrary to what some may say, may hamper what they intend to do after this report. It is true that I put the amendments in to attempt to kill the bill because, in my opinion, if it is good for Pittsburgh, it is good for every other municipal authority. I have never introduced a piece of legislation in my life which I thought was punitive. I have never tried to embarrass any town or city because its administration happened to be of a different political persuasion than my own. It appears to me that so many times bills of this type appear on the calendar just because the city of Pittsburgh happens to be quite a strong Democratic city.

So, Mr. President, I ask the Members of the Senate to vote down this motion of Senator Walker's because if it is good for the city of Pittsburgh that this money should be earmarked to be used for nothing but water, I again say that the same thing should be done for every other municipality.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I did not intend to arise on this measure, but the implication certainly is given by my colleague, the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Barr, that I presented this bill for purely punitive reasons, that I presented the bill, if you please, to embarrass the Democratic Administration of the city of Pittsburgh. That, I assure the Membership of this Senate, is not so. I carefully explained to Senator Barr, I carefully explained to the Local Government Committee of this Senate, that I was putting the bill in at the request of Mr. Rigby, a Member of the House of Representatives, who had asked me to present it for him because the deadline has been established in the House of Representatives prohibiting the further introduction of bills in that chamber. I believe the other Members of the Committee will bear me out that I did so explain.

Mr. President, Mr. Rigby had also informed me that he was introducing the bill at the behest of the League of Women Voters of the city of Pittsburgh, of whom Mrs. R. Templeton Smith is the president or, at least, the spokesman. I agreed to introduce the bill and Mr. Barr has seen fit to argue the merits of the measure on this amendment. Mr. President, I believe in the bill, I believe that the water plant in the city of Pittsburgh has deteriorated to such an extent that it is practically impossible to replace.

Mr. President, I would like to further state that I did call Mr. Downie, the Chairman of the Committee which Mayor Lawrence had appointed to study the water conditions in the city of Pittsburgh. Mr. Downie assured me in two separate telephone calls that whether or not this bill was passed would make absolutely no difference in the findings of the committee, and that by the passage of this bill we would in no way hamper the work of that committee. Senator Barr showed me the amendment that he had intended to introduce. I told him just a few moments ago that I had no objection to its introduction. In fact, I intended to vote for the amendment, but I am sorry to see that Senator Barr arises on the floor of this Senate and states to the Membership that he has introduced the amendments only with the thought in mind that he would kill the bill.

Mr. President, I can agree with the premise contained in the amendment, that it is good legislation for every municipality in Pennsylvania, and on that basis I can support the amendments. I intend, Mr. President, to still support the amendments, but certainly if he has introduced those amendments with the thought in mind of killing this bill, then I certainly could not ask any of the rest of my colleagues on this side of the house to vote for it. I certainly believe that they are now free to use their own judgment and to vote any way they please on the amendments.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I want to assure the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Fleming, that Senator Barr has told our Caucus that you introduced this bill at the suggestion and at the request of Representative Rigby. We all know that and I do not think the Senator in any way intended to cast any reflection upon your intentions when the bill was introduced, and I do not think, even at this late stage of the game, that we ought to get personal on the question of who put bills in and why.

Mr. President, I do not want to agree with Senator Barr, and I am sure that every Member who sits down and seriously considers this matter will agree that the most important problem of any community today is the problem of water, and as the years pass it will become increasingly important. I would not like to see anything happen which might injure the chances of the city of Pittsburgh to expand its water works.

Further, as I understand it, Mr. President, this bill was put in at the behest of the League of Women Voters. Now, that may be a very good reason, but I do not think it is sufficient reason for the passage of this or any other legislation. The League of Women Voters has presented to the Senate through one of the other Members of this Senate, a bill on reapportionment. A great many persons thought it was a very good bill, but I do not think it necessarily follows that we have to pass that bill simply because the League of Women Voters presented it. I would say that the duly elected representatives of any community ought to be considered as spokesmen for that community, rather than unofficial organizations made up of volunteers and made up of a membership which is not elected by the people. Mr. President, I think we have sufficient important problems here in Harrisburg and we should not allow any individual or organization to come into these halls and by simply putting their stamp of approval upon legislation, give that legislation any preferential standing.

Mr. President, I want to say that the water works in pretty nearly every community in this State are, in many cases, dilapidated, outmoded and do not give sufficient service for the communities because of the expansion of those communities.

Mr. President, I might say that it has come to my knowledge, indirectly, of course, that there is a project being framed at this time which will make this legislation unnecessary and will put Pittsburgh's water problem in the background. I understand that on the drafting boards today, in the hands of certain individuals, is a water project which is considered the largest in the entire United States because it will be used purely for industrial and domestic consumption and not used for irrigation. Your larger projects in the West are largely used for irrigating purposes, but this project is to feed and supply the Monongahela Valley and the city of Pittsburgh. Now, the initial cost is close to $300,000,000. There are plans to create a viaduct which will outshine any other piece of engineering work in the entire world.

Mr. President, here is a peculiar situation. It has been rather a secret up until this moment but I was privileged to speak to some men who know about it and they have told me that it was all right to mention it at any time if I so desired, because they are rather proud of what they have been doing for two years. Westmoreland County is going to be the base for the operation, and that is why I am so proud.

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I want to assure the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Dent, that I was not attempting to become personal. I was merely clearing up an implication that certainly was in Senator Barr's speech. I only wanted to do that.

Mr. President, I want to further assure my good friend, Senator Dent, that I do not think all legislation advocated by any group or civic group is, of necessity, good legislation. Probably Senator Dent misunderstood my speech. I stated that I introduced the bill at the behest of Mr. Rigby who, in turn, had done it at the request of the League of Women Voters of the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. President, I again would like to clear up a point. I, personally, and I direct this particularly to my Republican colleagues on this side of the house, could see no objection to Senator Barr's amendments. I was ready to vote for them myself, but in view of the fact that Senator Barr stated on the floor of this Senate that he introduced the amendments with the thought in mind of killing the bill, I suggest to them that they are free to vote any way they please on these amendments.

Mr. MCGINNIS. Mr. President, here is a perfect example of the Legislature of Pennsylvania interfering with local government. It is just the opposite of what most of us talk about, home rule. The League of Women Voters, if they had any remedy for the water situation in Pittsburgh, should have presented it to city council. They devote all their time to the troublesome problems of the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. President, the city of Pittsburgh is a large city. We have a splendid water system. I do not think there has been a typhoid case in Pittsburgh in fifty years that could be traced to the water supply of the city of Pittsburgh, but we do have problems. The south side of the city, Senator Holland's District, is furnished water by the South Pittsburgh Water Company, and they are having trouble with their water supply. There is not a person on this floor, including myself, who lives in Pittsburgh who knows very much about the water system and the water needs and requirements of the city of Pittsburgh. Here we are two hundred miles away, and practically none of us know a thing about our water situation, but our council knows it, our mayor knows it and our people know it.

I say to you, Mr. President, that in a matter of this kind, something we know absolutely nothing about we ought not try to regulate or control the funds of the water system of the city of Pittsburgh.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, this is purely a Pittsburgh matter. I do not want to get into it too deeply. However, I have profound convictions in regard to legislation earmarking revenues.

Mr. President, it seems to me, as Senator McGinnis has stated, this is a problem for the local government. I do not agree with Senator Barr's amendments making this legislation apply to other political subdivisions. I intend to vote "no" on Third Reading, but I must admit that he has a bona fide argument when he says if it is good enough for Pittsburgh, it is good enough for other political subdivisions in the Commonwealth.

Mr. President, we may be establishing a precedent here by earmarking revenues and hamstringing local governments. They know their problems best. Let us suppose that this Legislature would earmark the revenue which we receive from the tax on real estate transfers, or which we hope to receive, and we earmark that for the purchase of real estate for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Nothing could be more ridiculous.

Mr. President, I say to you that we passed a constitutional amendment earmarking all the revenues which we received from the gasoline taxes, and from license plates and excise taxes and place it in the Motor License Fund. Today that fund has a terrific surplus, and if we could legally do so, we could very easily borrow from that fund and maybe work out our fiscal problems, but, no, we have hamstrung ourselves.

I say to you, Mr. President, that this is certainly a step in the wrong direction because in establishing this precedent our successors in office can look back and say, "Within the year of 1951, we earmarked revenues from a certain water plant whereby it is mandatory that fifty per cent of it must be used for the maintenance and repair of that particular plant." Therefore, Mr. President, I am going to vote "no" on this motion.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

(A voice vote having been taken the question was determined in the affirmative.)

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the title as amended?

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, in view of the problems that have been confronting us, this past week particularly, I, like by colleague from Northampton, Senator Yosko, began to think to myself about by duties here in Harrisburg, my obligations to my constituents as a public official, my obligations to my colleagues in the Senate, and my obligations to my own good conscience as a Senator on the question of legislation generally, particularly with respect to what happens in these legislative halls in the waning days or weeks of the Session when all of us in good conscience are supposed to apply ourselves diligently, are supposed to apply ourselves carefully, to what may come before this Body, are supposed to make sure that the constituency of our districts and the constituency of the entire State of Pennsylvania obtained the representation to which they are entitled.

Mr. President, thinking back over the whole course of this Session beginning, as you gentlemen know, back in January of 1951, which to me seems like a long time, it occurred to me that while there has been a lot of wrangling and a lot of discussion and a lot of excitement, there has been not too much activity except with regard, perhaps, to the tax program. Since last January we have had a problem that involved the question of reappointment, among other problems. For the moment, I want to highlight just one or two.

Mr. President, on reapportionment, we know, at least a year ago, that we were going to have to reapportion this Commonwealth, and a committee was named by the President pro tempore of the Senate, I believe way back in January or February. I was made a member of that committee and notwithstanding the fact that I asked the gentlemen from time to time when we might have a meeting of that committee, I was always told that the matter was under discussion; that we had the tax program to get out of the way, and I was put off because there was not any activity. Nothing was done by the committee until the early part of this week, or until the middle of the week. Now, we have been here all week and it is rather difficult for me to remember just when it was during this week, but during this week I was informed that the vice-chairman of the committee was going to arrange for a meeting of the committee so that this matter could be considered.

Finally, Mr. President, late one afternoon, a day or two ago, the committee was hurriedly called to a meeting in the back of this chamber and was told that in order to get something on the Calendar, and in view of the illness of the chairman of the committee, it was suggested that we report out this bill just to begin to get some activity. That bill was brought out. There was no discussion as far as the members on this side of the house were concerned. Yesterday while some of us were trying to do some decent work on other legislation, amendments were put in. I note that the bill now is on the second Reading Calendar, and I suppose it will pass and will go over to the Third Reading Calendar on Monday, and the more I thought about it the more I decided that something must be amiss in our legislative work and in our legislative efforts.

I got back to my hotel, Mr. President, and I thought to myself, I wonder whether it is possible to work out some method of creating a framework within this legislative halls an opportunity to consider carefully and be heard with regard to all kinds of legislation in which they might be interested. As I thought about it, I noticed on the desk in my room the Senate History. It happened to be the revised edition, and it was dated

Monday, December 10, 1951, and I thought, in view of this problem which was irking me considerably, that I might begin to go through this History and actually see what kind of bills had been introduced in the Legislature this year, what happened to those bills, I tried to analyze why the sponsor of a particular measure introduced it and all the trouble and expense that was gone to in printing it. I thought if that interested me as a Member of this legislative body, there must be other Members of this Senate who, too, were vitally concerned about legislation and what happens to legislation, how it happens and what the committee functions are and how changes are made.

Mr. President, I finally concluded that certainly before this Session is over, at least, the benefit of my thinking on this matter might coincide or be interesting to my colleagues in the Senate, and so I decided that when the opportunity presented itself I would get up before this Body and go through the Senate History, maybe the House History, and take up these bills one by one and actually see where we started, where we are going, why we started and why we are going. As I got to the first page of this Senate History, I noted Senate Bill No. 1, and it occurred to me that the gentleman, or gentlemen, who had the honor of introducing the first bill in this Session must have obtained some kind of a thrill. I know, according to the Rules of the Senate, that in the introduction of bills, the President is supposed to start on his left and pick out the first gentleman who arises on the Senate floor on that side of the Chamber, and I thought to myself when Senator Wolfe, or Senator Stevenson or Senator Snowden, and I do not know which one of the three introduced the bill on behalf of the other two, and so you will have to forgive me, one of these three gentlemen obtained the thrill of getting up and introducing in this Body on the 15th day of January, 1951, a long time ago, this Senate Bill No. 1.

Now, Mr. President, it was not a startling piece of legislation, it was not the kind of legislation that was making any kind of history, and so I suppose to that gentleman the thrill was limited merely to the physical act of getting up and being recognized as the first gentleman of this Body having the opportunity to get up and to say, "Mr. President, I read in place and present to the Chair the following bill." That was Senate Bill No. 1. It was a simple little bill appropriating money to the Department of Forests and Waters for the purpose of constructing some new retaining dams some place, and as is the custom when this is done, the Presiding Officer referred this bill to the Committee on Appropriations.

Now, Mr. President, it is interesting to note that notwithstanding the thrill that I am sure my colleague, whomever he was, received when he introduced this bill, I am certain that at least as of December 10 this bill, Senate Bill No. 1, still remains buried somewhere in the archives, if they have any archives, in the office of the Committee on Appropriations. Now, of course, when I think of this important piece of legislation, and it was probably very important to the sponsors of it who apparently felt that this problem needed some legislation, and they could not build retaining dams without getting money somewhere, I think that the committee chairman or the Committee itself apparently were interested in one of the words in the title, and that was "retaining", because that is apparently what the Committee decided to do with the bill, they retained it. Well, that is the history up to now of Senate Bill No. 1. Whether it received the treatment to which it was entitled I cannot say, Mr. President, because I am not too familiar with retaining dams and I am not too familiar with other provisions of the bill. I would not know whether the amount of money set up for it in the bill would be the amount of money which would be required to build one, or two or twenty retaining dams, and I wondered whether I should have become interested in that piece of legislation the moment that it was introduced. That became a problem to me, but I thought that I should not dwell too long on that one bill which was only one problem to at least the three Senators, since there were almost a thousand bills introduced this Session.

Mr. President, I thought it might be more illuminating if I continued to look at some of the other pieces of legislation that were in this History and, perhaps, in a comparison of other similar pieces of legislation which were introduced I might somehow try to analyze more clearly, at least to my own satisfaction, whether the committee properly retained possession of this bill. I know I could have asked a member of the Appropriations Committee what, if any, action had ever been taken, but in the rush of our legislative duties and with the introduction of so many bills which I am certain are important pieces of legislation, I thought that perhaps I might interest myself in those immediate important problems of the moment at that time. So, I decided, for the moment at least, to dismiss the question that were being raised in my mind with regard to Senate Bill No. 1. However, in the course of my browsing through this History, if I should discover that another piece of legislation introduced thereafter might somehow be comparable to what I am sure was intended by Senate Bill No. 1, I want you to know that I will re-refer to that bill, but for the moment I think we can leave Senate Bill No. 1 with the promise, I assure you, that I will re-refer to it if I find it necessary.

Then, Mr. President, I discovered that our President pro tempore either received the attention of the Presiding Officer or else had someone introduce for him, if he was the Presiding Officer, the next bill, Senate Bill No. 2, and, as I say, this, too, was way back on January 15, and it is difficult for me to remember. I must remember to ask someone when I am through here whether Senator Taylor had the distinction of presenting this or whether he was presiding at the time and, therefore, I will have to merely let it go by saying that I assume Senator Taylor or someone on his behalf introduced Senate Bill No. 2 for him. Now, this makes a very interesting contrast.

Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 2 was also an appropriation bill and I assume that at the end of the day when the clerks who have these bills are supposed to turn them over to the committee chairman, and I think get a receipt for them—now, I am not sure, Mr. President, whether that is the procedure because, fortunately or unfortunately, I have never been a committee chairman and so I have never had the honor of having one of the Senate Clerks in charge hand me a bill and ask me to sign for it. I am sure that I would be thrilled if the occasion ever presents itself when I become a chairman of a committee in this Body and I would just love to sign one of those little receipt books which I have seen being passed around here for a long long time. I have always wondered what the books were like, how many pages they had, whether there was a book for every separate committee or whether the clerk had a book, just one book, which all the committee chairmen signed. I must remember, too, when I am through here today, or tomorrow or next Tuesday, to really inquire because it has been on my mind, and like most of us I have kept it way back in my mind, and while I would think about it every once in awhile I was never, when I thought about it, in a place where I could at the moment find out whether what I was thinking was true or not.

Well, Mr. President, that was Senate Bill No. 2. Now, I do not intend to jump to Senate Bill No. 3 yet, because, as I pointed out a few moments ago, Senate Bill No. 2 and Senate Bill No. 1 both went to the Committee on Appropriations, and as I looked at this History I noticed that this bill, notwithstanding that it was also an appropriation bill, received quite a bit of activity. I noticed that it was referred to the committee on January 15. Then I noticed, oddly enough, that it was reported as committed on January 15 and that, of course, set me off to thinking that there must have been a Committee on Appropriations' meeting that day. Otherwise, how could the bill be reported out? I wondered whether the committee, at the time it considered Senate Bill No. 2, considered Senate Bill No. 1 likewise. Then as I read further, Mr. President, I noted that this bill, which was introduced on January 15 and which was reported as committed on January 15, also had first reading on January 15 and it occurred to me that this bill must have been of tremendous importance or, since the name of the sponsor was the President pro tempore, perhaps the fact that a certain individual introduced it had something to do with the terrific activity and the fast consideration which this bill received.

Mr. President, I noticed again, as I read further, that the following day, on January 16, this bill passed second reading and then, as I looked further, I noted that on the following day, January 17, this bill was passed finally in the Senate and the vote was 49 to 0. Now, that meant, of course, since I was one of the forty-nine Members present, that I was one of those people who voted for the bill. Now, I like to believe that when a piece of legislation is on our Calendar, at least I try and I have always tried to take the time and the trouble to know what I am voting on, and so as I thought back I decided that I must have known. I could have saved myself an awful lot of trouble, and saved myself an awful lot of time, if I had gone beyond the first few words of the title.

Mr. President, when I first looked at Senate Bill No. 2, I noted that it had an appropriation, and not being too accurate with figures—appropriation bills are, I will not say distasteful to me, but they lack the interest that other pieces of legislation have for me—I decided to read the title further. Then I noted that the act made an appropriation to the General Assembly for the payment of the expenses of its Inaugural Committee. Of course, I then realized that the bill really contained a matter which involved haste, because, if I remember correctly, there was an inaugural either on the fifteenth, sixteenth or seventeenth, and so it became necessary for us, at least, to begin to provide the expenses that the inaugural would cost.

Now, Mr. President, I know that I should have noted that as I went through the title of the bill, and I want to say to the Members of this Senate that I am sorry I had not done this right away, because then it would not have taken me all of this time to explain the doubts which were in my mind and the doubts which were created by the whole subject of legislation generally. However, it was interesting, since we had this inaugural on the fifteenth, or the sixteenth or the seventeenth of January, to read further in the bill and note that it passed the House finally on February 13. Now, without anything further, I could have dismissed the whole idea of appropriations for inaugurals and expenses for inaugurations, and even inaugurations themselves because, frankly, I was not too interested in that inaugural. As I think back, it may be that that was the reason why I was not too attentive when this bill was going through, but in looking the other night and noting that the bill did pass the House finally on February 13, I thought to myself, "I wonder what kind of a snarl we, in the Commonwealth, would have been in if the Senate or the House had decided not to pass this bill." Here we were, in the very peculiar and odd position of holding an inaugural on the 17th of January, and it just seemed like everybody took it for granted that we would eventually pass a bill for the inaugural expenses. Now, I do not know, Mr. President, whether, if we had not passed that bill, the Governor of the Commonwealth might be sued by somebody or how these expenses would eventually be paid. However, since that question itself is a moot one, I do not think that I ought to belabor the point but merely permit my observations with regard to Senate Bill No. 2 go with the very few limited remarks which I made with regard to that bill.

Then, Mr. President, I looked further, and I do hope there is no objection to my considering these pieces of legislation in the order of their number. I know that there are some which are not interesting to everyone, and I know, too, that some of them are not interesting to anyone, some are not even interesting to the sponsor or sponsors, but I am not here for the purpose of trying to analyze what is in the back of the mind of any one of my colleagues who gets up on this floor for the purpose of introducing a bill. I think it is not only a rule of the Senate, but I think our Constitution makes provision for the introduction of bills by Members of this Body, and I do not think anyone has ever questioned that right. So, I decided it would be too much of a job for me, sitting there and thinking about this problem, to try to analyze what goes through the minds of each one of the Members of this Body, beginning with the Majority Leader who sits—well, I should not say he sits, because I notice through most of this Session he has been doing a lot of standing—what goes through his mind when he or any of the Members in his aisle or the aisle next to him, and I am referring to the aisles as they run from this front part of the Senate to the back part of the Senate and not the aisles running from the east part of the Senate to the west part of the Senate, and so if my colleagues—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I will give the floor back to the gentleman, I am not attempting to take technical advantage of him. I rise on a point of order, and I will return the floor to the gentleman.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I understand we are under the order of business, petitions and Remonstrances.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny is correct.

INTERROGATION

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to inquire of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, if this is a petition or a remonstrance, and if so what is he remonstrating against? I have difficulty in following his discussion.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, for the benefit of my friend, Senator Walker, from Allegheny, this is a remonstrance on my part.

Mr. WALKER. Against what is the question raised, Senator?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, if the gentleman had listened to me in the beginning, he would have known that my remonstrance was against the method, and the framework, and the results and the whole question of legislation, part of our duties. I explained to the gentlemen, and, if he wants me to, I will start over again.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I wish the gentleman would. I missed the second paragraph. Will he just give it to me again from the beginning?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, as I explained to the gentlemen, I was very very much concerned in the last closing days, or weeks or months of the Session, and I cannot say specifically which of the three, because I really do not know whether we are at the closing days, weeks or months of the Session, but I became very much concerned about the very fact action that some legislation was suddenly beginning to take and being very concerned, calling quick committee meetings, considering a bill for a half a minute, bringing it out on the floor for certain purposes, amendments being made, there was very little opportunity for a Senator who was interested in this subject to really analyze what should be done and how we should vote.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rosenfeld, permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. ROSENFELD. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the gentleman is remonstrating against the speed that the Senate is employing at the present time?

Mr. ROSENFELD. No, Mr. President, I am remonstrating against the whole framework of the method that we employ in the introduction, and the consideration and the passage of bills, and I do not know whether the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Walker, was listening to the few short comments I had to make with regard to Senate Bills No. 1 and No. 2.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, it was Senate Bill No. 2 that I missed. I heard his remarks regarding Senate Bill No. 1.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I will repeat, as accurately as I can remember, if the gentleman so desires the remarks that I made with regard to Senate Bill No. 2.

Mr. WALKER. Well, Mr. President, was the gentleman's approach to Senate Bill No. 2 the same as his mental reaction to Senate Bill No. 104?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, my approach to Senate Bill No. 2, I was comparing with my approach to Senate Bill No. 1.

Mr. WALKER. I got that, Senator.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, if the gentleman from Allegheny would like to know about my approach to Senate Bill No. 104, I will be glad, when I get to Senate Bill No. 104, to compare Senate Bill No. 2 with the approach that I thought was made to Senate Bill No. 104.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the reason for my question, Senator Rosenfeld, is that I am trying to reconcile your position on Senate Bill No. 2 with the vote you cast on Senate Bill No. 104. I thought if you would explain that one now in conjunction with your explanation of Senate Bill No. 2, it would assist us in understanding your very careful statesmanlike approach to Senate Bill No. 104.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I would be pleased to continue with this question and answer period, but I want to assure the gentleman from Allegheny that my mental capacity for doing what I consider a decent and honest job, not only to my good conscience but for the Members of the Senate, would require me to consider these measures in the order in which they are set forth here in the Senate History. So, I must say to my good friend, Senator Walker, if he will have at least a little patience, and I know that is asking an awful lot at this stage of the Session, and I will appreciate it if he can have a little patience, I am sure that the answer to that question, at least, will be received by him. I, of course, cannot guarantee that the answer will be satisfactory to the gentleman because, Mr. President, I think with fifty different Members of this Body, each of them with different minds, and different backgrounds and different approaches to legislation generally, some with no approach at all, some with an indifferent approach, it is very difficult to believe that my approach to a comparison of the motivation in the introduction of Senate Bills Nos. 1 and 2, as compared to Senate Bills Nos. 102 and 104, whether my reactions would coincide with those of the gentleman from Allegheny, but I want to assure the gentleman that I will be glad to discuss the matter with him at any time that he so desires.

Now, Mr. President, if I may proceed with my discussion of the various bills in the Senate History—

Mr. WALKER. Senator, without depriving you of the floor again, but so that I will be able to follow Senate Bills Nos. 4, and 5 and so on, and I am sorry, Senator, that we do not have all of the House bills here for you to consider, too, because we would appreciate your observation on them.

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I have them.

Mr. WALKER. I am so glad, I am so thankful, Senator, because I know that this will be a great contribution to political science in Pennsylvania.

Now, Mr. President, keeping in mind this discussion, I have a letter from the Wyndham Hotel in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, telling me about my reservations during the month of February, 1952. Now, if the Senator would advise me, and pray let us keep this on a high level, what to do with this letter?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, I was always under the impression that my good colleague from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, was usually able to accomplish things without reservation, and so I think it should not be a problem to him if he wants to go to Florida of having the problem of reservations. I am sure he will be all right without reservations.

So, Mr. President, in order to bring my colleagues, who are walking in and out of the room, up to date, I have talked about Senate Bill No. 1, and I have talked about Senate Bill No. 2, and if there are not too many interruptions I think we can keep this in some kind of decent order. I will not have any trouble with the pages, Mr. President, because they happen to be clipped into this book in some kind of order, but I may, in the course of considering the bills which are on the pages printed here, skip one or two, but I want to assure you gentlemen that I am not doing it deliberately, and if you will call it to my attention when that happens I will be glad to refer back, because it is not my intention to miss any one of these pieces of legislation.

Now, Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 3, and it is interesting when you get to Senate Bill No. 3 to note that it is at the bottom of the page, because Senate Bill 1 only took up about an inch and a quarter at the top of the page. That was an appropriation bill, if you remember. Senate Bill No. 2 apparently involved a little bit more money and received a little bit more copy, so that that particular bill took up about three inches of the page.

(The Senate was at ease.)

In case the entire business of any corporation other than a corporation engaged in doing business as an insurance or surety company is not transacted within this Commonwealth the tax imposed by this act shall be based upon such portion of the net income of such corporation for the fiscal or calendar year as defined in clause one hereof as may be determined by allocations and apportionments made as follows

(a) Gains realized and losses sustained from the sale or exchange of capital assets if such assets consist of real estate or tangible personal property situated in the Commonwealth shall be allocated to this Commonwealth.

(b) Gains realized and losses sustained from the sale or exchange of capital assets if such assets consist of real estate or tangible personal property situated outside of the Commonwealth shall not be allocated in any part to this Commonwealth.

(c) The remainder of such net income shall be divided into three equal parts.

(1) Of one-third such portion shall be attributed to business carried on within this Commonwealth as shall be found by multiplying said one-third by a fraction whose numerator is the value of the corporation's tangible property situated within this Commonwealth and whose denominator is the value of all the corporation's tangible property wherever situated.

(2) Of one-third such portion shall be attributed to business carried on within the Commonwealth as shall be found by multiplying said one-third by a fraction whose numerator is the expenditures of the corporation for wages salaries commissions and other compensation to its employees and assignable to this Commonwealth as hereinafter provided and whose denominator is the total expenditures of the corporation for wages salaries commissions and other compensation to all its employees.

(3) Of the remaining third such portion shall be attributed to business carried on within the Commonwealth as shall be found by multiplying said third by a fraction whose numerator is the amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts from business assignable to this Commonwealth as hereinafter provided and whose denominator is the amount of the taxpayer's gross receipts from all its business.

In cases where only two of the foregoing three rules are applicable the remainder of the net income of the corporation shall be divided into two equal parts only each of which shall be apportioned in accordance with one of the remaining two rules. If only one of the three rules is applicable the part of the net income received from business carried on within the Commonwealth shall be determined solely by that rule.

The amount assignable to this Commonwealth of expenditures of the corporation for wages salaries commissions or other compensation to its employees shall be such expenditures for the taxable year as represent the wages salaries commissions or other compensation of employees not chiefly situated at connected with or sent out from premises for the transaction of business maintained by the corporation outside the Commonwealth.

The amount of the corporation's gross receipts from business assignable to this Commonwealth shall be (1) the amount of its gross receipts for the taxable year except those negotiated or effected in behalf of the corporation by agents or agencies chiefly situated at connected with or sent out from premises for the transaction of business maintained by the taxpayer outside of the Commonwealth and except rentals and royalties and interest and dividends (2) rentals or royalties from property situated or from the use of patents within this Commonwealth and (3) dividends and interest except such dividends and interest attributable to the business conducted on premises maintained by the taxpayer outside the Commonwealth. If a corporation maintains an office warehouse or other place of business in a state other than this Commonwealth for the purpose of reducing its tax under this subsection the department shall in determining the amount of its gross receipts from business assignable to this Commonwealth include therein the gross receipts attributed by the corporation to the business conducted at such place of business in another state. In the case of construction contracts negotiated or effected at an office in the state of Pennsylvania but performed outside the state the gross receipts under such contracts shall be assignable outside the state except that if the activities under any such contract to which the gross receipts are attributable shall occur partly within the state and partly outside the state such proportion of the gross receipts under said contract shall be assignable to Pennsylvania as the direct and indirect cost incurred in Pennsylvania under the contract for the taxable year bear to the total costs incurred thereunder for the taxable year. In the case of construction contracts negotiated or effected at an office outside the state but performed in the state the gross receipts under such contracts shall be assignable to the state except that if the activities under any such contract to which the gross receipts are attributable shall occur partly within the state and partly outside the state such portion of the gross receipts under said contract shall be assignable to Pennsylvania as the direct and indirect costs incurred in the state under the contract for the taxable year bear to the total costs incurred thereunder for the taxable year.

A rule shall not be deemed to be inapplicable merely because all the tangible property or the expenditures of a corporation for wages salaries commissions or other compensation or the gross receipts of the corporation are found to be situated incurred or received without the Commonwealth.

3 In case the entire business of any corporation engaged in doing business as an insurance or surety company is not transacted within this Commonwealth the tax imposed by this act shall be based upon such portion of the net income of such corporation for the fiscal or calendar year as defined in clause one hereof as shall be attributed to business transacted within this Commonwealth by multiplying such net income by a fraction of which the numerator is the gross premiums received from business transacted within the Commonwealth as hereinafter defined and of which the denominator is the amount of the gross premiums received from all its business. "Gross Premiums" shall mean the amount of dues fees and premiums stated in the policy contracts and shall include gross premiums of every character and description received during the taxable year from all underwriting activities whether said premiums were received in money or in the form of notes credits or any other substitute for money less the following deductions:

MOTION THAT SENATE BILL NO. 897 AND SENATE BILL NO. 871 BE MADE A SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 897 be made a Special Order of Business for 8:00 a. m. on Monday, and that Senate Bill No. 871 be made a Special Order of Business for 1:00 p. m. on Monday.

Mr. TAYLOR. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Washington, Mr. Lane, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, isn't it necessary in the Senate of Pennsylvania where the order of business has been changed that we need a constitutional majority of twenty-six votes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the gentleman from Washington, the answer is, a simple majority.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, will state his point of order.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, under the Senate Rules, Rule No. 29, "The consent of a majority of all members elected to the Senate shall be necessary to alter, change or amend these rules." The procedure in the Senate is defined by the Senate Rules. The daily calendar is a rule of the Senate, and in order to alter that you must change the rule. As I read it, Rule 29 says, "a majority of the members elected to the Senate." Am I right or wrong?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair rules that only a simple majority is necessary to fix a Special Order of Business.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, under the Rules of the Senate, Rule 2 is the Order of Business, and under Rule 29, it says a majority of the elected Members must be present to change the Rules of the Senate. Rule 2 gives the Order of Business as follows:

"First, the asking for leave of absence.

"Second, reading of communications.

"Third, introduction of petitions and remonstrances.

"Fourth, receiving of reports from committees, which shall be called for by the President, according to the order of the committees.

"Fifth, the reading of bills in place. The President commencing on his left and recognizing all in their order from left to right and all bills read in place shall be accompanied by two copies of the same.

"Sixth, the offering of original resolutions.

"Seventh, the consideration of executive nominations.

"Eighth, the reading of bills the third time.

"Ninth, the reading of bills the second time."

Mr. President, these two bills are on the Calendar to be read the second time, and Rule 29, Mr. President, and I can read that again as everybody else can, says, "The consent of a majority of the members elected shall be necessary to suspend any rule except that part of Rule 38 which requires unanimous consent to be given to consider the confirmation of a nomination which has been reported from a committee on that day shall not be suspended.

"The consent of a majority of all members elected to the Senate shall be necessary to alter, change or amend these rules."

Mr. President, my point of order is that it takes, under Rule 29, which I will read again to you the last sentence, "The consent of a majority of all members elected to the Senate shall be necessary to alter, change or amend these rules," and Rule 2 gives the Order of Business in the Senate of Pennsylvania

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the motion which I made I will hold in a state of animated stagnation until the gentleman from Allegheny is through.

Mr. President, as every gentleman on the floor of the Senate knows, the motion that I made with regard to this Special Order of Business could be made on Monday morning when we convene and be effective at that time. The purpose of making it at this time, I thought I was serving notice on the other side that there would be a definite period of time set in which we would endeavor to dispose of these controversial problems.

New, frankly, Mr. President, I think that the objections to having this motion made at this point are rather petty, because what we are doing we can do Monday morning when, perhaps, there will be a larger attendance of the Senate on hand.

MOTION THAT SENATE BILL NO. 897 AND SENATE BILL NO. 871 BE MADE A SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS WITHDRAWN

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, therefore, in the light of the objections, which I repeat, in my opinion are rather petty, I will withdraw my motion and make it Monday morning at 7:00 a. m., when, perhaps, there will be a larger attendance of the Senate present. May the gentlemen of the Senate be advised that that motion will be made and, therefore, Mr. President, I withdraw it at this time.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. President, I withdraw my second to the motion.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like the Senate to thoroughly understand that the motion will be repeated on Monday morning.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, this is a rather victorious moment for us on the Minority side, and I want to thank the distinguished Majority Leader for admitting that, for once, the Minority was right.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, there was never an admission on my part at any time that the Minority was ever right.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate

do now adjourn until Monday, December 17, 1951, at 7 o'clock, a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

Mr. WOOD. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 1:40 o'clock, p. m., Eastern Standard Time, until Monday, December 17, 1951, at 7 o'clock, a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

SENATE

MONDAY, December 17, 1951.

The Senate met at 7 o'clock, a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd H. Dood) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. ROBERT H. STEPHENS, D. D., Pastor of The Market Square Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

O Lord, our God, we praise Thy name at the dawn of day, and seek Thy help as another week begins. The going has been rough, O Lord, as Thou knowest right well; so we come asking for the grace we need,—the grace to think like statesmen, to behave like gentlemen, and to act like sons of the Eternal God. Amidst all the tensions and struggles, help us not to lose our tempers or our good humor; our patience, nor our sense of proportion. Give us the spirit of fair play, and above all give us a double portion of this Season's spirit of Good Will to all men.

O Lord, Thou knowest the problems these Senators face as they seek to serve according to their convictions. Guide them, Lord, and help them to want Thy guidance, that they may know what's right, rather than who's right. So may this Senate proceed with its tasks in such a manner that will do credit to this Republic, advance the welfare of the Commonwealth, and serve the Kingdom of God on earth. In the Name of the Prince of Peace, Amen.

APPROVAL OF JOURNAL

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and the Journal be approved.

Mr. HARE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Neff, will state his point of order.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I refer you to the Rule of the Senate of Pennsylvania, "Duties of the President—Taking the Chair.

"1. The President shall take the Chair, each day, at the hour to which the Senate stands adjourned, when he shall call the members to order, and on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the Journal of the preceding legislative day to be read, which the Senate shall have the power then to correct."

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his point of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, there is a motion on the floor.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, is it not proper that the point of order raised by the gentleman, Senator Neff, be answered before the motion is put to a vote?

The PRESIDENT. It should.

Will the gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Neff, please restate his question. I am sorry I did not hear it.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I call the attention of the Chair that Rule No. 1 of the Rules of the Senate of Pennsylvania provides that the Journal of the preceding legislative day be read, which the Senate shall have the power then to correct. I am simply asking that the Chair confine himself to the rule and that the Journal be read.

The PRESIDENT. There is a motion already on the floor to approve the Journal as read.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I refer you to Rule 29.

The PRESIDENT. That can be suspended, if that is your problem, under the rules, by twenty-six votes.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, will it not take a majority of the Senators elected to suspend the rule?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise on a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand that the Chair has ruled that my motion to approve the Journal is changing the rules, or amending the Rules of the Senate or waiving the Rules of the Senate?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment?

(The Senate was at ease.)

JOURNAL APPROVED

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING, DEFEATED ON FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 370, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Trustees of the George Jr Republic Association Grove City Pennsylvania for construction of new buildings and repairs and improvements to existing buildings at the George Jr Republic School in Mercer County Pennsylvania

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that House Bill No. 370, on final passage, go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I object.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, before the passage of the bill, I would like to explain that this is a bill making an appropriation which requires a two-thirds vote in the Senate. We are in the midst of negotiations attempting to iron out differences in the reapportionment bill. I believe that the Democratic position, as stated to me by the Democratic Caucus, is that we cannot at this time vote for these appropriations since only in this manner have we the legislative power to call to the attention of the people in Pennsylvania the seriousness of the reapportionment bill. It is a position that we do not want to take, it is a position that we feel is not necessary at this time.

Mr. President, we feel that this committee which has just gone off the floor has an even chance of working out the major differences in the reapportionment bill. I do not want to get into that bill at this moment, because I think when that committee reports that some of the clauses will be changed and that we may have an opportunity to, at least, get as good a bill as it is possible to get under the conditions, but when we realize what is happening to that particular bill any student of government reading it I do not think would object to the position that the Democratic Caucus is taking upon this legislation. Therefore, I want it clearly understood that we will ask for a roll call on every bill bearing a House number relating to appropriations. We do not want to resort to this weapon, but in a Democracy we must resort to whatever weapons we have at hand along parliamentary lines to call attention to the iniquities as we find them on the Legislative Calendar.

Mr. President, we seriously feel that this matter of reapportionment is one that demands the attention of this Senate, one that has not been treated as openly as it should have been. There have been no meetings of the Reapportionment Committee where we have been asked to attend over the eleven and one-half month period, and here in the last week of the Session we find a reapportionment bill, Mr. President, which does not even resemble the bill which was introduced after eleven and one-half months of study. Somewhere along the line there must be a misunderstanding. We would like to call it to the attention of the Senators on the other side that this is a serious matter and, therefore, if the desire is to call the roll on this bill, I am asking the Democratic Members to vote "no."

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, of course, neither the gentleman from Westmoreland nor I have any desire to debate Congressional Reapportionment in the face of this bill. The gentleman has linked the two together because of the position which he has just stated on the floor of the Senate as being the position of his caucus. Mr. President, the same problem confronted the Majority side when we were conferring on the Philadelphia bill, and if memory serves me rightly, the same difficulty arose, the same statements were made to us privately. Therefore, we have been deferring action on appropriation bills similar to the bills which are now before us on Third Reading, trying to adjust the differences between the Majority and the Minority Party on the Kephart Bill which just passed Second Reading awhile ago.

You know, Mr. President, the suggestion is made by the gentleman from Westmoreland that the Democrats feel the only weapon which they have available to them from a legislative standpoint is to hold up these appropriation bills, pending an amicable adjustment of the differences of opinion on Congressional Reapportionment. Mr. President, without getting into a discussion on reapportionment or the bill which appears on the Senate Calendar, I think every Member of the Senate is thoroughly familiar with the fact that a great many Members of the Senate on both sides of the aisle are very unhappy over the reapportionment bill and are hopeful that some remedial changes are made which will improve the bill, at least as far as their respective districts are concerned. I think many of us are directly affected, by what they did to our particular geographical subdivision on reapportionment, and we all appreciate the fact, Mr. President, that Congressional Reapportionment must be a discharged responsibility of this General Assembly before we adjourn sine die in order to avoid the very distressing problem of having the Congressmen of Pennsylvania elected at large, but, Mr. President, the Majority feels that the reapportionment bill must stand or fall, regardless of the other problems involved. It must rest upon its own merits and be determined accordingly. We do not agree with the Minority, Mr. President, that a legislative weapon such as the use of bills which are not germane to reapportionment should be employed as a wedge or as a road block to further discussion on reapportionment.

It is true, Mr. President, that back in the conference room are eight Senators who are trying to work out the differences of opinion. What they do with reapportionment has, for example, nothing to do with the problem as to whether or not the George Jr. Republic School, in Mercer County, shall receive an appropriation of $50,000 or whether or not this Senate of Pennsylvania will approve the House bill appropriating moneys to Temple University, Jefferson Medical School and to the University of Pennsylvania. Those things are not germane and are not related, and in a representative form of government, which I think is the same type of government that Senator Dent refers to as a Democracy, and which we on this side refer to as a Republic, legislation presented to the gentlemen of the Senate should be determined upon its merits. Therefore, Mr. President, if the Minority feels that they must vote against these bills in order to prove that they do not like the reapportionment bill, then that is the position that they will have to take because the roll will be called on those bills and the roll will be verified, because we feel that reapportionment will have to be fought out on its own merits and not attempted to be flavored or influenced by any other bill on the Calendar.

The same thing was presented to us, as I have said, on the Philadelphia bill and now comes the reapportionment bill. Tomorrow it will be another bill. We think it is about time we cleaned up this Calendar, because, gentlemen of the Senate, we are going to adjourn sine die this week and, therefore, our legislative responsibilities must be discharged.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, let us understand each other clearly. This is not cleaning up the Calendar because, Mr. President, the reapportionment bill is a Senate Bill on Second Reading. These bills are House Bills on Third Reading. It only requires one more reading and they can be passed finally. We cannot be accused of using this as a road block. We can only be accused of using the weapons of parliamentary law and legislative strategy in order to call to the attention of the people of Pennsylvania the seriousness of the question of reapportionment. We are not interested in blocking any appropriations, but we feel that there is nothing else we can do which will make the people of Pennsylvania realize what is happening on reapportionment. How many persons in this Commonwealth know what is in that bill? Seriously, I did not know what was in it until yesterday afternoon. We could not even look at the bill or see the amendments, and surely after over eleven and one-half months we certainly ought to know something about the most serious bill before this Session of the Legislature, because it strikes at the roots of representative government.

Mr. President, I say to you, as I said before, that any group of Senators, if they were in the position we are in, I would respect them if they used the same implements we are using now. We are not opposed to the appropriation for the George Jr. Republic School, we are not opposed to the appropriations for Pitt and Temple and Penn. We are not opposed to the appropriations for the State-aided hospitals all over the Commonwealth. The records prove that We have voted for them in the House as a party, we intend to vote for them here, but how else can we call the attention of the people of Pennsylvania to this particular action in the Senate?

Mr. President, these are House Bills, nothing can stop them from passage even as of the last month, the dying moments of this Session of the Legislature. If this is an attempt to prove to the people that we are obstructionists, it will fall because, Mr. President, I state clearly for the record, and for public consumption, we are not opposed to any of the appropriations to any of the hospitals in this Commonwealth or State-aided schools. We are opposed, however, at this time to giving our approval to this legislation, because at this moment if, by disapproval, we can stir up the agitation of the people in order that they will ask questions and say, "Why is this happening in Harrisburg," then we can say that the greatest gerrymandering Congressional Reapportionment bill ever introduced into a legislative hall is now upon the Senate books. Certainly I hope that committee comes out with an agreement, I pray that that committee comes out with an agreement. All of us are weary of the strife, all of us know that this is a week that we would like to be home with our families more than anything else in this wide world, and I believe that if it were put to a secret vote there are many Members of this Senate who would be willing to quit just to go home to be with their families. During this great week of the birth of the Christ Child, all of us want to be home with our families, and all of us who are imbued with a Christian spirit want to be there.

Mr. President, there is one thing we will not do, we will not recede from our position until we know whether the committee is earnestly, seriously and genuinely trying to do a job for the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It cannot hurt to hold the bills over. The gentleman from Allegheny has asked that many appropriation bills go over in order, and that other bills go back to committee. We did not question the motive, but we do question the advisability of letting the reapportionment bill be passed in this Senate without the people of Pennsylvania knowing full well what it contains. Therefore, much as I dislike this action, I disapprove entirely of having to do it, at this moment there is nothing else that I can do except to ask again that this bill go over in order with the other House Bills, in order that they be on the Calendar where they can be passed immediately upon the return of the committee with some action or, rather, some report of progress.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, just to keep the record straight, we are not voting against all appropriation bills. We are just voting against the House appropriation bills. We want to help clean up this Calendar, too, but it seems to me that since they are on Third Reading now, we can carry them over one day. This committee is meeting and this is no time now, in the closing days of the Session, for any one to lose their head because, after all, all of us want to vote for these appropriation bills in particular, and I believe all the Senators on this side want to vote for them.

Mr. President, I realize my responsibility, but like Senator Dent said, this is the only weapon we have at this particular time, and I say to you that since the committee is meeting, we can certainly carry them over until tomorrow, because I notice here that we have three pages of Third Reading Bills on the Postponed Calendar. Why can't we carry these over until tomorrow? It is not going to hurt anything. We can pass them tomorrow.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Majority Floor Leader.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. YOSKO. Since these are House Bills, Senator Walker, and it only takes one legislative day to pass them, what have we got to lose by holding the bills over for one additional day?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, these bills have been held on the Calendar for quite some time, and it is a decision of the Republican Caucus that we are going to move the bills, as many of them as we can, off the Calendar in order to get ready for the sine die adjournment.

We are taking the position, Senator Yosko, that these bills are not germane to the vexing problem that now confronts us on reapportionment, and if the same philosophy which has been expressed by Senator Dent and Senator Lane were carried on ad infinitum, you would be perfectly in order to take the same position that you could not vote for these until we have seriously considered some of the bills or resolutions that are near and dear to your heart. We would never get any bills passed if we hooked them altogether and had a daisy chain or a log-rolling event and, therefore, Senator, we feel that we have got to get rid of them. We would like to do it today and clear the Calendar for the controversial matters which are still vexing each and every Member of the Senate.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, that does not answer my question, I am sorry. Aside from the fact that the Republican Caucus took action to vote on these bills today. I ask again, what have we got to lose by holding these bills over for one additional day when you consider the fact that we only need one legislative day to pass them?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, there is no purpose in holding these bills up. There is no question being raised as to amending these bills or discussing these bills. There is no controversy over the bills which are now before us. The only reason being advanced for not acting on these bills today is that they want to hold them up until we decide what we are going to do with reapportionment, and that is not germane to the bill. If the gentleman were asking to put the bill over because he wanted to investigate the George Jr. Republic School, or find out why they were getting $50,000 instead of $40,000 or $60,000, if his desire to delay legislative action on the bill were predicated upon some problem in his mind that directly affected the bill before us, I could appreciate the request, but this bill has been mentally approved, at least, by every Member of the Senate as well as some of the rest of these appropriation bills which are confronting us.

Mr. President, the only purpose is to hold the bill on the Calendar so that it can be used, theoretically, as a wedge, as a lever or as pressure regarding the reapportionment bill, and I might say, Senator Yosko—this is a horrible thought and I apologize for injecting it at this time—supposing the reapportionment bill came out from this committee and it did not satisfy one of the fifty Members of the Senate, just one, forty-nine were satisfied and one was not, and that one Senator would get up and say, "Just a minute, gentlemen. I do not like this reapportionment bill. Therefore, I ask that all other bills be held on the Calendar until I am satisfied."

Now, Mr. President, each one of us who have had our districts injured is trying to call to the attention of the people of Pennsylvania the rugged problem which is confronting the General Assembly in trying to reapportion Pennsylvania on a Congressional basis, because, Senator Yosko, as you know, we did not get the official reapportionment figures until late in September and, therefore, the task which has been presented to the General Assembly, and especially here in Pennsylvania where we must cut out three Congressmen, something which has never been done before in the history of the Republic, is a very rugged job. It is difficult, and somebody is going to be hurt. For that reason, Senator, we do not feel that the appropriation bills should be held up for the reapportionment bill.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, I have not asked to hold this bill over because of the reapportionment bill.

Mr. President, I now ask that the bill go over because I want to check the appropriation to this institution for the last biennium in order to determine how the appropriation was spent. I assure the gentlemen of the Senate that I will be glad to give them an accounting of how the appropriation was spent for the last biennium to determine whether or not the amount of this appropriation is justified. Therefore, I ask that the bill go over until tomorrow.

Mr. WALKER. Now, Mr. President, I am sorry to refuse the request of the gentleman. The bill has been in the Senate since June 19. It passed the House 206 to 0, it has been on the Senate Calendar for a solid week, and I am sure the gentleman has had sufficient time to study it. Therefore, I must ask that the bill be acted upon today.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I rise to reaffirm the request of the Minority Leader, the distinguished gentleman from Westmoreland. I would like to say it is strange music coming from the other corner of the Senate, from a man who has kept this General Assembly in Session, 258 of us, for eleven and one-half months. Of course, the reason for our being here at his request, his action was an open one, was because he was running for election. The election is over and he is now the Minority Commissioner-elect in Allegheny County, so we should go home, get out of here. He said these bills have been on the Calendar for a number of weeks. Well, Senate Bill No. 615 has been on the Postponed Calendar for three months. Why isn't he pressing for action on that one?

Seldom, Mr. President, does the Minority find it necessary to resort to their constitutional rights to prevent passage of an un-Democratic, unfair and arbitrary piece of legislation, jammed down their throats by a Majority such as this, but this is one of those few times. This bill is not a reapportionment bill, it could properly be called an abortional bill. It does not set out to do a job on reapportioning the Congressional Districts of this State in any sane, sensible, fair fashion. It sets out to strip Pennsylvania of six liberal Congressmen, six Democratic Congressmen, and not to cut the number of Congressmen in accordance with the Federal statute from thirty-three to thirty. It is unfair in many respects. It is one of the most important pieces of legislation to come before this body at this Session.

Mr. President, the Majority Party which controls the Committee on Reapportionment has had eleven and one-half months to do something about this measure. They decided last week to bring it out into the light of day, put it on the Senate Calendar and now they are going to jam it through the Senate on three successive days. It is a measure which should be given a public hearing, it is a measure which the Minority should, at least, have a chance to study, to counsel with the peoples of this State. It is a measure that the peoples of this State should know something about, but, no, low and behold, the gentleman from Allegheny suddenly decides, after eleven and one-half months, that it is Christmastime and he wants to go home and get ready for the inaugural.

Mr. President, there is not a Member on this side of the aisle who wants to deprive the hospitals, and the schools and the charitable institutions of this State from their appropriations. It is our hope that we will not have to, but before we stand idly by and see an arrogant, arbitrary Majority jam a bill such as this down the throats of the people of Pennsylvania, and deprive the liberal-thinking people of this State of adequate and necessary representation in the Federal Congress, I, for one, and I know my colleagues stand by me by caucus action, and determined that I will not vote for these appropriation bills. I, for one, in my considered judgment, believe that the onus of this action will not rest with the Minority who are fighting with the only weapon they know, their constitutional right, but with the Majority who are determined unfairly to jam this type of legislation down the throats of the people of the Commonwealth.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred):

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I ask for verification of the roll.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

REQUEST THAT BILL GO OVER IN ORDER

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 893, on third reading, go over in its order, as the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Barr, is absent from the Senate Chamber and he wants to talk on this bill.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. FLEMING. Mr. President, I object.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, before the roll is announced I would like to say that I just talked to Senator Barr about a half hour or so ago. He is down in the hotel. He had a sudden attack last night, and has had the doctor three times since midnight. He tells me that he is in hope that he will be up here tomorrow. I am not asking for any sympathy but general courtesy. He has made a fight against this bill since it was introduced. He stood upon this floor and fought it. This is still a bill which can be acted upon tomorrow. I would not ask the Senate to hold it up today if it would jeopardize passage of the bill, if any Senator is interested in seeing it passed. However, I think in all decency this bill should be held over until Senator Barr can make his statement in regard to what it does to the city of Pittsburgh. However, if you insist on calling the roll and having it verified, I am going to insist that Senator Barr be recorded.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to advise the Senate that there is nothing before the Senate but the announcement of the roll. I believe you were not present at the moment in the Senate Chamber when Senator McGinnis requested that the bill go over in order to which there was objection, and there was nothing else the Chair could do under the rules but proceed with consideration of the bill.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, will state his point of order.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, first before I put my point or order, I understand perfectly that you had nothing else that you could do, and I appreciate your broad interpretation of the Rules of the Senate by allowing me to talk. However, if the roll has been called and not yet announced, and the status quo is maintained, that bill is still in a position for Senator Barr to register his opposition tomorrow. Is that right or wrong?

The PRESIDENT. I regret to advise the Senator that it is not. The ruling of the Chair is that the only order of business is the announcing of the roll call under the rules.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am not the Majority so I cannot set aside the rule and I cannot set aside the roll call. Let me say to the Senate that I do not think it is the kind of action in which I would indulge, no matter how many votes we had in the majority.

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 894, as follows:

An Act to amend Section 1 of the act approved the fifth day of August one thousand nine hundred thirty-two (P. L. 45) entitled "An act empowering cities of the first and second classes to levy assess and collect or to provide for the levying assessment and collection of certain additional taxes for general revenue purposes authorizing the establishment of bureaus and the appointment and compensation of officers and employees to assess and collect such taxes and permitting penalties to be imposed and enforced" by prohibiting the imposition of wage income or occupation taxes on non-residents and abolishing such taxes heretofore imposed The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

And said bill having been read at length the third time, And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. President, as is very well known to most of the Members of the Senate, this bill is intended to eliminate the right of the city of Philadelphia to impose a wage tax on all those who live or are employed in the city of Philadelphia. I would like to state at the outset that I appreciate the deep convictions and sincerity of the sponsors of this measure who for many years, I know, have had the problem of trying to convince their constituents that there was little if anything they could do about changing that situation.

Mr. President, this tax was imposed under a right granted by this Legislature in 1932. I think it was some time in 1937 or 1938 when the city of Philadelphia passed this tax, which the courts constantly decided permitted the city of Philadelphia to tax all those who are residents of or employed in the city of Philadelphia. Now, Mr. President, I would like to point out for the benefit of all of the Members of the Senate that the Legislature of 1932 was a Republican Legislature, that the Council of the city of Philadelphia which passed its ordinance under the power and authority granted by this act was a Republican Council, that the Supreme Court which finally had this question to decide was a Republican Supreme Court, and when I say that I am not trying to indicate that there is anything political involved. All this was brought about by reason of the fact that the city of Philadelphia was getting deeper and deeper into a financial hole, and the city Republican fathers saw no other way out except to impose this tax.

Mr. President, I know that efforts have been made in the past to have this Senate consider and pass legislation of this nature and I know, too, that every effort which was made in the past met with defeat. Now, whether it was because the city of Philadelphia was in Republican hands and the city fathers came up to Harrisburg and told their Republican associates that they needed the money and they could not pass such an act, I do not know, but what I do know is this. I do know that on November 6, 1951, in the "City of Brotherly Love," the Republican organization was swept out of office. The date was November 6, 1951. The forecast was that on the first Monday of January 1952, a Democratic regime would take over the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, on December 3, 1951, my good and sincere colleagues from Bucks, Montgomery and Delaware Counties, who have always been affected by that tax, introduced this measure which would take away from the new city fathers the right to continue to impose that tax on non-residents who work in the city of Philadelphia. Now, I could command your attention for some time justifying that tax. I could talk about the fact that many of the non-residents who work in the city use the city facilities, have the protection of the various city departments, and therefore should pay something toward the upkeep of the city. I appreciate full well that my colleague might take this floor to justify their position, and I would argue with them as they would argue with me. I do not question the fact that there are equities on both sides, but what I say is this, Mr. President, it does not seem to come with such good grace that within less than a month after a new administration is elected to office and is about to take office that this bill is thrown into the hopper and by its enactment the city would be threatened with chaos.

It is true, Mr. President, that the bill provides that the tax could no longer be collected after December 31, 1952. In other words, the sponsors of this measure have very graciously agreed that we, in the city of Philadelphia, would have one year of grace. All I can say, Mr. President, is that I appreciate the compliment of my colleagues from Montgomery, Bucks and Delaware, who realize full well that the necessity for the imposition of this tax was the result of seventy-five years of Republican misrule in the city of Philadelphia, and now they are hopeful that by reason of the election of all Democratic candidates in the new city administration that within one year's time we shall do such good work that we will not be required to impose this tax anymore.

I say again, Mr. President, I appreciate the compliment and I do not doubt that the new administration will be able to do a good job and save the city a lot of money, but I think it is asking a little bit too much to expect that we shall be able to face a $12,000,000 a year loss in revenue and be able to overcome it within one year's time. I would suggest that my colleagues, if they are really sincere and confident in our ability to do so, please not take any favorable action on this bill at this time, but give us a few years to get back on our feet and then I am sure we will be able to say with them, "We think now the tax can be removed." I ask all my colleagues to vote against the adoption or the enactment of this measure.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, I intend to vote against this bill, and I should like to put on record my reasons therefor.

Mr. President, it is not only that the incoming administration will be faced with a new deficit of $10,000,000 to $12,000,000, but I firmly believe that the people who earn their living in the city of Philadelphia should contribute in the form of taxes to help support the city. People obtain their living in one of two ways, either by working or by investment. If they had investments in real estate in the city of Philadelphia, there would be no question about their liability for taxes. Their investment is in the form of work. They get the benefit of our streets, our lighting, our police protection. They should not object to pay part of the cost.

For those reasons, Mr. President, I intend to vote against the bill.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, the Philadelphia wage tax on non-residents has had a long and bloody history. Since 1942, the Members of the Democratic Party have fought, both in the House and in the Senate, to repeal this obnoxious feature of this particular piece of legislation which is discriminating.

Now, Mr. President, through the years we, on the Democratic side, have supported party policy which is in opposition to imposing upon non-residents a wage tax. I recall in the Session of 1947 and in the Session of 1949, here is this Senate we stood on this floor and argued for hours about the enactment of 481, which permitted the taxing of non-residents wages, and here we are today voting on this piece of legislation. I might also add that it comes with poor grace, because if my memory is correct, Senator Watkins sponsored this legislation in 1949, and I believe it was killed in committee. It so happened that this bill was reported out, I believe, by my vote at this Session. I was in support of this amendments, because I believe the taxing of wages of non-residents is most certainly taxation without representation. I do not take the position that the shoe is on the other foot at this time. I am cognizant of the fact that Philadelphia certainly faces a financial crisis, but at the same time we, the Democratic Party, who have always fought legislation of this type, cannot reverse our position at this time, and I call upon the Members of the Democratic Party who have adopted and supported this policy to go down the line in support of this piece of legislation.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, this happens to be one of the occasions when both sides of the argument have a great deal of merit. That is a rare occasion in the Senate of Pennsylvania or in any other deliberative body. However, at this particular time I think most of us realize that we are acting upon legislation today of grave importance to the citizens of the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, we have struggled for the better part of a week now in ironing out the difficulties which confront this General Assembly because of consolidation of the city and county of Philadelphia. We have given or are attempting to give to a commission to be named by the Mayor and the Governor extensive powers in setting up that city and county consolidation. This bill does not take effect for two years. I believe the expression here is evidence that the citizens of Philadelphia have a problem in finances that we cannot solve at this time. I believe that at this time we ought to let this matter in the hands of those who are trying to frame the new government for this city, and leave unto them this particular act in order that they may determine that which is best for the new city of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, I see nothing wrong with allowing them to continue as they have in the past until they get this new framework of government established and, therefore, I can vote against this with full conscience.

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I certainly appreciate some of the kind remarks over there and some of the remarks I do not appreciate. I feel as though if anyone would know anything about the merits of this bill it would be myself, and I was very fortunate to have two other gentlemen co-sponsor this bill with me, Senator Watson and Senator Proppert.

Mr. President, as you all know, Senate Bill No. 894, Printer's No. 679, is a bill which would cancel the wage tax upon those non-residents. It is a bill that in 1949, as a freshman Senator, I sponsored. I no longer classify myself as a freshman, I refer to myself as a Member of the Class of 1949." I have lived with this tax, I have had thousands and thousands of letters protesting this tax which the people in Delaware County, Montgomery County, Bucks County, Lancaster County, Chester County, consider one of the most unfair taxes which was ever imposed upon any municipality or any section of this Commonwealth. Certainly you all know that our County fought the Battle of Brandywine, yes, out in my own neighborhood. You know that they fought in Boston you know about the "Tea Party". I will not go into that. I do not think there is any use in trying to tell you the number of battles which have been fought just against this thing, taxation without representation.

Mr. President, I went to Philadelphia in 1949, and appeared before city council, and I might say that I was treated very courteously, I was treated very friendly, but yet I got nowhere. There was nothing to gain, and I remember the parting shot. It was just this. They said to me, after I had complimented the "City of Brotherly Love" and told them how much I loved the city and what I thought of it, "If you love it so well, what is wrong with the income tax that you people pay?" My answer was just this, "We do have a love for Philadelphia, we do have an interest in you, but we do not want to pay your taxes."

Mr. President, I am more or less surprised that Senator Rosenfeld would defend this bill. As a principal speaker from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, if I might quote the record, on Tuesday, December 4, right on this Senate floor, made this statement:

"Mr. President, I see in the provisions with regard to civil service and this job freeze on behalf of an organization that has dragged the city down to its present level, on behalf of an organization that has run the city into such a ground that it has been forced to impose a wage tax on citizens who do not even live in the city of Philadelphia, I see in that the fine hand of politics, I see in that the fine hand of gutter politics."

Mr. President, why didn't Senator Rosenfeld make a political issue of it here today or tonight? Why? I ask that question. Why was not that same feeling expressed? He goes on, "I want to put the Senate on notice now—I am making no threats and I am making no warnings. We have enough important work to do without that." Well, I certainly agree with that, but since last Friday I have had to sit and listen to the troubles about something he did not like, something that they campaigned for and told the people that they were going to do, and now he comes up here and he does not want to do it, and he calls the Republicans in the city of Philadelphia gutter politicians. I resent that on behalf of my colleagues from Philadelphia. I think it was a scurrilous remark. They were not gutter politicians, they knew not where to go borrow the money, so they did call on their neighbors. I do not agree with it. It was not fair, and I still feel that way about it.

Mr. President, Senator Rosenfeld also says, along with my other very good friend, Senator Silvert, from the city of Philadelphia, that our people use their facilities, they use their trolley cars, they use their lavatories. To me, that just seems simple. I cannot understand why anyone would make a remark like that. What do you think the Philadelphians do in Delaware County, Bucks County, Montgomery County and Chester County? I happen to have an office at Third and Broomall Streets in the city of Chester. When the Ford Motor Company turns out, the Scott Paper Company, the Sinclair Refining Company, the Texas Oil Company, Sun Oil Company, South Chester Tube, my home is approximately twenty miles from that office. My son's home is about ten squares. I can be home and eating my dinner while he is trying to get out of the way of Philadelphians, trying to get back home. It is ridiculous to talk about Delaware Countians and the other people who work in the city of Philadelphia. What would the city of Philadelphia do without them? Where would they get the labor there today? There is a labor market which is in demand. It is impossible to get enough labor.

Mr. President, in 1945, there were 33,000 people working in the Sun Shipyards. In our county alone today there are 40,000 Philadelphians working in our county. You are using our streets, you are using our lavatories, you are washing your hands, you are using our streets with your automobiles, and we welcome you down there and we have got good drinking water now, too. It just cost us $15,000,000 to pipe it into the city of Chester, and we welcome you there all of you Philadelphians who work in our county, to drink our water and use our streets. So, that argument, to me, is just a weak, very weak excuse. I see no merit to it at all.

Mr. President, I do not know tonight how the gentlemen, my friends on the other side, intend to vote, but there is one thing I do know. I have been here for approximately twelve months in this Senate and practically every day I receive a Senate Calendar headed, "The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor," giving the bill number, the page number and what they expect you to do, whether they expect you to favor that bill or whether they expect you to oppose it. On December 17 I have this same sheet. I do not see Senate Bill No. 894 on there. I set here the whole Session and heard you people say what labor meant to you, that you were the gods representing labor, that you were their chosen people, that it was your sworn duty in this Senate to see that they were given a fair deal.

Mr. President, I say to you that the Republicans have always been fair with labor. I have and I know my colleagues have. We are very much interested in labor, and we have such distinguished gentlemen as Senator Holland, a great friend of mine, a great labor leader; Senator Neff, who I admire very much; Senator Yosko, Senator Dent, Senator Stiefel, and a lot of gentlemen over there. I say this to you, that when the roll is called here today, and it is going to be called, we are going to count noses, we are going to find out how much love you have for labor. If you can stand and vote against this bill and still say you have the interest of labor at heart, I cannot understand it. When you can dig into the envelopes of people—it is one and a quarter per cent now, and the newspapers say it will very probably be three per cent, and God knows how much further it will go because I do not think that the Democrats are going to break any records in Philadelphia; they are going to need taxes like the rest of the State of Pennsylvania, but I hope they will not need this wage tax.

Mr. President, if the gentlemen of the Senate vote against this bill, they are voting against labor. You admit it is our working people who work in Philadelphia. You are digging into their envelopes. If you vote for this bill, why didn't you vote for the income tax and put it through? It is a much fairer bill than this. I would rather pay a State income tax than pay this tax, because with the imposition of a State income tax we would have some representation and with this tax we have nothing.

Mr. President, I say this. Here is what I would like the American Federation of Labor to do for me, Senator Watkins, from Delaware County, who I think has always been a friend of labor, this is what I would like for you to do. If the labor unions are fair in their reporting of the votes of the Members of the General Assembly upon matters affecting labor, certainly they will place an extra big "A" for those voting against this bill and a big "F" for those voting for it. I would like to see that in the labor journals when I go home this winter. I want to make sure that everybody in this Senate has a chance to be polled on how they voted today. I ask and I plead with all of my colleagues, both Democrat and Republican, to send this bill out of the Senate without a single dissenting vote. You are protecting the rights of our Country and what we fought for years ago. If you will do that, I can say that you are friends of labor. If you do not do it, I certainly cannot put you in that column.

Thank you very much, and I hope you vote right.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, in this entire debate there is a certain phase which escaped the Membership of the Senate, a phase pertaining to taxation in municipalities. I am referring to Act 481, which was the main-spring, the fountainhead of local taxation.

Now, Mr. President, this Act 481 expressly excused Philadelphia from the powers which it grants for purposes of taxation. The present measure aims to exclude none-residents from the tax, but at the same time it does not give Philadelphia additional powers to tax, which implies that the aim of this act is to embarrass the people of Philadelphia and the new administration, so that they must impose an additional $12,000,000 of taxes on real estate and in that way make the new government of Philadelphia unpopular. This is the reason why I thought I should bring to the attention of the Membership of the Senate this implication.

In my opinion, Mr. President, there should have been an amendment to Act 481. Then this bill would have come in good grace. Otherwise, it implies that this is an oppressive measure.

Mr. NEFF. Mr. President, I realize the hour grows late and that we have been here about sixteen hours today. I have just listened, as have most all of us here in this chamber, to the distinguished gentleman from Chester, Senator Watkins, in what I believe was a sincere presentation. Certainly I appreciate his feelings. Each of the speakers proceeding me has spoken of the principle involved in the measure before the Senate at the moment. I, too, believe there is a principle to be considered, a principle of taxation without representation.

Mr. President, two years ago I voted against the ripper to 481, Senate Bill No. 446, which took from 481 a severance tax and thereby made it necessary to levy a wage tax on many small communities, especially the coal economy communities throughout the State. I have legislated and spoken against the principle of wage tax, and in particular, taxation without representation or a tax on non-residents, many times. However, the principle does not stand alone here this evening. The principle is compromise, compromise, with malice and despicable intent of the Majority Membership here in the Senate seeking to impose a hardship upon a new administration in the city of Philadelphia, and as the principle has been compromised, so my thoughts on this matter must be compromised.

Mr. President, two years ago, as the Senator from Chester has told you, he introduced this same measure, although at that time the Republican Party, a discredited organization, was in the saddle in the administration in Philadelphia, and his colleagues on the other side saw fit to see that his measure did not come out of committee. However, the worm has turned, as it will, and we have a Democratic administration about to take office in Philadelphia, and so the Republican Caucus has decided that this bill, exempting non-residents from the Sterling Act in the city of Philadelphia, shall come out of committee. By caucus action here this evening they hope, by the strength of a majority vote on the other side of the house, to pass a measure here in this Senate and send it on to the House, hoping that they can discredit and cripple the Democratic organization in the city of Philadelphia. I am wondering if they have forgotten that although the city of Philadelphia voted a Democratic administration into office on November 6, that there are still a few Republicans left in the city of Philadelphia, that they have the responsibility to see that the greatest city in this Commonwealth is not crippled and hamstrung by vicious legislation such as this.

Mr. President, we have wrangled here for a week over a consolidation measure of the same character in which a Republican majority in this Senate has sought to cripple, discredit and hamstring the Democratic organization in the city of Philadelphia. I think it is unfair, uncalled for and un-American, and I, for one, am going to vote against this measure because I believe it is un-American and I cannot, in good conscience, vote for a principle which is compromised by malice and evil intent as this measure before us here today is.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I want to concur in the remarks made by my colleague from Washington County, Senator Lane, to the point that I remember how long and how hard we fought to oppose the acts known as 481 and 486. Tonight it has been stated that it may be somewhat different. However, you cannot compromise a principle and this may be a great night in the history of Pennsylvania. It is to me because in all the years that I have spent on the Hill, this is the first night that I have heard a Republican rise in place and have his heart bleed for labor. I do not know whether it is love or convenience, I think it may be convenience. It has been stated that we shall all be judged on how we vote, that labor shall pay attention to whether or not we are for labor or not. The Democratic Party has always been for labor.

Mr. President, tonight there is a vast difference of opinion. I would like to go along with my colleague from Philadelphia, Senator Rosenfeld, but I cannot. I will go along with my colleague from Washington County in this case, because that is my opinion. I have always opposed a wage tax. That is why I fought so hard against a State income tax, which is a wage tax, and certainly I cannot fight against one measure and fight for another of the same nature. So, I am going to vote for this bill, Mr. President.

Mr. BYRNE. Mr. President, it seems to me that the November 6 election is not over yet. The Republican organization is trying every method possible to ruin the Democratic Party in Philadelphia.

Mr. President, last week we spent a few days and we almost spent another full day today, on the Ripper Bill which we all know would never have been introduced in this Senate if the Republican Party had won the election on November 6. We all know that there was a deal made on this Ripper Bill, that if these gentlemen surrounding Philadelphia would support the Kephart Bill they, in turn, would get this bill passed in the Senate.

Mr. President, I just heard one of my colleagues on the other side talk about courage. Where was his courage and the other Senators' courage when this bill died in committee everytime it showed its face? It never came out of committee when the Republicans had control of Philadelphia.

Mr. President, we have had a wage tax in Philadelphia for over twelve years. We need that wage tax and we need the tax that comes in from the non-residents. We are being saddled with a $15,000,000 deficit from the Republican organization as it is going out of power, and along with this $12,000,000, we are going to wind up with $27,000,000 of a deficit facing the city of Philadelphia come January 1.

Mr. President, I heard a gentleman on the other side talk about labor, what fighters they are for labor. I am proud of my record as a labor man. I am a laborer, I hold a union card. In fact, I have never voted against labor, but if they pass this bill in this house tonight they are voting against labor, because the labor people in Philadelphia will have to bear the brunt of this $12,000,000. The reason that you do not see any notification on the labor bulletin is due to the fact that they do not discriminate. They do not feel that the people in Delaware County, Bucks County, Montgomery County and across the river in Camden, should be exempt of any taxation.

Mr. President, I say to you gentlemen tonight on the other side of the house that we better stop acting like machine politicians and act like men, and support legislation which will not be to the detriment of the working man and his family. I say to you, Mr. President, I hope that this bill goes down to defeat tonight.

Mr. PROPERT. Mr. President, I suppose it is just a coincidence that one hundred seventy-eight years ago today the "Boston Tea Party" was staged, and as we all know the "Boston Tea Party" was staged because of taxation without representation.

Mr. President, I have been interested in some of the remarks that have been made on the floor of this Senate concerning this bill. In order to keep the record straight, Mr. President, it was my privilege to serve in the House of Representatives for six years before being elected to this august body, and I should like to state for the benefit of the Members of this Senate that I voted for and was successful in having a part in passing this very same bill in the Session of 1947, in the House of Representatives. Therefore, I feel that I am on safe ground when I say that this is not a partisan measure. All that this bill does, gentlemen, is prohibit the city of Philadelphia from assessing an unfair tax on non-residents. I think we are justified in taking the new administration at their word. They have promised economies, and I, for one, feel that they will effect economies.

Mr. President, in this connection I should like to point out that this bill does not take effect until December 31, 1952, which gives them one year in which to get their house in order. Furthermore, Mr. President, I should like to point out that under Act 481, under which there are various municipalities levying wage taxes, the wage tax can be offset under Act 481. That is to say, if the resident lives in one municipality and pays a tax in that municipality, it can be deducted from the tax which is assessed against the individual working in the adjoining municipality. That I point out, gentlemen of the Senate, is not true in this case. I should like to ask all my colleagues on this side of the house to support this bill.

Mr. LANE. Mr. President, I wish to make my position specifically clear. I recall in the Session of 1943, I supported a number of distinguished representatives from Philadelphia County, Joseph O'Brien, Jake Levy and many others, in their fight against the Philadelphia Wage Tax. I recall in that particular Session, I think it was the Session of 1945, I had the honor and the privilege to join with the distinguished gentleman, now deceased, former Speaker of the House of Representatives, Ellwood Turner, in our fight against the Philadelphia Wage Tax on non-residents.

I say to you, Mr. President, we of the Democratic Party have joined with the eleven Republicans in opposing the administration's one-half of one per cent income tax, and I say to you also, Mr. President, I, for one, was proud to oppose that piece of legislation because we feel that it is the prerogative of the Federal Government to levy income and wage taxes. So, I say to you this evening, to all the Members here, regardless of the administration, I have opposed wage taxes, I have opposed the enactment of 481, I have opposed the enactment of that obnoxious amendment 446, and I say to the Democratic Members, who I know are for labor and in sympathy with the cause of labor that we should support this legislation.

Mr. President, before I take my seat I want Senator Watkins to know that we on the Democratic side have always championed the cause of labor. There is no exception to that rule here tonight. I say to him, also, that if he is sincere in his thoughts in regard to labor, let him support the amendments to House Bills Nos. 1441 and 1442, and also I would like his assistance in getting my full crew bill out of the House of Representatives.

Mr. PECHAN. Mr. President, I did not want to get into this debate but just to keep the record straight, not to be accused of gutter politics, I want my colleague on the other side, if they do not remember, to look up my vote. I voted for this bill two years ago. I intend to vote for it again tonight.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, may I interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Watkins?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Watkins, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WATKINS.: I will, Mr. President.

Mr. YOSKO. Senator Watkins, is the Philadelphia wage tax paid by non-residents deductible from the Federal Income Tax?

Mr. WATKINS. Mr. President, I do not know, I am not an income tax man, I do not even make out my own income tax return. I could not tell you that. It is getting so, Senator, since the Democrats have put so many taxes on in Washington, that I cannot understand it. It is beyond me. I cannot keep up with them.

Mr. YOSKO. Mr. President, can anyone answer that question?

Mr. WALKER. Would you repeat the question Senator?

Mr. YOSKO. Is the Philadelphia wage tax which is paid by the non-resident employees, those who work in Philadelphia, deductible from the Federal Income Tax?

Mr. WALKER. Well, now, Senator, if the rest of the members of the Bar Association will forgive me for transgressing upon our minimum fee bill, yes it is.

Mr. SILVERT. Mr. President, there were at least four Democratic Senators on this side of the aisle who expressed their views on this question and this type of tax on non-residents of Philadelphia. I was rather surprised that the two Philadelphia Senators, Senator Kephart and Senator Meade, on the other side of the aisle, have seen fit not to give expression as to their ideas and their thoughts on this tax.

Mr. MEADE. Mr. President, I have tried for about twenty minutes to have some say in this thing, because it happens to be local with me. However, we have Senators from all over the State to whom this matter seems to be of much more interest than it is to Philadelphia, and it so happened that I had to be invited to talk because I was not recognized on the floor. I stood up five times, and I was not seen. I do not blame you, Mr. President, because for some reason theatricals seem to play a big part in this house.

Mr. President, I am against this tax. I do not intend to make a long harangue. Arguments have been made on both sides, pro and con, on this measure. I had intended to sit by and let Mr. Rosenfeld, who I feel so ably expressed the opinion that I have, present the argument. I join also in Senator Stiefel's views on the matter. I would have had a lot more to say if they did not say it, and I am not going to take up the time of the Senate with repetition.

Mr. President, there is one thing I do want to say. I resent the fact and I resent it very deeply that this tax which has been fought on both sides of the Senate is being made political fodder by some people on the other side. There never was a deal made by the Republican organization of Philadelphia to bring this bill out or favor this bill. Two years ago I was called the "Watchdog." I was called the "Watchdog" by my very good friend here, Senator Watkins. He said "If it were not for that 'red head' in there, I think I could have made it," and they are true words, and I dogged him just as much this time and I fought just as hard in caucus this time. We lost three Republicans who were previously able to help me and maybe those men would have gotten some votes on the other side but this time we lost them. I think we should be fair about this thing. Let us not inject the new Democratic regime into this thing. I am against it now as I was always. We need the money and I am for it. We in Philadelphia certainly cannot have flower gardens and garages and things like that, but we have to stand some of the odors of industrial plants, and then when the quiet of night comes down and we live in the city by ourselves, we have to pay the taxes and pay the wherewithal.

Mr. President, Senator Watkins said that he has to live with the tax. We have to live with the city twenty-four hours a day. I am not going to go too far and argue pro and con on this thing. I am against it, but I resent the fact that the other side tried to bring political deals into this, that Senator Kephart and I tried to make a deal. It is a lie, it is untrue and Senator Kephart will say it. Senator Silvert should have had the courage to have given me an opportunity to express my views, and if I failed to do so, he could then say, "Senator Meade did not stand up."

Mr. President, that is my feeling on the matter, and I ask everybody to give Philadelphia a chance and give us the wherewithal; even if it is only temporary, as they say, give us a chance to come back and give us a chance to go forward. It is a new city now. The Republicans lost and the Democrats have the right to defer to the will of the people who are still fighting for their city, notwithstanding the fact that we are on the losing side. I want everyone in this Senate, whether they are for the bill or against it, to realize that there are at least two people on this side of the house who are just as sincere now as they ever were and ever will be.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I, too, intend to vote against this bill. Senator Meade is correct when he said there was no deal made by us, or by the Republican organization in Philadelphia, to go along with this bill and permit it to be passed. I think it is a bad bill, I think Philadelphia is entitled to be paid some recompense for the advantage that the non-residents get when they come into Philadelphia, police protection, fire protection, all the advantages during the day when they earn their living, all the protection that the citizens of Philadelphia receive. Let me say that the amount they are paying is proportionately very little because four-fifths of the city taxes are paid by real estate, by the citizens themselves, and a much larger share of the wage taxes is paid by the citizens of Philadelphia than is paid by the non-residents. So, when you figure out the total amount paid by non-residents, compared to the total taxes paid by the citizens of Philadelphia, it is very small in comparison to the advantages they get which the city has to pay for.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

During the calling of the roll the following occurred:)

NOT VOTING—1

Varnier,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

PERMISSION TO ADD ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Mr. KRATZ asked and obtained unanimous consent to add additional sponsors to a resolution to be introduced by him.

RESOLUTION

CONDOLENCE

Messrs. KATZ, THOMAS H. W. JONES and BOLTON offered a resolution which was read, considered and unanimously adopted by a rising vote as follows:

In the House of Representatives, December 17, 1951.

The citizens of Lansdale, irrespective of their partisan interests, have sustained an irreparable loss. One of their distinguished and revered leaders—the Honorable Howard F. Boorse—has been called from his labors on earth to the serenity of rest in his eternal abode.

Mr. Boorse filled his long and active life with a multitude of interests and achievements. As a founder and an organizer of the Pennsylvania Magistrates' Association, he activated their program of achievement with his contribution of outstanding thought and service.

In the Local Government Commission, his consideration, his self-effacing attitude, his ever-expressed courtesies, made the association of others in the work with him a privilege and a pleasure for them.

Mr. Boorse was closely linked with the building and loan association movement and with his characteristic earnestness and sincerity faithfully attended scheduled meetings throughout many years.

His interest in the problems and the aspirations of our youth was always close to his heart. Unfailingly and unstintingly, he dedicated his time and energy and resources to the desirable goal of orienting young people to the obligations of changing society.

Throughout his long career in politics, his civic interests and public services have been a challenge and an inspiration to his younger colleagues, many of whom have tried to emulate his idealism and high purpose; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House express its great sorrow at the sudden death of one of its most esteemed members—the Honorable Howard F. Boorse—and mourn the loss to the citizenry of Lansdale of a high-principled, friendly and understanding leader and servant; and be it further

Resolved, That the House express to his surviving widow and child its condolences and prayers in their hour of bereavement, and its conviction that they will proudly and affectionately remember that many years of happy association with him; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to Mrs. Howard F. Boorse, 42 Vine Street, Lansdale, Pennsylvania.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SCHMIDT. Mr. Speaker, in the practice of my profession I find myself addressing the court now as Mr. Speaker. And now when I come on the floor it is Your Honor, so you will pardon the dilemma in which I find myself.

I rise for the third time to debate this bill, and I am going to make it short because I will merely be repeating what I have said on two different occasions. This bill, if enacted, would be in plain language a slap in the face of the Boards back in our home counties.

As I say, we are trying to keep politics out of the relief job. The Boards which we have back in our home counties are boards made up of reputable citizens representing a cross section of the citizenry in our local communities. These Boards have served without pay and give their services to this worthy cause.

By passing this bill we will be taking out of the hands of the local board the autonomy which they have and which was expected to be given to them in the relief set-up. A bill such as this bill is, together with the bill that has been passed here in the House whereby they propose to publish the names of those relief rolls, will do more harm in our relief setup than actually doing away with or abolishing the assistance program.

I say to you, each and every one of you here today, if you have any belief at all in home rule, if it is your desire to keep our local set up back home where your people are familiar with the local problems involved, this bill should be defeated.

I ask you again to defeat this bill as it was defeated the first time it was voted upon by this Body.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, at the close of the session, just before we went home last week, I had an agreement with the sponsor that I would talk to certain representative people in our county in regard to House Bill 1624.

It was my understanding at that time, and as he promised on the floor, we would try to work out some sort of an agreement as to possible amendments, that might make this bill acceptable to everyone concerned.

The primary objection I raised at that time, or attempted to raise, was as to that section of the bill that gives jurisdiction to squires and justices of the peace in claims amounting to $200 without submitting the case to the grand jury; that the squire can right then take jurisdiction and it is tantamount to saying that man, or the person involved does not have his day in court.

I submit to you in all fairness that anyone who would take $200, a relief chisler, does not deserve too much sympathy, but in line with the thinking of the House on questions of this nature, I believe that any individual—there might be a question—has a right to have that question submitted to the grand jury, be indicted and come up to court in the regular order. That is my first objection.

It is purely imaginary as to what might happen in a situation where this provision might be used for political purposes. I can conceive of a situation where a hostile squire will say, having a certain percentage of relief recipients in his district, this particular provision could be used as a whip on a relief recipient. I believe that is a danger which we ought to safeguard.

The next question I wanted to raise was the matter of temporary assistance. In the event this bill were to pass this House, under its provisions it is my understanding that the County Boards of Assistance do not have the authority to grant temporary relief. This means that that responsibility will have to be passed on to the local county institution districts. It is my further understanding that so far as it relates to Allegheny County, our Commissioners are not in a position to assume this additional burden.

Finally, the proponents of the bill have said that what we are trying to do here is to regulate the administration of relief on a state wide basis. That in itself is a laudable purpose—they point to a situation that occurred in Philadelphia. I submit to the Members of this House that what occurred in Philadelphia is largely confined to Philadelphia. I do not know of any other section in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in which we had a duplication of the thefts which have occurred in the relief center over there.

I can say and it has been said here before, that the administration of relief in Allegheny County which affects a large percentage of the people in my district has been administered fairly, has been administered honestly and we are one hundred percent satisfied with the administration under our Allegheny County Board of Assistance.

So, with these two points in mind, the question of the taking care of temporary relief, removing the authority from the local Boards to grant it, is going to impose an additional hardship on our county institution district, together with the fact that it permits squires to have jurisdiction in summary convictions involving amounts up to $200, thus depriving the person involved of his rights to have that case submitted to the grand jury and I say all this is enough that we ought to give this bill further consideration before passing it.

Mr. LOPRESTI. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Allegheny County, Mr. Jones, has raised one question. I do not believe he has the same impression I have, and I do not know which is correct.

He has suggested that the justice of the peace would have jurisdiction in cases up to $200. I do not believe that is the wording of this bill. I believe this bill provides that the justice of the peace would have jurisdiction in any case and could order restitution to be made and a fine not to exceed $200.

That is going pretty far afield when we allow a minor judiciary to order restitution and a fine of $200. I do not know what "restitution" could mean under relief cases, not having gone into the question very thoroughly, but it is possible that the justice of the peace would have the power to order restitution of money running into thousands of dollars and a fine of $200 and not have at his command those processes which are necessary to get the restitution.

In other words, the court when it orders restitution has certain remedies, certain procedures whereby they can recover and make the defendant come through with the restitution, which I do not see how a justice of the peace could possibly do. I think it is clearly wrong to grant this sort of power to justices of the peace.

If the question were as suggested by Mr. Jones, I would not have much objection to the bill. Allowing the justice of the peace jurisdiction, in cases where the amount received was $200, would not be very objectionable, but this allows restitution, the Lord knows what it might be, and a fine of $200.

I, therefore, think when you get into things of this sort we should have grand juries, we should have criminal courts; they are misdemeanors. The proper way of handling this thing is as it has been done in years past. The minor judiciary are set up to take care of minor incidents, but in this particular bill a great many things could come up which are not minor incidents and should receive the consideration of a jury trial.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, would like to interrogate the sponsor on the particular question raised by the gentleman from Cambria County.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McMillen, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. McMILLEN. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, will the sponsor explain to us the extent of the jurisdiction of the squires and the justices of the peace on the question of summary convictions under the bill? I am confused on it, I frankly admit.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I will have to concur in the opinion held by the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti. If the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Jones, will turn to the bill, on page 20, I think he will find the answer to his question.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, while I might, because I have the bill in my hand, straighten myself out, I do believe that the question is of such importance that all the Members of the House ought to know definitely what we are about to vote upon. So, I ask the gentleman again if he will explain this particular provision to the House.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I made the statement that I concur in the opinion held by the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Lopresti. The bill does not limit the amount of money which a recipient or a chisler might get from the state and then go into a summary conviction.

But to go further with the thinking of the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. Speaker, the bill does provide that in case the recipient or the chisler is unable to make restitution or pay the fine, he can be subjected to a 60 day imprisonment. I think that rather generally ought to clear up the whole point.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I got the impression that when you said you concur in the opinion expressed by the gentleman from Cambria, you do not necessarily imply that you agree with him.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I agree with him in this respect that there is no top limit set on the amount that the squire can hear in this case.

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the question I am trying to raise is this: Do you think, as sponsor of this legislation, that that much power should be granted to the justice of the peace without having it first submitted to the grand jury?

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Jones, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I suppose I will have to.

Mr. McMILLEN. Mr. Speaker, I should like to know, not being an attorney as the gentleman from Allegheny is, is it not true that if the recipient or the person who is found guilty by the squire is not satisfied, he can then appeal his case?

Mr. PAUL F. JONES. Mr. Speaker, oh yes, he has a right under a summary conviction to appeal to the court. The only difference is this: we must remember first of all we are dealing with relief clients. When he gets ready to take an appeal, at that point it begins to cost him money. He must engage an attorney. He cannot go into court and appeal his case personally—he must have representation.

Just for the sake of argument, let us assume that maybe he has been falsely accused; maybe the Department cannot make out a case against him; then there is the relief clause that says he has to pay the expense of taking an appeal, and in addition to that the expense of the necessary attorney fees and I do not believe that is fair either.
